"But oh, by all the gods in heaven, who rule the earth and human race, what means this tumult?"

* * * *

The Senate boys decide to snoop—
Knock Andy Mellon for a loop,
And put the surplus in the soup.

* * * *

No more abject surrender of the appropriating power has ever been made by an Anglo-Saxon parliament since the English people wrung their liberty from the Stuart kings by taking over the purse, than was witnessed in the Senate yesterday when that body turned over $24,000,000 of the people's hard-earned money to be used by the President in his discretion for the enforcement of a law against which half the population is already in revolt. Prohibition is riding for the "Restoration."

* * * *

The House may refuse to follow the Senate in its raid on orderly Government in the face of Secretary Mellon's plea, and the President always has the veto power—the incident is chiefly significant of the extreme measures for the enforcement of prohibition which we may expect now, and the more drastic they are the more speedily will the reaction set in. At this rate, before we get through,

"The screw may twist and the rack may turn,
And men may bleed and men may burn."

* * * *

If the Senate had as much sense as a kindergarten class it would know that there isn't enough power in all the governments of earth and in all the treasures of wealth men have stored since the dawn of time to prevent the sugar in a grain of corn from turning into alcohol.

* * * *

"Millions in tribute to the Anti-saloon League, but not one cent for the national defense." The Barbary Pirates are now in the Senate.

Sugar growers demand another lump. This new tariff revision seems to be aimed almost entirely so far at the ultimate consumer's breakfast table.

Turkey is getting so up-to-date and Westernized that it is thinking of introducing Turkish cigarettes and Turkish towels from the United States.

* * * *

Geneva feels pessimistic over the prospect of the United States entering the World Court, and since Senator Borah came out for the Kellogg treaty so do we. Give him time!

* * * *

* * * *

The Secret Service should look into this matter—it would be a pretty how-de-do if one of these mammals should steam into Biscayne Bay some morning and a candidate for a fourth-class postmastership should crawl out.

* * * *

New York corporation has been organized to finance the purchase of airplanes on the installment plan. Heavy, heavy hangs over thy poor head!

* * * *

There seems to be some dissatisfaction with Mr. F. Scott McBride,—he makes too much noise rattling around in Wayne B. Wheeler's shoes.

* * * *

Senator Harrison discovers a censor on the Hoover South American trip, and judging by the leak of its secret vote on the confirmation of Secretary West the Senate needs one, too.

* * * *

Mrs. Thomas McKean, of Philadelphia, signs the Declaration of Independence on her own account.

* * * *

Why not use that $10,000,000 District surplus for establishing a new national park in Representative Cramton's district?

* * * *

Senator Bruce says he has seen 10,000 people in Washington drinking wine or cocktails, but as we don't get around much we have been spared the tantalizing agony of that humiliating spectacle.

Fifty are killed in the Mexican elections. Back to normalcy!

Curator of reptiles of the St. Louis Zoo who was bitten by a deadly Gaboun viper will recover—the only man stung by this kind of a reptile who ever did, but the snake dies of pneumonia. The curator probably fortunately had the flu. As Goldsmith put it in his version—

"But soon a wonder came to light,
That showed the rogues they lied:
The man recovered from the bite—
The dog it was that died."

Mr. Hoover is welcomed by a tropical moon especially imported by the Mayor of Miami for the occasion from Brazil, to make him feel at home.

DIGNITY MARKS RECEPTION FOR HOOVER PARTY

Florida Crowds Subdued as President-Elect Rides to Miami.

REQUEST FOR REST STRICTLY OBSERVED

Tropical Moon Over Waters Lends Peace to Scene at Penney Estate.

By CARLISLE BARGERON.

Miami, Fla., Jan. 22.—President-elect and Mrs. Hoover were tonight ensconced in a hacienda of brown and white, with a touch of pink, with a view of a bed of upturned palms, a warm, semitropical moon and the inlets, canals, and bays which lead eventually to the ocean itself. He may have given thought to the Cabine' and other pressing matters incident to his presidential duties, but if he did Mr. Hoover has no romance in his soul. His surroundings were designed to give him peace and contentment.

Gray clouds and an occasional shower would have menaced the scene earlier in the day, but by the hour of Mr. Hoover's arrival they succumbed to the bunting that bedecked the corporate limits of Miami Beach and the City of Miami—may their rival boosting mayors never meet—and the thousands who greeted the party from the time it stepped from the train all along an 8-mile ride to the J. C. Penney estate on Belle Isle did so under bright skies.

Boosters Out in Force.

It was a great day for the boosters of the respective places, yet they were both pressing the newspaper men tonight for the use of their respective dat. lines. So anxious to please were these rival boosters that when they heard Mr. Hoover was coming here seeking rest, they sought to give a dignified touch to their welcome. They turned out all their townspeople dressed in white flannels, straw and white hats, in sleeveless cotton prints and summer silks that revealed a lot of pretty tanned arms. They mustered all of their drum corps and their multicolored dress would make Bill Franklin and his Vincent E. Costello Post blush with envy. They pointed with pride to their 22-story city hall, the three floors atop of which are appointed for the city jail, and all of the skyscrapers wrapped in standards and flags. They spoke boastingly of delegations from nearly every State that strung along the line of march. They had all of their yachts and the visiting yachts conspicuously on parade, but—they would not let anybody cheer or hurrah.

"It's a welcome of simplicity itself," they explained, "because Mr. Hoover wants a rest."

So hardly a ripple broke from the undulating lines of humanity through which Mr. Hoover and his party journeyed. There were dignified salutes by the policemen who only today adorned brand-new khaki uniforms, and other dignitaries of whom it would be proper to salute, but no enthusiastic, care-free note. The play-folk were on their best behavior as the result of word sent down from Mayors Sewell and Snedigan, of Miami and Miami Beach, respectively, the two agreeing on this one matter at least.

Yachts Make Only Noise.

There was a jarring exception. Some of the yachts skirting to and fro as the party passed over the long causeway connecting the city with the beach, tooted their horns and otherwise made whoopee, as if in defiance of constituted authority, but the booster managers in charge of the reception explained that.

"It's the nouveau riche," they explained.

Mr. Hoover was greeted profusely, first by the mayor of Miami, who gave

Dr. A. Boswell Dies Waiting to Operate

Stricken Suddenly While in Sibley Hospital With Patient.

Dr. Archie W. Boswell, 58 years old, of 928 Maryland avenue northeast, died suddenly from cerebral hemorrhage in the operating room of Sibley Hospital at 9:30 o'clock last night as he prepared to operate upon a patient.

Dr. Boswell, who was formerly president of the Medical Society of the District, had driven the patient, a man, to the hospital to administer an anesthetic. Five minutes after arriving, as he prepared to administer the anesthetic, he complained to attending physicians of a pain near his heart. A few minutes later he became dizzy and collapsed.

Dr. Boswell's patient, Leslie Bell, of 2216 First street northwest, was operated on by Dr. F. X. McGovern, of 1615 Kenyon street northwest. The operation, a minor one, was successful.

Dr. L. S. Savage, of Sibley Hospital, and other physicians administered oxygen in an attempt to revive the stricken doctor. He died twelve minutes after collapsing in the operating chamber.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Kate Boswell; an adopted son, William Boswell, 20 years old; a sister, Mrs. Elizabeth Quinter, of Washington, and two brothers, Irving Boswell, of Washington, and William Pinckney Boswell, of South Boston, Va.

Dr. Boswell was born in Charles County, Md., on April 21, 1870. He came to Washington in his youth, later graduating from the medical school of George Washington University. He was a member of the City Club and the Episcopal Church.

CAPITAL NEGLECTED, IT IS SAID IN HOUSE

Representative Griffin, Attacking Lump-Sum Payment, Holds It Unscientific.

"MEDDLING" IS CHARGED

Washington was described as a neglected stepchild by Representative Griffin (Democrat), of New York, when he opened debate in the House yesterday on the District of Columbia appropriation bill.

"Verily," said Griffin, "congressional meddling with District finances has made stepfathers of us all."

Griffin, ranking minority member of the appropriations subcommittee that wrote the District bill, launched a vigorous attack on the present scheme whereby the Federal Government contributes a lump sum of $9,000,000 as its share of the cost of running the National Capital. Whether this sum is too small or too large, he said, makes little difference, adding that the important thing was that the scheme was unscientific.

Griffin charged that "maladministration" of the District's finances had caused the piling up of a big surplus which should have been used for schools and other necessities here.

He then listed a number of cases where citizens had been deprived of facilities and improvements that should have been made available.

Today, Representative Casey (Democrat), of New York, is expected to open

U. S. Marine Is Killed By Nicaraguan Bandits

Managua, Nicaragua, Jan. 22 (A.P.).—Marine headquarters were advised tonight that Private Everett A. Rector had been killed in action by outlaws. There was no mention of other casualties and no details of the combat. The brief message was brought in by messenger. Rector was killed northeast of Yali in the department of Jinotega. It is presumed that marine patrol encountered the outlaws in the jungle far from a telegraph line.

Men of the United States Marine Corps still are patrolling the northern area of Nicaragua, where small groups of outlaws have found refuge in the mountains and dense jungles. The last Marine casualty occurred on December 6 when Sergt. Charles Williams was killed by a stray bullet.

BRUCE SEES 10,000 DRINK; NONE DRUNK

CITY'S LIQUOR IS DEBATED

Senator Bruce (Democrat) of Maryland, told the Senate yesterday that in the six years he has been in Washington he has seen at least 10,000 persons in his social set drink wine or cocktails and not one of these 10,000, the wet Marylander said, appeared to be intoxicated.

Bruce arose while the Senate was debating the Harris amendment providing an additional $24,000,000 for prohibition enforcement, an amendment which subsequently was adopted.

In the debate, Senator Heflin (Democrat) of Alabama, declared that one does not now see "a half dozen drunks in a half dozen years in Washington;" Senator Blease (Democrat) of South Carolina, again denounced wet diplomats, and Senator Norris (Republican) of Nebraska, announced that he had been given the name of a "diplomatic bootlegger."

Senator Heflin said that in the old days here, when the saloons were open, it was a common sight to see a half dozen drunks on the street. When he added that since prohibition he had not seen a half dozen in as many years. Bruce challenged him.

Reading from The Washington Post, Senator Bruce quoted from a report of Maj. Edwin B. Hesse, superintendent of police, which showed that arrests for intoxication here had increased 174 per cent since 1911.

Heflin said that this was explained by the fact that nowadays the police are out to make a record for arrests in order to discredit prohibition.

In the preprohibition days, he said, the saloon keepers controlled the police and discouraged the rounding up of inebriates.

After telling about the 10,000 persons he had seen drinking here, Senator

Emil Fuchs' Will Provides for Hall for Exhibition of His Works.

New York, Jan. 22 (A.P.).—The residuary estate of Emil Fuchs, painter and sculptor, who shot himself in his apartment January 12, will be used to establish a foundation which will direct an exhibition of his art work in a suitable hall in Washington, D. C., his will filed today disclosed.

The artist desired that the exhibition be established at the National Capital to aid "those who wish to study and learn." If for any reason the foundation trustees find it inconvenient to have the exhibition in Washington, the will directs that the plan be carried out in Austria, his native land.

Renee Fuchs, a sister, is the largest single beneficiary, receiving $54,000 of the bequests and trust funds which total $150,000. Thirty-nine employes are to receive one week's salary each. A number of friends and relatives receive the income from trust funds, the principal to revert to the art foundation.

SENATE ADOPTS HARRIS-GLASS DRY PROPOSALS

PARTY LINES BROKEN IN MELLON'S DEFEAT

Amendment Must Go Back to House, Where Another Battle May Result.

By ALBERT W. FOX.

After an all day debate the Senate voted $24,250,000 for additional prohibition enforcement. The fiat $24,000,000 is provided in the amendment of Senator Harris, of Georgia, tacked on to the deficiency bill. This amendment carried by a vote of 50-27.

The additional $250,000 was called for by the amendment of Senator Glass, of Virginia, and is to be used for an investigation of the prohibition problem. No roll call was taken on the Glass amendment.

The Senate vote does not necessarily mean that the additional appropriation will actually be contained in the deficiency bill when it is finally approved. The conference report, now amended, must go back to the House and the House may or may not strike out the $24,000,000.

As finally revised, the Harris amendment reads as follows:

"For increasing the enforcement force, $24,000,000, or such part thereof as the President may deem useful to be allocated by the President, as he may see fit, to the departments or bureaus charged with the enforcement of the national prohibition act, and to remain available until June 30, 1930."

Party Lines Are Broken.

The line-up of the vote was without precedent. Drys voted on the so-called wet side, and wets voted for the program demanded by the drys, because of the complicated phase of the question presented.

As the administration did not desire the $24,000,000 proffered, and as Secretary Mellon has stated that he can not use it, Republican drys, like Senators Borah, Curtis and Jones voted against the appropriation.

On the other hand, avowed Democratic wets like Senators Bruce and Tydings, of Maryland; Edwards, of New Jersey, and others opposed to the Volstead act, voted for the appropriation. They took the position that prohibition can not be enforced and therefore voted for the additional amount in order to further a demonstration of their contention.

The Republican lines split badly with senators dividing between their support of the administration and their desire to go on record for the cause demanded by the drys even against the wishes of the administration.

The Democratic lines held almost intact in support of the appropriation, there being an openly expressed determination by the Democrats to go counter to the wishes of Secretary Mellon.

Results of Roll Call.

The roll call was as follows:

For the amendment:

Republicans — Brookhart, Capper, Couzens, Dale, Deneen, Frazier, McMaster, Norris, Nye, Pine, Sackett, Schall, Vandenberg—13.

Farmer-Labor—Shipstead—1.

Total, 50.

Against the amendment:

Republicans—Bingham, Blaine, Borah, Curtis, Edge, Glenn, Gould, Hale, Hastings, Johnson, Jones, Keyes, McNary, Metcalf, Moses, Oddie, Phipps, Reed, of Pennsylvania; Shortridge, Smoot, Steiwer, Thomas, of Idaho; Warren, Waterman—24.

Democrats—Bruce, Kendrick, Reed, of Missouri—3.

Limit of Debate Fails.

Debate on the Harris amendment was opened by Senator Bruce.

An early effort of Senator Curtis to limit debate failed by objection of Senator Wheeler, but a renewed effort by Curtis was agreed to. This limited speeches to ten minutes, after Senator Tyson had finished a prepared speech.

Senators Norris, Simmons, Heflin, Smith, Bratton, Reed, of Missouri; Caraway, Shortridge and Brookhart participated in the debate up to the time of the vote.

(Copyright, 1929, by United Press.)

Despite the strict rule of secrecy surrounding executive sessions of the Senate, the roll call by which the Senate confirmed the nomination of Roy O. West, of Illinois, to be Secretary of Interior was obtained yesterday by the United Press.

Fifteen Democrats, 11 Republicans and 1 Farmer-Laborite voted against confirmation of West. Twenty-two Democrats and 32 Republicans favored the nomination.

The line-up revealed by a split among the Democrats enabled the Republicans to offset the insurgent defections and force confirmation by a total vote of 54 to 27.

Unusual efforts were made to keep even the official totals of the vote secret. The Senate itself voted overwhelmingly not to make the roll call or the vote public.

Following is the roll call:

3-ALARM FIRE RUINS HOLY NAME CHURCH

Incendiarism Is Suspected by Rector; Detectives to Make Inquiries.

ALTARS ARE DESTROYED

The interior and roof of Holy Name Catholic Church, 918 Eleventh street northeast, was badly damaged and altar furnishings destroyed in a three alarm fire discovered yesterday afternoon at 4:24 o'clock, the origin of which church authorities believe to have been incendiary.

Detectives have been employed by the church to seek a man who was seen loitering about the building early this week. The church was open to worshipers at the time of the fire, but no one was in the building at the time, so far as is now known.

Nine fire engines and three trucks responded to the three alarms, three companies on each call. Fire Chief Watson came on the second alarm, accompanied by Deputy Chief James Kelliher. Acting Deputy Chief Groves answered the third.

Deputy Chief J. H. Virnstein, who answered the first call, received particles of falling debris and dust in his eyes while he was in the interior of the building. He was taken to Casualty Hospital for removal of the particles.

Firemen attacked the blaze through the roof and inside the building. It originated in the rear portion of the structure, behind the altar, eating away the rear curved wall of the altar recess and climbing upward toward the roof.

The Rev. J. W. Dowling, pastor, and the Rev. Thomas A. Calnan, assistant pastor, were in the church rectory next door at the time of discovery. They saw smoke coming out of the windows and made an unsuccessful at-

FAST ELECTRIC CAR HITS BUS, KILLING 17

Crash, in Blinding Snow Near Bellevue, Ohio, Causes Injuries to 15.

WRECKAGE PINS VICTIMS

Bellevue, Ohio, Jan. 22 (A.P.).—Seventeen passengers on a motor bus, eastbound for Pittsburgh, were killed outright, and fifteen were injured when an electric interurban car, coming out of a blinding snowstorm, crashed into the bus on a double crossing a mile and a half east of here today.

The terrific impact came almost before the passengers in either the bus or the car had time to realize what was going to happen.

The snow was so thick that all was invisible beyond a few feet. Edward Butler, of Cleveland, driver of the bus, pulled within 20 feet of the interurban tracks, got out and wiped off his windshield, which had become coated with ice, and looked in both directions. He saw nothing.

Then he climbed into the bus and started across the tracks. When he was about half way the interurban loomed out of the fury of the snowstorm.

Thomas Scheyler, of Fremont, Ohio, motorman on the interurban, frantically shut off the power and applied the brakes. But there was no chance. The trolley crashed the bus squarely in the center, hurtled into the air and descended on the wrecked vehicle with such force that it obliterated everything but the chassis.

The mass of broken steel, which was all that was left of the palatial parlor car bus, was carried 20 feet under the trucks of the car and then landed in a ditch at the side of the interurban tracks. The electric car remained upright, and although its passengers were

TWO LINERS ATTEMPT TO SPEED TO RESCUE

S. S. AMERICA ALSO BATTLES HUGE WAVES

Boats Smashed, the Florida Tells of Vast Seas and Great Havoc Aboard.

New York, Jan. 22 (A.P.).—With a northwest gale howling along the ocean seven ships were in difficulty of one sort or another today, two of them pleading for immediate assistance lest they be submerged in the storm and the silence of another arousing fears that it already has foundered.

The American tanker Dannedalke and the Italian freighter Florida were disabled in tremendous seas some 800 miles off the Virginia Capes and the liners America and President Harrison sped to their rescue.

The British freighter Teesbridge asked for immediate assistance from southeast of Cape Race yesterday but then her wireless was silenced and although the British steamers Maine and Caucasier searched the vicinity all day no trace of the Teesbridge could be found.

The combined crews of the Teesbridge, the Florida and the Dannedalke number approximately 100 men.

Other Ships in Trouble.

Other ships that figured in the day's news of distress were the liner President Garfield, still hung up on a coral reef in the Bahamas where she grounded two days ago; the four-masted schooner Kingway, which burned to the water at Broad Cove, Me., where it was laid up for the winter; the Norwegian steamer Terne, which still was held in ice that may imprison it all winter although it had escaped, at least for the time being, the destruction that threatened it yesterday on the rocks of Friars Head at the entrance to Marcaree, Nova Scotia, and the Diesel trawler Mariner, disabled off Nantucket and under tow for Boston.

The distress calls from the Florida and the Dannedalke came within a few minutes of each other. Wireless stations ashore picked up the S O S from the Florida first, reporting that her rudder was broken and her lifeboats smashed. Then the captain of the President Harrison relayed word from the Dannedalke, only about 50 miles from the Florida, that she needed help at once and was encountering "very tremendous" seas.

No Details Are Given.

The message from the Dannedalke did not tell the nature of her distress but it was generally believed that she had been battered into helplessness by huge waves such as splintered the rudder and boats of the Florida and poured through smashed hatches into the stokehold of the Teesbridge, destroying the power by which she might otherwise have directed the Maine and Caucasier to her rescue.

The United States liner America was about 350 miles from the Florida and Dannedalke when they called for the aid and the dollar liner President Harrison was only 150 miles distant. Both were expected to be on the scene before daylight tomorrow. The President Harrison is commanded by Capt. J. V. Guthrie and the America by Capt. George Fried, hero of the famous Antinoe rescue several years ago.

Mrs. O. O. Hammonds, Aid of Oklahoma Governor, Drawn Into Case.

Oklahoma City, Okla., Jan. 22 (A.P.).—The Oklahoma House of Representatives late today voted a sixth impeachment charge against Henry S. Johnston, suspended governor, while committees of both the house and senate continued their investigations into rumors of official corruption in the Johnston administration.

The sixth article of impeachment alleged the illegal employment by Johnston of Kirby Fitzpatrick, formerly of Ardmore, as a special attorney for the State banking department. The vote was 60 to 36. Five other counts against Johnston have been adopted by the house and sent to the senate.

The name of Mrs. O. O. Hammonds, comely confidential secretary of Johnston, figured prominently in hearings of both house and senate investigating committees. She is charged by political enemies with wielding great influence over Johnston's official acts.

Maryland Bill Orders Death By Gas Instead of Hanging

Meyers, of Baltimore, Introduces Measure Providing Execution Method Used Now Only by Nevada; Held to Kill Painlessly in Three Minutes.

(By a Staff Correspondent).

Statehouse, Annnapolis, Md., Jan. 22.—The Maryland General Assembly has been asked to substitute the administration of lethal gas for hanging as the means of imposing the death penalty in the State.

The senate committee on judicial proceedings tonight had before it a bill introduced by Senator John L. Meyers (Democrat), Baltimore, which would authorize the administration of lethal gas to all persons sentenced to death on or after January 1, 1930.

"The warden of the Maryland Penitentiary is hereby authorized and directed to provide and maintain a permanent death chamber within the confines of said penitentiary, and which said death chamber shall have all the necessary appliancees for the proper execution of felons by the administration of lethal gas," the bill reads. Under the bill, the wardens of the penitentiary would supervise the execution in the presence of the sheriff of the county or city where the felon was indicted and in the presence of not less than six nor more than twelve persons, including the penitentiary physician.

Nevada is the only State in which persons sentenced to death are executed by the use of lethal gas. In that State the condemned man is secured to a chair in a heated chamber and the gas forced in the room through a tiny opening. Physicians attending the few executions that have occurred have stated that death results in less than three minutes, without suffering to the condemned. The system has been pronounced to be more humane than any in use.

turned her from her course, the President Harrison reported by wireless that she still hoped to reach the Dannedalke some time tonight, but that at the moment she was "practically hove to." At the Radio Marine Corporation, where the message was picked up, this was taken to indicate that the President Harrison had run into the belt of heavy weather that had disabled the freighters and might be delayed considerably.

The German steamer Yorck, bound for Bremen from Galveston, is also proceeding to the assistance of the Florida, she reported to the Cape Race (Newfoundland) radio station. She was 180 miles distant from the distressed vessels when she received the S O S today.

Dannedalke Fails to Reply.

Norfolk, Va., Jan. 22 (A.P.).—Fate of the American tanker Dannedalke, reported in a sinking condition 800 miles off the Virginia Capes at 10:30 o'clock this morning, was unknown here early tonight.

Naval Radio Communications here was informed by Washington of the receipt there of a radio message from the stricken tanker requesting aid and although the Norfolk station attempted throughout today to "raise" the vessel officers in charge reported late today they had met with no success.

A radio message from the U. S. S. President Harrison was intercepted stating that she was steaming to the rescue, but further than this nothing had been determined.

The President Harrison did not give her position. The Dannedalke was last reported at Sabine, Tex., January 12, and was said to be bound to Hamburg.

Garfield Passengers Sail.

Nassau, Bahamas, Jan. 22 (A.P.).—Some of the passengers of the Dollar liner, President Garfield, which still is on its reef in the north of this island group, sailed today for Havana on the steamship California. The others were notified by Stanley Dollar, of the line, that the President Harrison probably would start for the Bahamas on Friday or Saturday if the Garfield still is fast aground. He assured them that the company would pay their bills at the New Colonial Hotel and expressed the hope that they would continue their voyage.

One of them who left today was Mrs. R. P. McCullough, who is en route to Cristobal, Canal Zone, to join her husband, Capt. McCullough, of the U. S. S. Oregon, of the Pacific fleet. Others were Miss Alice McHose and M. E. Pinckard, who are going to the home of their parents in Los Angeles, for their wedding, and Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Jacobs, of New York.

Viper-Bitten Curator Recovering; Snake Dies

St. Louis, Mo., Jan. 22 (A.P.).—A deadly poison Gaboun viper, which bit R. Marlin Perkins, curator of reptiles at the St. Louis Zoo December 31, is dead. Perkins, in a hospital since he was bitten, will recover.

In announcing the death of the snake, zoological attendants said it died of pneumonia. Perkins, who underwent two blood transfusions, is said to be the only person known to have been bitten by a Gaboun viper and lived.

Guatemalan Rebel Leaders Executed

Chiefs Face Firing Squads and Country Now Is Quiet, Says Government.

Guatemala City, Jan. 22 (A.P.).—The government announced tonight that the revolution has been totally suppressed. Leaders captured by loyal government forces have been summarily tried and executed by firing squads, but their number was not given. Outside of the fighting for the cities of Quezaltanango and Retahulue, there was no other bloodshed during the three-day revolt.

The police announced discovery of the plotters, who sent an infernal machine to President Chacon.

Demobilization of volunteers has begun with the same speed as when the army mobilized and moved into the affected area by mail, automobile and trucks.

The rebel forces of Quezaltenango fled before government forces, who now are pursuing them. They took all the money in sight, public and private.

Skidding Taxi Wrecks Auto and Six Other Cars

Skidding on ice coated Calvert street bridge early this morning, an automobile operated by an unidentified man forced a taxicab to smash against the safety railing, and injure its two fares, caused six trailing automobiles to pile up and delayed street car traffic across the span for an hour.

The taxicab was operated by F. J. Milbert, of 1739 F street northwest. Milbert obtained the number of the automobile, which halted after the taxicab was wrecked, but failed to get the driver's name. Milbert's two fares, Miss E. F. Glynn, of 2505 Thirteenth street northwest and M. J. Murray, of 3308 Thirteenth street northwest, were cut and bruised but refused to go to a hospital.

Bard E. Carl, 33-year-old railroad brakeman, of Mount Ida, Va., suffered amputation of both legs early yesterday evening when he fell between moving cars in Potomac Yards, Va. He is in a critical condition at Emergency Hospital.

The injured man was brought to this city in an Alexandria ambulance and treated by Dr. A. K. Shands, sr., and Dr. A. K. Shands, jr., of 903 Sixteenth street northwest. Carl's legs were cut off below the knees.

MOVEMENT TO OUST M'BRIDE IS GROWING

Must Step Down or Fight, Says Dr. A. H. Briggs, Anti-Saloon League Director.

SEES CHANGES NEEDED

(United Press.)

The proposed shake-up in the Anti-saloon League, announced exclusively Monday by the United Press, gained headway yesterday with a definite inea-council movement to curtail activities of F. Scott McBride, general superintendent, and appoint the Rev. Edwin C. Dinwiddie as legislative superintendent of the league to take over some of the work now under McBride's jurisdiction.

Some officials of the league regard the action of Bishops Nicholson, president, and Cannon, of the executive committee, in condemning Secretary of the Treasury Mellon's stand against the $25,000,000 additional prohibition appropriation after McBride sided with Mellon as a repudiation of the general superintendent.

"There are only two things McBride can do in view of the bishops' action," Dr. A. H. Briggs, director of the league and superintendent of the California division, told the United Press. "He can step down gracefully or fight."

Briggs said there were "certain internal situations" in the league which might become critical.

"Under the present system the league is an oligarchy," he said. "It is a one-man organization and the league is too big for one man to handle. What we need is a complete change to make it a democratic organization."

Critics of McBride, who assumed leadership in the league following the death of Wayne B. Wheeler, say he made conflicting statements on the $24,000,000 appropriation, and has made numerous speaking trips away from the Capital which have jeopardized the dry leadership of the league.

McBride Prepares to Fight.

They believe he has neglected his legislative duties because of pressure of work as general superintendent and that he should resign as legislative representative.

But, according to hose close to the inner council, McBride will not relinquish the coveted position, regarded as the most powerful in the league, without a fight which may shake the dry organization to its very foundation.

Both the general superintendent and those seeking to oust him as legislative representative are firmly intrenched with large groups of supporters within the league.

All factions appear willing to permit McBride to continue as general superintendent, a purely administrative position, but a strong group of directors are in favor of curtailing his power and authority.

Under the league's constitution, the general superintendent is a virtual dictator. He can appoint State superintendents and if the appointments are refused by the board of directors can carry the appointments to the executive committee. McBride is said to control the present committee.

Ousted by Wheeler.

If the Rev. Mr. Dinwiddie is appointed legislative superintendent of the league he will resume a post he held for 21 years prior to the time he was ousted in 1910 by Wayne B. Wheeler.

At the present time he is serving as legislative representative for 20 dry organizations.

The movement to join all prohibition organizations under one head, with the league as an integral part, has found favor with many dry leaders.

The newly created national conference of organizations supporting the eighteenth amendment is said to be prominent among associations mentioned as ready to assume dry leadership.

Dr. Briggs said he favored coordination of all organizations with a legislative superintendent empowered to speak for all dry, instead of the numerous, and sometimes conflicting, legislative representatives speaking for individual organizations.

Defense Will Call Huntress to Stand

Believed Mrs. Wilson Will Claim Shooting Husband Followed Threats.

New York, Jan. 22.—The climax of the trial of Mrs. Esther Evans De Forest Wilson, Washington, D. C., society matron, for the shooting of her husband, Dallett H. Wilson, will come tomorrow, when she takes the stand in her own defense—her only witness.

Mrs. Wilson, it is believed, will plead self-defense in the shooting. The groundwork for her plea was chivalrously laid for her by her husband when the lawyer reluctantly testified for the State last week. At that time he told that in the altercation between them, preceding the shooting, he had grabbed a heavy bronze paper weight and started toward her.

Assistant District Attorney James McDonald, however, will endeavor to show not only that Mrs. Wilson deliberately aimed at and shot him twice, but that her action was premeditated. He has in his possession a letter of warning sent to Wilson by a Washington man who told him last January that Mrs. Wilson was then carrying a loaded revolver around with her. The case is expected to go to the jury tomorrow afternoon.

Baptist Funds Taken By Officer, Say Charges

Louisville, Ky., Jan. 22 (A.P.).—Two indictments charging Albert Nisbet, blind attorney and former magistrate, with embezzlement of the funds of the Baptist Tabernacle were returned by the Jefferson County grand jury today. Nisbet was treasurer of the building fund and a trustee of the church.

Assistant Commonwealth's Attorney Mayer said that the jury's report did not complete the investigation of Nisbet's affairs. The indictments charge that Nisbet converted to his own use $20,000, the proceeds of a mortgage loan executed in the name of the tabernacle, and $2,048 of the church building fund.

ACCUSED ATTORNEY LINKED WITH BIRGER

WOMAN RECALLS TALKS

East St. Louis, Ill., Jan. 22 (A.P.).—Government witnesses told a Federal court jury today that Arlie O. Boswell, former State's attorney of Williamson County, Ill., sought to obtain a commutation or reprieve for Charlie Birger, notorious Illinois gangster, who was executed last year.

They testified in the trial of Boswell, three other former enforcement officers of Williamson County, and an alleged bootlegger, accused jointly of conspiracy to violate the national prohibition act by protecting the Birger gangsters in liquor traffic.

Deputy Sheriff Jesse Wheat, of Franklin County, where Birger was hanged for the murder of Mayor Joe Adams of West City, testified that Boswell visited Birger several times in the death cell, discussing the possibility of commutation or reprieve.

Wheat said Birger asked a visitor if Boswell were going to Springfield, Ill., to seek executive clemency. When the visitor replied, "I think he is," Wheat said Birger remarked, "He had better go or I'll send him to the same hole I'm going to."

Roy Martin, State's attorney of Franklin County, who prosecuted Birger, testified that Boswell sought commutation of Birger's sentence before the State board of pardons and paroles. Mrs. Art Newman, wife of Birger's lieutenant, who is under several life imprisonment sentences, testified that she accompanied her husband and Connie Ritter, a gangster yet at large, on a "collection trip." She said that in Marion the men counted the money and set aside a portion for the State's attorney.

C. Ray Smith and William Fowler, assistant State's attorney under Boswell, and Mrs. Opal Davis, formerly his secretary, said Birger and other gangsters had visited Boswell in his offices and had held conferences.

Other defendants are George Bell, former coroner of Williamson County; H. T. Boyd, former chief of police of Marion, Ill., and Pete Salmo, alleged bootlegger.

Autopsy Ordered In Woman's Death

Downtown Store Employe Dies Suddenly After Brief Illness.

Miss Nora Gowl, an employe in a downtown furniture store, died suddenly yesterday afternoon in her room at 1324 Massachusetts avenue northwest. Dr. Joseph Rogers, deputy coroner, ordered an autopsy performed today.

Miss Gowl had been ill recently. She was treated Monday night by Dr. Rogers, who was summoned to the house after roomers had found her crumpled on the floor of her room. Miss Katie B. Leachman, landlady, attempted to revive the stricken woman, but to no avail.

Miss Gowl is employed at the Hub Furniture Store, but did not report to work yesterday. The young woman is a native of Harrisonburg, Va., and was said to have been about 30 years old. Her sister, Mrs. Annie Myers, of Harrisonburg, was notified of her death.

J. T. A. Ely Divorces His Washington Wife

Special to The Washington Post.

Chicago, Jan. 22.—John T. A. Ely, son of Dr. Richard T. Ely, noted political economist and member of the Northwestern University faculty, won a divorce today before Circuit Judge Friend from Mrs. Ruth Mallory Ely, of Washington, D. C. It was a default hearing on a bill charging desertion.

Attorney Leo Weisskopf, Chicago counsel for Mrs. Ely, tried to postpone the trial, telling the court that his client was intimidated and afraid to come to Chicago. Attorney Benjamin H. Ehrlich, representing the husband, produced evidence that the wife had been served with due legal notice of the proceedings and the judge agreed to hear the case. The trial ended four years of litigation.

Byrd Flier's Letter Is 43 Days En Route

A message of greeting that took 43 days to reach its destination, was received by William E. Peake, of The Post staff yesterday from Capt. Alton N. Parker, one of the aviators accompanying Commander Richard E. Byrd on his Antarctic expedition.

"We are dodging icebergs now instead of autos on Pennsylvania avenue. I hope to have some interesting flights around the South Pole region soon," the letter reads in part. The letter was written December 10 last, while the expedition was passing through the Ross Sea. It was relayed via New Zealand.

Prisoner Is Sentenced To Kiss Mother-in-Law

Special to The Washington Post.

New York, Jan. 22.—Probably the most unusual punishment ever meted out to a prisoner in a court of law was inflicted today in Bridge Plaza Court, Brooklyn, on Louis Orefice, 21 years old, by Magistrate Jacob Eilperin. He was made to kiss his mother-in-law affectionately.

Louie was charged with smacking his wife, Rose, 19, so heartily on January 12 that her eyes were blackened. Her mother, Mrs. Jennie Orsano, was visiting them at the time. Rather than have Orefice held for special sessions, the two women dropped the charge.

"You are a loafer, Louie," the magistrate told him, "and it is due entirely to the kindness and generosity of your mother-in-law that your discharge is made possible. Kiss your wife." Orefice did so sheepishly.

"Now kiss your mother-in-law," ordered the magistrate, "and affectionately, too."

The prisoner complied, but with obvious reluctance.

Ritchie Asks More In Budget Message

Increase in 1930 Over 1929 Is Largely Due to Retired Teachers' Fund.

Special to The Washington Post.

Annapolis, Md., Jan. 22.—Gov. Albert C. Ritchie's budget message carrying recommended appropriations for the fiscal years 1930 and 1931 was delivered to the Maryland general assembly tonight on reconvening of the two houses after a six-day recess. More than a score of new bills were sent to the clerks' desks in the two houses as the members got down to detail work.

Gov. Ritchie recommended appropriations for 1930 aggregating $26,504,765.84 and for 1931, $27,204,398.19. The increase for 1931 over the budget for 1929 is $1,281,863.84, made necessary for the most part, the governor pointed out in his message, by increased payments under the teachers' retirement act of 1927. This item, the largest to come out of the general fund, is $957,301. Recommended increases in facilities for the State's insane aggregate $152,586.

Gov. Ritchie advised the assembly that the appropriations for 1930 and 1931 may be made without increasing the present tax rate, which is 25.74.

Special funds now in the State treasury will account for $324,562 of the recommended appropriations. Monies estimated to be receivable from grade crossing and lateral roads taxes will account for $167,866 and license fees for automobiles will account for $33,790.

R. L. WELCH, OIL MAN, FOUND DEAD BY SHOT

WAS LONG IN ILL HEALTH

Phoenix, Ariz., Jan. 22 (A.P.).—Word reached here last night that R. L. Welch, general secretary of the American Petroleum Institute, had been found dead in his desert home north of here. Death apparently was caused by a self-inflicted bullet. He was found in the bathroom by his brother, who heard a shot fired. A pistol lay nearby.

Welch was said to have been in ill health when he and his brother came here some time ago to live on the desert.

New York, Jan. 22 (A.P.).—Robert Leslie Welch, general secretary and counsel of the American Petroleum Institute, who was found dead in the desert home of his brother outside Phoenix, Ariz., had been associated with the oil industry throughout the country for fifteen years and directed the organization of the Petroleum Institute immediately after the war.

While practicing law in Knoxville, Iowa, where he was born 49 years ago, Mr. Welch was retained by the Iowa Oil Jobbers Association, and later was counsel for the now defunct Western Oil Jobbers Association in Chicago. From there he went to Kansas City as attorney for the Western Petroleum Refiners Association, where he was appointed at the entry of the United States into the World War to the National Petroleum War Service Commission, a price-fixing organization. After the war he joined the Petroleum Institute and had been associated with it up to the time of his death.

He had been in ill health for some time, and had gone with his wife and two daughters to Arizona last week in an effort to recover.

Mr. Welch was graduated from Des Moines College, attended the Harvard Law School and received his law degree from Northwestern University.

Besides his wife and two daughters, he is survived by his mother, two sisters, and a brother, James J. Welch, vice president of the Western Union Telegraph Co.

Three Sing Sing Convicts Escape; One Captured

Ossining, N. Y., Jan. 22 (A.P.).—Three prisoners escaped from Sing Sing Prison tonight shortly before the inmates were locked in their cells.

A short time after a guard saw them climbing a fence outside the prison walls. One of the men was captured a mile from the prison, on the New York Central Railroad tracks.

Humiliated on Honeymoon, Says Wife; Granted Divorce

Mrs. Thomas McKean Charges Husband, Descendant of Declaration Signer, Left Her Among Camel Drivers on Nile Boat; Recalls Outbursts of Rage.

Chester, Pa., Jan. 22—(N.Y.W.N.S.).—A honeymoon in Europe and Egypt, when she was left by her husband to sit among Arabs and camel drivers on the deck of a Nile River boat, while he locked himself in his stateroom and slept, was the story told by Mrs. Catherine Johnston McKean, who was granted a divorce in the Delaware County courts today from Thomas McKean, wealthy Philadelphia clubman and a lineal descendant of Thomas McKean, one of the signers of the Declaration of Independence.

Claiming to have been repeatedly humiliated by her husband's frequent displays of temper and consequent misbehavior, Mrs. McKean, daughter of an old Philadelphia family, told the story of a ten months' honeymoon tour that was marked by antics on the part of her husband which, for the most part, kept him apart from his bride during the entire trip.

The Nile River boat incident, Mrs. McKean said, was but one of many similar acts by McKean. The couple were sitting on the deck of the vessel when suddenly McKean arose and went to his stateroom, leaving his wife sitting among a group of ill-smelling Arabs and camel drivers.

Another instance when McKean acted "cruelly," his wife testified, was at a fashionable dance at the home of Anthony J. Drexel, well-known Philadelphia financier. A colonial dance was in progress and members of old Philadelphia families, to the number of 50 or more, were present.

"Mr. McKean," his wife said, "asked Mrs. George McFadden to dance a cotillion and he understood her to say that she would. In the meantime a gentleman asked for her and so when he came up to take her to the cotillion, she said, 'I am sorry; I am going to dance with Mr. Scott,' and my husband behaved to her as he behaved to me. He jumped up and down and said that he would not speak to her as long as he lived.

"In his rage he said a lot of things about the McFadden family; he said, 'Your family was washing dishes when my family was signing the Declaration of Independence.' Mrs. McFadden started to cry. I was frightfully mortified at my husband's conduct. Mr. McKean wrote a very polite apology some time after this incident."

McKean had an income of $100,000 annually, but when his wife asked for oranges he refused to buy them, yet he bought oranges for his own breakfast, she declared. On their honeymoon he forced her to live in "a cheap Paris flat."

"He never made any display of affection," she said. "It was so mortifying for me to have to go around by myself as a bride. No other bride was alone like that.

"While in Paris, on one occasion he took me to a concert and, just because the usher ushered Mr. McKean into the wrong aisle, he tore up the tickets and walked me home. It was in the early part of March and very cold.

"Mr. McKean had a valet for whom he had a tremendous fancy," testified Mrs. McKean. "He had his valet's picture hanging over his bed with a crucifix, and other people talked about that. He told me that the valet was his best friend."

Mr. and Mrs. McKean were married in St. Mark's Church, Philadelphia, by the Rev. Alfred G. Mortimer, and the wedding was a prominent social affair. They lived in Philadelphia and Radnor after their return from their honeymoon abroad.

HOLY NAME CHURCH DAMAGED BY BLAZE

tempt to enter the building. An alarm was turned in by an unidentified person before they could call for aid.

Unable to Enter Door.

Father Dowling ran to the rear of the building and attempted to enter the altar through the back door of the sacristy. He was forced back by flames and smoke which met him at the door and which had already climbed up the back of the rear altar wall to the roof.

Firemen arrived on the scene a few minutes after Father Dowling was forced from the flames, and by crawling on their stomachs under the smoke managed to reach the flames. The first hose was run in from the rear, where access to the flames was easiest.

A ladder and hose were run up to the front of the church to the roof where firemen gained access to the fire from above through a dead-air space between the ceiling and the roof. Meanwhile a crowd of several hundred persons gathered before the building to watch firemen make their way along the sharp angle of the roof to the rear end.

Debris Endangers Firemen.

Inside the building in the main hall firemen fought to extinguish the fire amid falling plaster and debris which narrowly missed several men. Chief Virnstein, who received particles of debris in his eye, was the only one injured.

While firemen were hacking at burning lathing and timbers inside church members were hastily removing the church furnishings, including tall candles and gold candlesticks, from the lower floor of the building under the altar.

Fire Chief Watson stayed at the scene until the blaze was entirely extinguished, when he ordered engines and trucks back to their stations, shortly after 6 o'clock.

Fire Was Incendiary, Says Pastor.

The fire is believed to have been set by an unknown person, possibly the man seen about the church early this week, according to Father Dowling, pastor. "I am absolutely certain that the church was set afire by some one," he stated yesterday evening.

One woman across the street saw a man leave the church at the time the fire started, he declared. Private detectives have been asked to investigate the origin of the blaze.

No one was in the building at the time of the fire, Father Dowling stated. The altar candles are burned only at services, he explained, and could not possibly have been the cause. The altar itself is the main altar of the church, constructed entirely of wood, and is at least 40 years old.

Besides destroying the altar, the fire and water poured on it damaged the sanctuary, the main body of the church and the organ, which was thought to be "ruined." The roof of the building, of tin, was also slightly damaged.

Refinishing Necessary.

It will be necessary to refinish the entire interior of the church and to replace the destroyed altar furnishings. Father Dowling declared it impossible to estimate the amount of damage at the present time. Father Calnan, assistant pastor, roughly estimated the damage at $20,000 to $30,000 or more.

Fire Marshal Sieb was at the fire, but declined to estimate the damage last night. He will report on the fire today.

Church services will be held Sunday in the basement of the building, Father Dowling announced. The basement was undamaged except for water seepage from the altar above.

Repairs will be made at once, Father Calnan stated last night. The church will be restored as nearly as possible to its former condition, with some improvements.

Supply of Wine Intact.

Reports that the fire was started by thieves in search of a bottle of wine, who possibly dropped a candle while rummaging for wine stored behind the altar, were discredited by Father Calnan. He stated that a thorough search failed to reveal evidence of any theft of wine. Several bottles had been found missing about a week ago, but none were removed yesterday.

Julia M. Brosnahan, 618 K street northeast, and John K. Kearnes were to have been married in the church, decorated for the ceremony, at the time of the fire.

Father Downing performed the marriage ceremony in the rectory next door while firemen were still fighting the altar fire. The on-lookers applauded the couple when they emerged from the rectory after the marriage.

Poincare Again Gets Vote of Confidence

Paris, Jan. 22 (A.P.).—For the second time in a fortnight, Premier Raymond Poincare today won a vote of confidence in the French chamber. The deputies voted 327 to 262 to support the government.

The confidence expressed was particularly welcome to the premier at this time because of the approaching reparations negotiations and the question of ratification of the Briand-Kellogg pact for renunciation of war.

Young May Conduct Reparation Parley

American Regarded Likely Choice at Coming Meeting of Commission.

Paris, Jan. 22 (A.P.).—Arrival here today of the Japanese members of the new committee on reparations revived speculation concerning organization of the commission. There was general opinion in governmental and financial circles that Owen B. Young of the United States, would be named president of the body.

For political reasons Germany would object to a French chairman and a British presiding officer would be opposed for the same reasons. It was generally admitted that it would be impossible to name a German head of the commission.

Washington dispatches which reached here via London predicted that Mr. Young would refuse to serve as president, but this failed to shake the confidence of French observers that he would be chosen and would accept. They said the post belonged to him by right for his excellent work on the Dawes committee.

German Ship Line Given $2,000,000.

Bremen, Germany, Jan. 22 (A.P.).—The North German Lloyd Steamship Co. today received $2,000,000 from the alien property custodian of the United States. The payment was the first installment to the company on an agreement for restitution for property taken over when the United States entered the war.

CRUISER BILL FOES GIVE UP FILIBUSTER

Hale Now Says He Has Votes to Pass Measure; Cut in Ships Proposed.

WARREN ISSUES WARNING

(Associated Press.)

The filibuster threatening the year-old cruiser construction bill almost disappeared yesterday as the Senate drove ahead with the long pending deficiency appropriation measure, which has been standing in the way of the naval program.

On the verge of a return to the naval bill, which would authorize fifteen new cruisers and one aircraft carrier, Senate leaders were confident last night of their ability to press it to a final vote within a short period. Unwilling to take any chance on a filibuster, they are preparing to keep it before the Senate until acted upon.

After Senator Norris, of Nebraska, leader of the Republican independents, had passed out word yesterday against a filibuster on the naval bill, which a group he heads is ready to oppose, Senator Curtis, of Kansas, the Republican leader, a short while later obtained an agreement to limit debate on the pending proposal to increase prohibition enforcement funds to ten minutes to each senator.

Would Reduce Ships.

A number of the group opposed to the naval measure, said yesterday that they had no intention of conducting a deliberate filibuster, but made clear their intentions to resist it with the hope of obtaining some form of modification of its provisions.

Meanwhile, it became known that President Coolidge feels the naval bill, one of the last major pieces of administration legislation still pending, should be acted upon, and at the same time Chairman Hale of the Senate naval committee, in charge of the bill, expressed confidence that he could drive it through the Senate without material change from the form in which it passed the House.

Once he gets going on it again he and its supporters are ready to go into long daily sessions in the effort to obtain a vote as soon as possible. Opponents are going to try to reduce the authorization from fifteen to ten or to five cruisers.

They also expect to line up behind the proposal of President Coolidge to eliminate the clause to require completion of the new cruiser program within three years. However, Senator Hale is confident also of the votes to block even the Coolidge proposal.

Warren Issues Warnings.

Returning to work on the naval bill, its proponents intend to leave the debate from now on almost entirely to the opposition which so far has not uttered a word on the legislation. In the short time it was before the Senate prior to the consideration of the urgent deficiency appropriation bill, the cruiser measure was discussed in lengthy prepared addresses only by its proponents.

The group rallying to the support of the naval measure is not relaxing any in its vigil by virtue of the protestations of some of the foes against a filibuster, and they were ready last night to make a determined drive for early action, and to ask for night sessions, if necessary.

The veteran Senator Warren of Wyoming, the chairman of the appropriations committee, gave the Senate notice yesterday, that he was tired of the debate on the deficiency appropriation bill, and that he would demand its passage before adjournment, no matter what the hour.

Norris Upsets Program.

The program of Senate leaders, however, to dispose of the deficiency appropriation bill last night was upset by Senator Norris with a protest that the proposal of Senator McKellar (Democrat), Tennessee, for placing re-

Russians Convict Eight Of Soviet Official Killings

Moscow, Jan. 22 (U.P.).—Seven land owners and a Mohammedan priest were sentenced to death in the village of Sayat, Chardjui District, Turkestan, today for the murder of a member of the Soviet election committee.

The sentences were part of a vigorous Soviet campaign to wipe out the opposition of Kulaks (rich peasants) who, it is charged, recently have been attacking and killing government officials.

funds under supervision of the Board of Tax Appeals required longer debate.

The Nebraskan also objected to an earlier meeting hour today when Chairman Warren of the appropriations committee warned that the disposition of the annual supply measures was falling far behind schedule. Senator Robinson, of Arkansas, the Democratic leader, remarked that no alarm need be felt over that, because an extra session of the new Congress was to be held anyway, and that he would not mind if the appropriation bills went over until that time.

KING SOON TO DEPART TO BOGNOR, ON COAST

Removal to Be in a Week or Ten Days; Royal Patient on Solid Diet.

FAILS TO GAIN IN WEIGHT

London, Jan. 22 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—King George is going to Bognor, on the south coast of England, for the first part of his recuperation from the pulmonary illness that nearly resulted in his death, leaving London probably in a week or ten days.

This was officially announced at Buckingham Palace today after five of the king's doctors held a two-hour conference there and issued the most favorable bulletin since the monarch became ill.

"The king had a quiet night," the report began. "His temperature has now remained normal many days and the condition of the pulse is satisfactory. The empyema wound is small and steadily healing. With a returning appetite the amount of nourishment is adequate and includes solid food. Although the general strength shows improvement, there is not, as yet, any appreciable increase in weight. We feel the time is approaching when his majesty's removal to sea air would be advantageous."

At Bognor the king will stay at Craigwell House, a mansion belonging to the multimillionaire baronet, Sir Arthur Du Cros, president of the Dunlop Rubber Co. It is in the little village of Aldwick, about a mile and a half west of Bognor.

Craigwell House is a fine old Sussex manor house which was thoroughly modernized and redecorated nine years ago at a cost of nearly $500,000. It has a fine billiard room, a movie theater and a wonderful organ with one set of pipes in the billiard room and another in a gallery on an upper floor. This organ can be operated like a player piano with music rolls. The house is secluded from the main roads, has a fine terrace overlooking the sea and a private bathing beach.

It is likely that the king will make the journey from London to Bognor by motor. Sir Stanley Hewett probably will accompany the king to Bognor. He has been sleeping at Buckingham Palace ever since the royal patient was operated upon.

Rudyard Kipling called at the palace tonight and spent some time in consultation with officials of the household.

Lithuania Government Signs Kellogg Treaty

Kovno, Lithuania, Jan. 22 (A.P.).—The Lithuanian government today ratified the Kellogg pact.

Ratification of the Kellogg pact by Lithuania has significance in its bearing upon negotiations between Russia and Poland for a special protocol applying the pact in a localized sense to the states that touch the western frontier of Russia. A dispatch from Warsaw Monday night said Poland had suggested it would sign the protocol provided the Soviet government would immediately invite Finland, Esthonia and Latvia to join while Poland, as intermediary, would pass the invitation to Roumania. There was no mention of Lithuania in this Polish proposal.

Poland and Lithuania have been at odds over frontier questions and over Vilna, a city which Lithuania claims as its legitimate capital but which is now held by Poland.

CITIZENS WHO GREETED HOOVER AT MIAMI

him a key to the city big enough to open up a lot of hospitality, and a fishing outfit; then by Mayor Snedigan. The latter, a freckled-faced, red-haired man with plenty of tan, has for his slogan, and this is authoritative: "Welcome to Miami Beach: do what you damned please." But it is doubtful if this is what he said to Mr. Hoover.

The President-elect was in a chuckling mood by the time he reached the Miami Beach mayor, though, and the mayor did not have to say much. Mr. Hoover was chuckling over a Missouri delegation that stood along the line of march holding aloft a placard reading, "Forget our Jim; we are for you." The venerable Senator Reed will probably excommunicate them if he ever learns their names.

Democrats Are Silent.

There were Democrats and Republicans alike in the waiting party, though the former were strangely silent. Gov. Carlton was on hand, and Mrs. Ruth Bryan Owens, daughter of the late William Jennings Bryan and who as the next congresswoman will be one of three Ruths, was in the parade. Of her the Democrats say they do not know whether she is Republican or Democratic and they do not know what to do about it.

In the midst of the gayety, striving to be subdued, there was a solemn note. The widow of the Commoner viewed the procession from a wheel chair contemplating the man who had attained the office which her husband so often sought, and which perhaps in these fastly moving times her daughter may gain.

All of Florida that Mr. Hoover saw today was not that of wealth on vacation which he can comprehend as have few other Presidents.

Until Miami the train raced through tumbled houses, maimed and fallen trees, and the impoverished shacks of people who, given sunshine as much as they are, remain dauntless in the face of recurring hurricanes and exploded real estate booms.

Mr Hoover's host was not present to greet him. He is traveling abroad.

Morrows to Make Visit.

Nassau, Bahamas, Jan. 22 (A.P.).—Dwight W. Morrow, United States Ambassador to Mexico, and Mrs. Morrow, who have been occupying the Elliot Bacon home here for two weeks, will sail on the steamer Northland for Miami tomorrow afternoon. Mr. Morrow expects to pay his respects to President-elect Hoover before leaving for New York on Thursday.

The ambassador will return to his Mexican post early next week. Miss Elizabeth Morrow will remain here, but Miss Anne Morrow is going to Mexico with her father and mother. The Morrows have been coming to Nassau for several winters.

ILLNESS POSTPONES TRIAL OF NORTHCOTT

Alleged Slayer Is Unable to Make "Disclosures" He Has Promised.

DECLARES CLARK BROTHER

Riverside, Calif., Jan. 22 (A.P.).—Stretched on a cot in the detention ward of the Riverside County Hospital, Gordon Stewart Northcott today was forced to postpone "sensational disclosures" which he declared he had planned to make shortly.

Unable to withstand the strain of his single-handed fight against the death penalty the State seeks to impose for the alleged slaying of three boys, Northcott today had his trial continued until Thursday because of inflammation of his throat and eyes.

When illness overtook him, Northcott revealed, he was laying plans to bring out testimony "which may not save me, but will bring out certain things that are not understood now."

"I can prove," Northcott declared, "by my own testimony and the testimony of others that Winifred Clark is my mother and not Sarah Louisa Northcott, and that Sanford Clark in reality is my brother and not my nephew."

Sarah Louisa Northcott is serving a life sentence after pleading guilty to implication in the alleged murders on the Northcott chicken ranch. She claims Northcott is her son and that his father was an English nobleman who died some years ago. Clark is Northcott's chief accuser.

Northcott's plans involved a calling of Winifred Clark as a witness in his behalf. He has received a telegram from her in Vancouver, however, informing him that immigration authorities have declined to admit her to the United States.

Yokohama, Jan. 22 (A.P.).—Louis Harris was arrested today on a warrant from New York charging forgery. He arrived on the steamship President Lincoln from San Francisco traveling as a first-class passenger. He will be held in Yokohama prison pending extradition.

CAPITAL NEGLECTED, CHARGED BY GRIFFIN

his fight for inclusion in the bill of an item of $165,000 to give District employes the raises their efficiency ratings entitle them to receive, and Representative Simmons (Republican), of Nebraska, chairman of the subcommittee, is scheduled to defend the bill as it is written.

Ordinarily, tomorrow would be calendar Wednesday, and the District bill would have to be laid aside. The chances are, however, that the day will be devoted to the bill, and Thursday designated as calendar day. Under such a program, the District bill could be passed early Friday.

Griffin yesterday quoted from a recent report of the Bureau of Efficiency to show that the $1.70 tax rate here is higher than it is in many larger cities. Other cities are not ashamed of their low tax rates, he said, and, therefore, it does not become Congress to find fault with the rate here.

"The tax rate," he said, "does not justify our being mean and picayunish; does not justify us in denying improvements or denying the people here a comfortable city."

Should Be Model City, He Says.

Representative Boylan (Democrat), of New York, said he thought that it was the desire of Americans to make of Washington a model city.

"Washington ought to be a model city," agreed Griffin. "It should have broad streets and avenues, beautiful trees, and stately buildings. It certainly ought to be a model."

For all his earnestness, however Griffin aroused little interest among the members. To begin with, there were only 15 members present although the House was supposed to be sitting as the District's "city council." Here and there members dozed. Others chatted or read. At one stage, Griffin appealed to the chair to stop the "buzzing" in the chamber.

Unscientific, He Declares.

"I have never taken the position that the $9,000,000 lump sum in itself was insufficient," Griffin said; "My attitude has always been that we were never in a position to know precisely the exact financial situation, and not knowing that, I have maintained that it was unscientific to arbitrarily fix a uniform specific sum each year irrespective of the annual expenditures.

"At first blush it seemed that fundamentally the national Government should grant to the District at least the amount of the taxes on Federal property which a citizen deriving the same advantage from the District government would have to pay on the property."

Last year, Griffin said, he estimated that if the Federal Government were compelled to pay taxes on its property here its tax bill would be about $7,055,000. Chairman Simmons, he said, estimated that Uncle Sam's tax bill would be less than that, about $5,819,210. This statement, however, was challenged by Simmons.

Bureau's Estimate Is Cited.

The Bureau of Efficiency, Griffin said, has since calculated that the Federal Government's tax bill would be $7,440,000.

"Last year," he said, "when they (Chairman Simmons and other advocates of the $9,000,000 lump sum policy) maintained that the Federal Government's financial obligation to the District was $5,800,000, they in effect admitted that the difference between that figure and $9,000,000—or $3,200,000—was the value of the vague and indefinite benefits accruing to the United States.

"Now, this year, with the tax indebtedness of the Federal Government fixed by the Bureau of Efficiency at $7,440,000, they rather illogically maintain that $1,555,000 is the proper Federal contribution to the District taxpayers.

"The inexorable laws of logic have no influence on their minds and the inherent absurdity of asserting last year that the contribution should be $3,200,000, but that this year it ought to be only $1,556,000, does not dawn on them. No further elucidation of the illogical inconsistency of the lump-sum theory is needed."

Japanese Admiral Promoted.

CENSOR ON HOOVER SHIP, SAYS HARRISON

STORY READ INTO RECORD

(Associated Press.)

Charges of press censorship on Herbert Hoover's recent tour of South America were brought to the attention of the Senate yesterday by Senator Harrison (Democrat), of Mississippi, in a discussion of what he described as the President-elect's "censored good-will trip.

Senator Harrison said that George Barr Baker, California newspaper man, and former chairman of publicity for the Republican national committee, was the censor. He submitted a story of the censorship charges appearing in a recent edition of Editor and Publisher.

He said that Mr. Baker had been mentioned for the Cabinet but, in view of the request for two White House secretaries, it was possible that there had been some "confusion" as to whether George Akerson or Mr. Baker "was to get this particular place." Akerson now is one of Mr. Hoover's secretaries.

Says Every One Knows It.

"Everybody knows that this censorship was imposed," the Mississippian declared.

The senator did not go into details, but received permission to have the article appearing in Editor and Publisher placed in the record. Asked by Senator Caraway (Democrat), Arkansas, if the "censor" was the same George Barr Baker mentioned in connection with official documents recently disclosed as stolen from the American Embassy in Mexico City, Harrison replied:

"That's the same George Barr Baker."

The testimony before the Senate committee was that Baker was instrumental in conveying the documents to the State Department after he reached this country.

Referring to newspaper articles discussing possible Cabinet appointees, Senator Harrison declared that William J. Donovan, the Assistant to the Attorney General, had been mentioned for the attorney generalship. He said that Donovan was connected with the Government's prosecution of Senator Wheeler (Democrat), Montana, after a committee headed by Senator Borah (Republican), Idaho, had unanimously agreed that there was nothing in the charges against Senator Wheeler.

Donovan's Goal Changed.

"Then we read the next day," continued Harrison, "that there is a timorous disposition about appointing him Attorney General; that he might fit in better as Secretary of War; and so the newspapers tell us that the Secretary of War, who has reflected so much credit upon this administration, is about to be kicked out."

The Mississippian went on with the reports about the filling of various Cabinet posts and concluded:

"But this confusion that exists everywhere, this constant confusion coming to you from distinguished gentlemen who think they are entitled to a Cabinet position, and who do not know yet whether they are going to be appointed to it, may be a part of the censorship that was imposed by the President-elect in his recent good-will trip to South America."

Girl, Brooding Over Scar, Kills Self Under Train

Philadelphia, Jan. 22 (A.P.).—Ethel Simmons, 23, of this city, was found dead along the tracks of the Pennsylvania Railroad here today. At first it was believed that she had fallen from a train. Her father, who identified the body at the morgue, pointed to a scar on her chin from a recent operation and told how the girl had brooded over the disfigurement.

badly shaken up only two of them received injuries that were severe.

There were 33 passengers in the bus all of whom were listed among the dead and injured.

Two of the dead were carried with the wreckage and large jacks had to be used to hoist the car before their bodies could be recovered. The others were thrown distances ranging from 15 to 30 feet at the time of the impact.

Passengers Go to Rescue.

The passengers in the electric car began frantically to pick up the dead and the injured and passing motorists converted their machines into ambulances, augmenting the four ambulances in Bellevue which made repeated trips.

The dead were taken to the three undertaking establishments here and all of the injured were brought to the Bellevue Hospital.

Of the victims twelve were men and five were women. Because of the condition of the bodies and the lack of marks about clothing, four men and two women remained unidentified tonight.

Belief that an eighteenth body remained under the wreckage was dispelled when the wrecking crew succeeded in removing a major portion of the wreckage and officials of the Lake Shore Railroad announced all bodies had been removed. The report that there was yet another body to be extricated was believed to have been due to the fact that a salesman aboard the bus had a large mechanical doll with him which some passengers had thought was a baby.

The Dead.

Elmer Almond, 25, Youngstown, Ohio; Bela Thelsz, Detroit; D. Coughanour, Cleveland, Ohio; S. R. Rawney Chicago; Mrs. J. H. Harmon, Akron, Ohio; Harry Glickman, Detroit; J. S. Davenport, Cleveland; Mrs. A. Robinson, Cleveland; Lewis Flynn, Steubenville, Ohio; Peter Kingsley, Wakeman, Ohio; W. J. Cook, Cleveland;
Two unidentified women.
Four unidentified men.

The Injured.

Merrill Long, 18, Portage, Pa.; Richard Freeman, 40; Cleveland; Edward Butler, 31, Cleveland (driver of the bus); Edward Williams, 28, Pittsburgh; Martin Loranger, Woonsocket, R. I.; Harold Schaffer, 20, Pittsburgh; James Watreb, 48, Cleveland; A. W. Van Valkenburg, Green Springs, Ohio; Mrs. Eleanora Houghtby, 20, Detroit; Mrs. Thelma Mether, 18, Akron; Mrs. Walter Magaw, Detroit; Mrs. Susie Lapala, 17, Conneaut, Ohio; Teddy O'Brawski, Brooklyn, N. Y.; Russell Mack, Albin, Mich.

One unidentified man, probably fatally injured.

Motorman Scheyler saved himself from death an instant before the crash by running back from the vestibule. About 800 feet from the crossing Scheyler spotted the track signal warning him to sound the whistle. Ahead of him he could see only a swirling mass of snow. He sounded the whistle and allowed the car to go on at a speed of about 40 miles an hour.

Then suddenly he discerned the big gray body of the bus about 10 or 15 feet away.

"I saw that there was going to be a collision," he said. "I shut off the power and applied the brakes and attempted to halt the car by braking with the motor. I could not stand seeing that crash. To avoid it I ran back in the car."

TAX REFUND SYSTEM ATTACKED IN SENATE

McKellar Denounces Mellon Method on Rebates as "Species of Graft."

DEFENDED BY SECRETARY

(Associated Press.)

Closely following an unsuccessful attempt by Secretary Mellon to keep the Senate from appropriating more money for prohibition enforcement, the Treasury head found himself in another disagreement last night with that body over the administration of tax refunds.

Similar to his action in the case of the prohibition increase, the Secretary sent a letter to the Capitol giving his opposition to a proposal of Senator McKellar (Democrat), Tennessee, to place the adjudication of tax refunds in excess of $10,000 with the Board of Tax Appeals rather than the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, as at present. McKellar's proposal is an amendment to the deficiency bill which carries $75,000,000 for tax refunds.

The Tennessee senator began an address in the Senate yesterday in which he assailed the method of refunding taxes as "really a species of graft." Almost at the same time Secretary Mellon declared, in a letter to Chairman Smoot, of the Senate finance committee, that the transfer of authority suggested by McKellar would mean "the complete breakdown" of the income tax law.

Mr. Mellon's communication was made public at the Treasury and had not been read to the Senate prior to tonight's adjournment. Senator Smoot did, however, inform Senator McKellar during the debate that "if I could present my views I could convince the senator he is wrong and he would acknowledge it."

McKellar Voices Criticism.

Discussing his proposal Senator McKellar declared that under the present system, the Treasury is the sole arbiter of claims and he contended that this "opens the door to unlimited returns and makes it imperative that the discretion of the Commissioner of Internal Revenue should be subject to revision by another body."

"These tax refunds," the senator continued, "including credits, during the last eight years have amounted to between four and five hundred millions a year, they are in the nature of favors granted special taxpayers. Those who are on the inside know how to get the returns.

"What an opportunity there is for graft. What an opportunity there is for fraud. What an opportunity there is for favoritism in distributing governmental favors."

Secretary Mellon declared in his letter to Senator Smoot that not only would the Tennesseean's proposal seriously affect the tax law machinery but that it would increase the volume of the work of the board of tax appeals and would turn the board into a body having purely administrative powers. He reviewed the work of the board and called attention to the 20,079 cases now pending which would require with the "most strenuous labor" at least three years to clear up. This condition, he added, has arisen with the board's jurisdiction limited to tax deficiencies.

The Secretary declared the McKellar plan would more than double the work of the board. He said if the proposal were adopted, an additional interest charge of $13,500,000 annually would be accruing on the refunds, and contended that this would be "an entirely needless" expense.

Mellon Defends Refunds.

The Secretary declared that responsibility must be placed somewhere under our taxation system and said that obviously it should be placed in those high administrative offices whose positions were created for the purpose of enforcement of the law.

"No proof has been offered to show any improper payment," Mr. Mellon continued. "There is no evidence of maladministration, corruption or improper practices. There is nothing to indicate that the present machinery is not functioning smoothly and with adequate protection to the interests of the country. Why, then, when it has been determined that a taxpayer has paid more than he ought, should he be compelled to wait three years in order to have his case reviewed by a semijudicial body?"

"The real issue is whether the income tax is to be administered by the executive branch of the Government in accordance with every precedent and every sound principle of government or is to be turned over to the judicial branch. I have no hesitation in prophesying that the latter course spells the complete breakdown of the income tax. Any tax that can not be administered save by means of litigation and court decision can not long survive."

Services for Dr. H. G. Dyar, Mosquito Expert, Tomorrow

PROF. HARRISON GRAY DYAR

Funeral services for Prof. Harrison Gray Dyar, widely known authority on mosquitoes and curator of lepidoptera in the National Museum, will be held tomorrow afternoon at Lee's Chapel, 322 Pennsylvania avenue northwest, at 4:30 o'clock.

Prof. Dyar died Monday afternoon at Garfield after he had been stricken with paralysis in his office Saturday. He was 62 years of age at the time of his death.

Widely known in scientific circles as a biologist and entomologist of distinction, and the leading authority on mosquitoes, he was first brought to the attention of the general public in September, 1924.

Prior to that date a series of well-constructed tunnels had been discovered under the rear of the Pelham Court Apartments, 2115 P street northwest, where the scientist had formerly had his residence. The tunnels extended over some 500 feet, and were large and roomy, and walled with enameled brick. Rumors were broadast that they had been constructed during the World War by German spies, and some excitement was created.

September 27, 1924, however, it was discovered that Prof. Dyar had constructed the tunnels during the time he had lived in the apartment. In this manner he secured both exercise and diversion.

Later, after moving to a house at 804 B street southwest, where he constructed another and less pretentious series of tunnels, Prof. Dyar purchased the apartment house at Sixteenth and R streets northwest, known as the Sixteenth Street Mansions, for a sum said at the time to have been about $2,300,000. His ambition for the apartments, he said, was to place them on a basis whereby tenants would receive the highest type of service. He later disposed of the property.

Since boyhood, Prof. Dyar had been interested in insects. In 1885 he graduated from the Roxbury Latin Institute and from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology in 1889. He returned to his alma mater in 1893 and took the last year of its biology course, going from there to Woods Hole, Mass., where he studied entomology.

In 1894 he obtained his A. M. at Columbia University, and in 1895 his Ph. D. from the same institution. The subject of his paper for the degree was "Classification of Lepidoterons' Larvae," a treatise which is still standard.

After teaching for several years he came to Washington in 1897 to become custodian of the collection of lepidoptera in the National Museum, the position which he held at the time of his death.

In 1909 he took up the study of mosquito larvae, and since that time has done much valuable work in classifying and determining the disease-carrying characteristics of American mosquitoes. His "Mosquitoes of the Americas" is said to contain all that is known of mosquitoes in North and South America.

Born February 14, 1866, in New York, he was the son of Harrison Gray Dyar and Eleanor Rosella Dyar. Surviving him are his widow, whom he married at Reno, Nev., in 1921, and three children.

Congressional Record Closed to Wet Cartoon

An attempt to transform the Congressional Record into an illustrated publication failed in the House yesterday. Representative Boylan (Democrat) of New York, produced a cartoon showing the horrors of the Michigan liquor law, and asked that it be reproduced in the record.

When Majority Leader Tilson objected, Boylan reminded him that "this is the day of the tabloid." "It simply isn't done," said Tilson, and the cartoon stayed out.

PINE EXONERATED ON INDIAN CHARGES

ALL CLAIMS HELD FALSE

(Associated Press.)

A report exonerating Senator Pine, (Republican), Oklahoma, of the charge made by Commissioner Burke, of the Indian Bureau, that Pine was seeking to "destroy" Burke was adopted yesterday by the Senate Indian committee.

The report declared that Senator Pine "is entirely innocent" of the charges made by Commissioner Burke.

Burke had charged that Senator Pine was involved in a conspiracy against him because James Hepburn, of Oklahoma, was not appointed superintendent of the Five Civilized Tribes. He also charged that Pine "is using political appointees now in the Department of Justice, namely, C. B. Selby and B. M. Parmenter, to aid him in carrying out this dastardly conspiracy, and Senator Pine is cooperating with John Collier."

"After hearing all the evidence in the case," the report stated, "and after considering the brief filed by Mr. Patterson, counsel for Mr. Burke, the committee is of the opinion that there is not a scintilla of evidence to support or substantiate the charge of conspiracy, or any other charge as set forth or made by Commissioner Burke before the subcommittee of Indian affairs against Senator Pine or against Messrs. Selby, Parmenter or Collier."

Neither Senator Pine nor Senator Thomas (Democrat), Oklahoma, participated in the drafting or consideration of the report which was prepared by the special subcommittee named to investigate Burke's charges.

Chairman Frazier, of the Indian committee, and Senator La Follette (Republican), Wisconsin, and Wheeler (Democrat), Montana, were the members.

Judge Sets Trial Of Fall for May 6

Former Cabinet Officer to Face Bribery Charge if Health Permits.

Trial of a bribery charge against Albert B. Fall, former Secretary of Interior, was set for May 6 by Justice William Hitz at a hearing in the District Supreme Court yesterday. The date was asked by United States Attorney Leo A. Rover and was unopposed by William E. Leahy and Mark Thompson, members of Fall's counsel.

The defense counsel informed the court that Fall's health would not permit his appearance in the Capital before May and in the event his condition had not improved by that time, a postponement would be sought. Fall is anxious to stand trial, Thompson told Justice Hitz.

CONGRESS AID ASKED FOR SICK VETERANS

Hines Urges Bureau's Program Support in $10,000,000 Hospital Bill.

WOULD BAN PRIVATE HELP

(Associated Press.)

Congressional support for a veterans' hospital building program formulated and carried out solely by the United States Veterans Bureau without the help of private concerns or other branches of the Government was requested yesterday by Director Hines, of the bureau, before the House veterans committee in consideration of the $10,000,000 hospital bill.

Gen. Hines said the present plans included enlargement of hospital units in Indiana and Alabama, an addition of facilities at Chicago, the establishment of general units in San Francisco and New York, and the removal of a diagnostic center from Palo Alto to the new San Francisco unit.

"The construction division of the bureau has had long experience in selecting sites for hospitals and in building them," he said. "I am opposed to farming out any of these hospital projects to any agencies that can not be as well adapted to carry on the work. Other Government departments are too busy, and civilian agencies are unacquainted with the problems of veterans' hospital construction."

In preparing for the future load to be carried by the bureau, Gen. Hines declared that the peak of the load of neuropsychiatric, or mental, cases would not be reached until 1947, when the men who served in the World War would be between 50 and 60 years old.

"This is growing to be the most important type of disability that we have to deal with," he said. "It is increasing every year, and we must take adequate precaution in preparing to handle the cases as they reach the peak."

"Maybe the audience would be grateful if I stepped to the footlights some night and voiced the above protest about the 'coughing chorus' down in front.

"But that wouldn't be kind and it wouldn't be just. The cougher doesn't cough in public on purpose. He can't help it. It embarrasses him as much as it annoys his neighbors.

BALDWIN FOR STUDY OF CHANNEL TUNNEL

Asks Cooperation of Other Parties When Question Comes Up in House.

FRENCH JOIN COMMITTEE

London, Jan. 22 (A.P.).—The scheme for a tunnel under the English Channel reached the House of Commons again today. Stanley Baldwin, prime minister, announced that a comprehensive nonparty reexamination would be made into the 60-year-old project. A tunnel connecting England with the French coast has been urged by economists, but always has been opposed by military strategists. Construction of a 21-mile bridge also has been discussed.

K. Thurtle, Labor, Shoreditch, asked for time to discuss the motion and Mr. Baldwin replied that in view of the wide public interest in the project the cabinet had concluded the time was ripe for a comprehensive inquiry.

He said the ministers wished to have the economic aspects thoroughly examined in order that they might be weighed with imperial defense considerations.

In view of the time required to carry out the project it would be in the public interest to deal with the question outside a party atmosphere, the prime minister continued. Some agreement was necessary also whereby the decision of the government might not be upset by a succeeding government. He would like to obtain the cooperation of leaders of the other parties from the outset of the inquiry.

When the proposal was before Parliament in 1924, Ramsay Macdonald, then prime minister, invited Mr. Baldwin, David Lloyd George and others to attend a meeting of that committee of imperial defense, which was studying the question. Subsequently Mr. Macdonald informed the House of Commons that an adverse decision had been reached unanimously.

Paris, Jan. 23 (A.P.).—The French committee for constructing a tunnel under the English Channel met in Paris today under the presidency of Yves Letrocquer, former minister of public works. It adopted a resolution pledging collaboration to the efforts of Sir William Bull, member of the House of Commons, to get approval for that project in the English legislature.

Jules Cambon, former president of the Conference of Ambassadors and brother of Paul Cambon, who was French Ambassador to London for 21 years and who founded the French tunnel committee, accepted the vice presidency of the organization, he said:

"On the day that the tunnel is completed England and France will have found the real road to peace."

Bruce defended moderate consumption of alcohol and declared that those who do drink in moderation should not be penalized because a few go too far.

"Drinking in moderation," he said, "quickens the faculties and mellows human sympathies."

Senator Blease demanded to know why Secretary Mellon should detail American boys to bring consignments of diplomatic liquor from Baltimore to the embassies here. He also demanded to know why lawyers, doctors and newspaper men should be able to get all the liquor they want, while working men in his home State of North Carolina should be denied it.

Senator Norris did not say what he was going to do about the information he had received with regard to a certain diplomatic employe peddling liquor here. But he did say that, in his opinion, there should be no immunity for such a person, nor for diplomats, who, under the influence of liquor, drive recklessly through the streets.

He expressed the opinion that the ambassadors and the ministers did not know about their employes' bootlegging.

$100,000 Added to Fund By Gov. Smith's Appeal

New York, Jan. 22 (A.P.).—Former Gov. Alfred E. Smith's recent radio appeal for funds to wipe out the $1,500,000 deficit of the Democratic national committee thus far has brought in approximately $100,000 in contributions.

Not all the contributions have been tabulated, however. The committee has received about 15,000 letters and Mr. Smith himself has received 5,000 letters. Most of the contributors requested the book containing Mr. Smith's campaign speeches. Among contributors was a $100 check from Mrs. Alfred E. Smith and a request for 50 of the books.

attempted impeachment session of 1927. Graham testified that the incident occurred during a conference in the office of J. R. Armstrong, uncle of Mrs. Hammonds and a close advisor of the governor.

A declaration that he saw an envelope containing money passed to Mrs. Hammonds by a woman who was charged with negotiating for the exercise of her purported influence with the administration was made by L. K. Ford, an engineer, in testimony before the house investigating committee. Ford also testified that in another incident Mrs. Hammonds became angered because Gus Woollard, chairman of the State board of affairs, blocked a proposed State contract with Ford's employer and she referred to Woollard as a "dirty old rat."

Carl Magee, Oklahoma City editor was the first witness called before the Senate committee which was formed to investigate Magee's published reports that money had influenced senators to change their vote and bring about the termination of the attempted impeachment session in 1927 after members of the house had voted six charges against Gov. Johnston.

Graham depicted Mrs. Hammonds at a conference on the candidacy of Pat Henry for chairman of the Oklahoma County Democratic committee as rebuking the governor angrily for supporting Henry's candidacy which she indicated, Graham said, was opposed by a group of men in an adjoining room. She was quoted as asserting that this group had saved Johnston from impeachment at the attempted session. C. S. Beekman, and H. L. Cannaday, road contractors, Fred Capshaw, corporation commissioner, and Fred Leech and Ed Butterfield, Oklahoma County commissioners, were among the men assembled in the next room, Graham said.

Ford and C. B. McCormack, an Altus contractor, involved Mrs. Hammonds in testimony before the house investigating committee involving McCormack's attempts to collect $8,200 from the State highway department, which he claimed owed him that amount for work he had done.

McCormack related that he employed Mrs. May Kline, a former employe of the highway department to collect the claim for him on the representation that she had considerable influence in the governor's office. After paying Mrs. Kline more than $1,400 and contracting to pay her $1,000 more, he abandoned the attempt to collect the claim, he testified, because Mrs. Kline's husband demanded still more money. Gov. Johnston himself told McCormack he had placed the matter "in the right hands" when Kline and McCormack went to the governor's office.

Ford, formerly employed by McCormick, testified that another time he prepared a bid for a contract to operate a State owned rockcrusher at the State reformatory at Granite and that Mrs. Kline was to negotiate with the governor's office for the contract. Mrs. Kline proposed a half and half division of profits from the operation of the crusher, Ford said, telling him that McCormick would "take care of you and I will take care of Mamie."

Ford said Mrs. Kline referred to Mrs. Hammonds as "Mamie."

The negotiations failed because of the operation of Woollard whose board has direct supervision over the reformatory, Ford said, and Mrs. Hammonds made her displeasure known.

Gov. Johnston's office today was in charge of an officer of the national guard under the orders of W. J. Holloway, acting governor. The officer explained that his assignment had no military significance and that he was expected merely to act as a coordinator between the suspended and the acting executive.

50 DEAD IN MEXICAN ELECTION; 100 HURT

DEATH ROLL INCOMPLETE

Mexico City, Jan. 22 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Fifty persons are dead and 100 wounded as a result of clashes between the opposing factions in the gubernatorial campaign in the state of Hidalgo, according to the list of casualties given out today at the headquarters of Dr. Parres, one of the candidates. The majority of these casualties occurred last Sunday, which was election day.

The tabulation of dead and wounded issued by the Parres headquarters failed to include the casualties in the smaller towns of the State. Complete returns, if ever available, are expected to add a score or more dead and wounded to the totals.

The campaign was one of the bloodiest in the recent political history of Mexico. Clashes occurred at almost every election rally. At one meeting, when opponents of Dr. Parres began throwing chairs, the Parresistas whipped out their pistols and responded with gunfire. Firing instantly became general.

There were especially bloody encounters last Sunday at Iximiquilpam and at Mixquiahuala on December 20. Belated reports made public today at Parres headquarters listed twenty dead in the fighting at a Parres rally in the latter town. The mayor of Mixquiahuala was among the dead.

At Atoniloco el Grande eight were killed when enemies of Dr. Parres sought to ambush him. Gen. Aurilo Trevino was among those who fell defending the candidate.

A few days later Dr. Parres was besieged at Cerro Colorado and federal troops had to be called into action to rescue him and his bodyguard.

Hidalgo, except for the mining centers of Pachucha, San Rafael, La Blanca and Santa Gertrudis, is isolated country without well-developed communications. Hence the slowness with which news details of the fighting have reached Mexico City. The war department received reports but withheld them.

In anticipation of further trouble the federal garrisons in half a dozen places in the State have been heavily reinforced.

SLAYERS OF PASTOR TRAILED IN DESERT

VICTIM'S BODY IS BURIED

Basra, Irak, Jan. 22 (A.P.).—While British air force machines and armored cars scoured the desert along the Irak-Koweit frontier, the Rev. Henry A. Bilkert, American missionary, who was slain by Wahabi raiders yesterday, was buried in the civil cemetery alongside the great war cemetery here.

Although an active search for the raiders continued all day, no trace of them had been found by tonight.

Well-informed circles in Basra believe that even if the British government is not induced by the slaying to take firmer measures in connection with the deadlock with Ibn Saud, ruler of the Nejd, he himself will take drastic steps against his bellicose tribesmen.

In the party of Americans who were ambushed by the Wahabis as they were traveling in two automobiles on the edge of the desert, was Charles R. Crane, former American Minister to China, and it is recalled that when Mr. Crane visited Jeddah in 1926, Ibn Saud gave him the royal apartments, sent his son, Feisal, to welcome and entertain him, and also telegraphed his greetings daily.

Mr. Crane, describing the attack today, said:

"When we were about 50 miles south of Zubeir, shots rang out, fired at a distance of about 200 yards. The drivers of both cars, with great presence of mind, swerved and went full speed. But the shots were whistling about us, and Mr. Bilkert was hit in the shoulder, the bullet probably affecting the spinal cord."

To produce furniture of individual character and intimate charm, W. & J. Sloane announced the founding of two factories — one to reproduce the fine furniture of past periods, the other to recreate early American and other popular furniture forms. ¶ The response to the artistic work of our Company of Master Craftsmen in Flushing, and the Oneidacraft Company at Oneida, N.Y., has been great, and we express our sincere appreciation. ¶ On our floors the furniture of these two great factories of our own can be seen. The beauty of the construction and the grace of the design are evident. And by eliminating 'in between' profits we have reached the very reasonable prices that everything carries.

NO ENTANGLEMENTS.

Some of the League of Nations diehards are coming forward with schemes for entangling the United States in the league system through the Kellogg treaty. One of the suggestions comes from Newton D. Baker, former Secretary of War. His idea is that the United States should forthwith announce that it will refuse to sell munitions or supplies to a nation which has refused to accept pacific settlement of a dispute and has been declared by a competent tribunal to be responsible for a breach of the peace. The "competent tribuual" in Mr. Baker's mind is no doubt the League of Nations court.

It is a little early for supporters of the League of Nations to assume that the United States is about to commit itself to the league's machinery for identifying and punishing nations that break the peace. The Kellogg treaty does not require the United States to take any action whatever against a nation that violates the pact. Many factors would be involved in such a case, and the United States should be free to consider them all and shape its policy according to circumstances. Mr. Baker's suggestion is based upon the incurable notion that somehow, somewhere, there must be force behind the Kellogg treaty to make it effective, and the method of exerting force or coercion must be prescribed in advance. There is nothing in that notion. The Kellogg treaty would be worthless, like the covenant of the League of Nations, if it were based upon "sanctions." The complications arising from disputes between nations as to the time, nature and scope of the punitive action against a treaty-breaking state would rupture the compact and work to the advantage of the peace breaker.

The Kellogg treaty would not have been approved by Americans if it had been so worded as to draw the United States into the League of Nations machinery. This Nation is free to take any action it may see fit to take in the event of violation of the treaty. It will remain free. The boycotting and blockading schemes of the League of Nations covenant have no bearing upon American policy. When a government adhering to the Kellogg treaty deliberately violates the compact, to the injury of the United States, it will be time to consider what the United States should do. This Nation will be able to take care of itself without contracting alliances or becoming involved in European combinations. Let Congress provide a suitable Navy, and there will be no need for proclaiming in advance how the United States will protect itself.

BRONTE RELICS.

The purchase of the old Haworth parsonage early last year by Sir James Roberts, his presentation of it to the Bronte Society, and the opening of it in August, 1928, as a museum have had important results on the formation of a collection of Bronte relics. The late Mr. Henry H. Bonnell, of Philadelphia, was known to have amassed the finest private collection of Bronte treasures in the world, and in his last years he was anxious that it should be transferred in its entirety to the old home of the family, provided that satisfactory arrangements could be made for its preservation. On his death two years ago he gave instructions to that effect to his trustees. The trustees were naturally insistent that so splendid a collection should be effectually protected against fire, but, as it was impossible to comply with such a demand in the premises that formerly served as a museum at Haworth, the acceptance of the bequest was delayed, until Sir James Roberts bought the old parsonage and so altered it that the apartments destined to house the Bonnell collection were rendered fireproof.

Two or three weeks ago, accordingly, the transfer duly took place. When the various shipments were unpacked, it was at once seen how rich the collection is and how extensive is its range. Americans, who always in such numbers have visited Haworth on account of the Bronte tradition, will have henceforward greatly added inducements to make a literary pilgrimage to Yorkshire. They will see not only Wycoller Hall, which figures in "Jane Eyre;" Ponden House, about which Emily Bronte wrote "Wuthering Heights," the Black Bull Inn, where poor Branwell spent so much of his time, and Haworth churchyard, the scene and subject of Matthew Arnold's poem, but also the tiny manuscript booklets, with their microscopic handwriting, which the precocious children so earnestly and so lavishly filled, including Charlotte's first story, written at the age of 9 and beginning: "Once there was a little girl named Ane," as well as masses of letters and papers of a most interesting kind and, among the books, a copy of the first edition of every one of the Bronte works, notable here being the "Poems" of Currer Ellis, and Acton Bell, of which only six copies were sold! Here, too, will be found both Charlotte's first letter and Emily's own rosewood writing desk, filled, as she left it, with all sorts of memoranda and clippings of contemporary reviews of "Wuthering Heights."

A great treat is assuredly now in store at Haworth for all lovers of and sympathizers with the Brontes—these lovers and sympathizers who appear to increase in number with each succeeding year. Is it right and proper that that number should go on increasing? The answer is: "Of course."

INVESTIGATE THE FIRES.

Washington has a good start toward establishing this month the worst fire record in the city's history. Apparatus responded to 21 fire calls Monday. One of those fires cost the life of a young woman and endangered the lives of 25 other persons. During this month 365 fires have broken out, a number of them causing serious damage. Sunday morning flames wrecked a four-story building and trapped several families. A recent fire in the Dulin & Martin store burned property valued at $300,000 and threatened the entire business district. Monday night a warehouse fire which originated in a shed near the building caused $5,000 damage. Last month the city was disturbed by two serious apartment house fires, one of which resulted in two fatalities.

There is no evidence of negligence on the part of the fire-fighting force, yet the loss from the recent series of fires is very disquieting. Suspicion of the officials has been aroused by the Sunday morning apartment house fire. It may have been the work of some fire vandal. Police are investigating the Monday morning fire in which Miss Goodwin lost her life. The blaze is thought to have originated in the bottom of a dumb-waiter shaft, and was not discovered until well under way. The danger was further aggravated by the failure of the alarm system in the apartment house.

The most efficient fire department can not prevent some damage when once a fire is under way. Even though the apparatus responds with all possible speed, fires usually make considerable headway before the burning building can be reached. Then damage from floods of water is added to destruction by fire. The one best way to prevent fire losses and fatalities is to eliminate the conditions that make fires possible. What is Washington doing to prevent disastrous fires?

The present situation calls for an investigation into the causes of the recent destructive fires. The only other time when the city has had such a fire record was a year ago when numerous fires were deliberately lighted by a pyromaniac. If there is such a person threatening lives and property in the city at present, no effort should be spared in apprehending him. If there is not, the causes of the recent fires should be determined and made public with a view to prevention of similar losses in the future. A city has not done its whole duty when it has provided efficient fire-fighting machinery for protection of its citizens. The scientific way of solving the problem is prevention. Spontaneous combustion may be responsible for a great deal of the recent fire damage. If so, let measures be taken to clean up back yards and rubbish-littered basements which increase the fire hazard. The extinguishing of flames without a scientific effort to prevent fire can never reduce the heavy toll of lives and property that is taken annually.

PRODUCE YOUR MISSING LINK.

Dr. Austin H. Clark, biologist of the Smithsonian Institution, has issued a challenge to evolutionists to produce the missing links between major forms of life which they believe originated from common forms. The announcement of his new supplementary theory to Darwinism is the most outstanding challenge to evolution that has come from scientific circles in years. It is possible that the question of the development of life will be reopened with new evidence and consequent greater knowledge.

"There is no evidence," Dr. Clark declared, "which would show man developing step by step from lower forms of life. Man appeared in the Pliocene age, just preceding the ice age. He appeared suddenly and in substantially the same form as he is in today. There is not the slightest evidence of his existence before that time." He further asserted that there is no such thing as missing links, and that scientists have never been able to explain the gaps between different groups of animal life.

Dr. Clark is receiving many letters asking for additional information, and some of them commend him for his position. However, he seems to stand almost alone, so far as scientific opinion is concerned. A number of scientists have said that the new theory is too fantastic to provoke widespread discussion, but it will be unfortunate if the challenge is allowed to die without the most scrutinizing study that science can make.

Science is devoted to ascertainment of truth. But there is danger of science becoming crystallized, as any other branch of learning may do. It is commendable to find a biologist who differs in opinion from all his fellow investigators, come out and announce his theories boldly for the whole scientific world to dissect and refute if it can. Great contributions to science can come only in this way. Only so long as scientific postulates, and even accepted doctrines, remain open to question and revision in the light of new facts, is there hope of the ultimate truth being established. Dr. Clark's suggestions should serve to stimulate further research into the fascinating subject of the origin of man.

WALL STREET.

What is the function and purpose of the stock exchange? Is it, as is some times asserted, merely a glorified gambling machine with which fortunes can be won without labor? Does it perform a definite and useful economic function? E. H. H. Simmons, president of the New York Stock Exchange, speaking before the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce recently, took occasion to point out the function and purpose of the stock exchange. "It is highly important to industrial development," he said, "that no impediment be put in the way of long-term security financing." The stock exchange is an institution organized to assist in the marketing of securities, without which new industries would be unable to obtain necessary capital.

Since 1850 the stock market in Wall street has performed a vital service in the development of the country. Following the Civil War the United States embarked upon a program of industrialization that has reached its highest point in today's great corporations. For three-quarters of a century American industry has been crying for additional capital, and has been looking to Wall street to furnish it. It would not have been possible to approach the individual investor directly. The speculative investor, generally a professional, is a necessary adjunct to the exchange. Functioning on borrowed capital, he purchases and holds stocks that because of their newness make no appeal to the outright investor, holding them until such time as the latter is able and ready to purchase them.

Mr. Simmons holds that new industries, particularly, have need of the speculative buyer of securities, because the risks involved in untried projects, as a rule, deter conservative investors from giving their support. As an example, he cited the United States Steel Corporation. In 1909 only about one-third of its common stock was held by outright investors, the balance being in the hands of speculators. As the financial resources of the corporation increased, investors were attracted to the securities, with the result that, by 1921, more than three-quarters of the shares were held by actual owners.

The Stock Exchange is not a financial octopus, fattening upon the unfortunate investments of the unwary. It is the nation's market place, without which the industrial development that has become the envy of the world could not have taken place.

Chicago's milk strike was ended yesterday, but it doesn't make much difference. Not even the babies in Chicago drink milk.

Police Commissioner Whalen, having solved the problem of how to get a taxicab through Times Square during the theater hour, would be a handy man to have around the Senate in connection with the cruiser bill.

ANTIAMERICAN PACIFISTS

By MARIATEGUI

The antinational and anti-American attitude of many of the leading pacifists is due to misunderstanding and misinformation as to actual governmental policies.

One of the leaders in the pacifist movement—then the editor of the Century Magazine, now the president of a great Western university—said, apropos of some of the plans submitted for Mr. Bok's prize for the best plan for the outlawry of war, "Even the most ridiculous plan for peace is better than the statesman's policy of war." Much of the attack of the pacifists upon the proposal of adequate national protection is based on this false conception.

There is not a responsible chief executive or parliamentary leader in the civilized world (with the possible exception of one in the south of Europe and the dictators of the Soviet in Russia who openly proclaim a policy of universal revolution and the subversion by force of existing governments) whose object is not peace and who does not regard war as the last resort and arms as the final arbitrament to be appealed to only after every other recourse has been exhausted.

It is sometimes suggested that war should only be declared by a popular election. Resolutions for the amendment of the Constitution to that effect have been introduced. This suggestion—aside from the absurdity of such a procedure in the face of a national emergency—is based on the false notion that the mass of the people would be more reluctant to make war than the responsible statesmen at the head of the Government. In actual fact the contrary is the case. In any sharp international conflict which arouses popular passions the masses are always clamorous for war. McKinley used his influence with Congress to hold back a declaration of war against Spain long after the people demanded it. It has been so in every war in which we have been engaged. Every other country has had the same experience.

It is on such false conceptions and false statements as to the policies of responsible statesmen as that just quoted that good people of no experience in public affairs, utterly unfamiliar with the responsibilities of government, work themselves up into fanatical opposition to any adequate preparedness for the protection of the lives and rights of our people. Some of these antinationals are perhaps patriots, or conceive themselves to be so. Others actually pride themselves on being antipatriots or internationalists.

Dr. Latane in his speech to the pacifists in Washington the other day could find no good in our international policies. His attitude was that of a cynic, a pessimist and an oppositionist. He opposed national preparedness necessary for the protection of our property and commerce. He is typical of many idealists who spend their whole lives in theorizing and not an hour in the practical experience of private or public business, but yet insist that their ideas of the conduct of our affairs should be adopted.

Jane Addams is entitled to admiration for her unselfish work among the poor in Chicago, but her experience in Hull House does not preeminently qualify her as a leader of international policies nor fit her to interpret the constitution of the League of Nations.

Mrs. Catt is quite vehement in her opposition to the Monroe Doctrine—the corner stone of our foreign policy. Mrs. Catt has attained prominence as a leader in women's organizations, but has never given any evidence of a deeper understanding of the relations of nations than John Quincy Adams or James Monroe, not to mention every other responsible statesman who has helped to shape the policies which have made this a great Nation.

All these ladies and gentlemen demand protection of their rights and enjoy the security which comes from the power which is back of the laws of our country. The trouble with them all is they have not thought the question through to the point of realizing what that security is based on. They propose to disarm the law.

Other people, absorbed in the affairs of government or private business, would forget, for a time at least, perhaps indefinitely, the idea of war. The pacifists, by their perpetual agitation and clamor about war, have done more than any other influence in the world to keep the idea of war alive. Of course, they have a right, if they choose, to "fight like hell for peace." Every one has a right to express his opinion; likewise every one has a similar right—in this case it is a duty—to call attention to the worthlessness of that opinion.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Automobile Route Markings.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I was very much interested and amused in reading in a recent issue of your paper a letter by J. L. Watson, Norlina, N. C., on "Washington Is All Circles," describing the marking, or lack of marking, as he called it, of Route No. 1 through the District of Columbia.

Recently the Commissioners, in cooperation with the A. A. A., have erected signs for a large number of automobile routes through this city, and I had supposed the work was very well done.

On route No. 1, going south, there are at least twenty signs marking this route, and also No. 50, as follows:

1. District Line and Maryland on the Bladensburg road.
2. Reform School on Bladensburg road.
3. South Dakota avenue and Bladensburg road.
4. South of the Pennsylvania Railroad bridge on Bladensburg road.
5. H street and Maryland avenue northeast.
6. Maryland avenue and F street northeast.
7. Stanton Park and Maryland avenue, east end of park.
8. Stanton Park and Massachusetts avenue, west end of park.
9. Stanton Park and Maryland avenue, west end of park.
10. Second and B streets northeast, on Maryland avenue.
11. First and B streets northwest, foot of Capitol Hill.
12. Peace Monument, Pennsylvania avenue and First street northwest.
13. Garfield Monument, Maryland avenue and First street southwest.
14. Maryland avenue and Seventh street southwest.
15. Ninth, C street, and Virginia avenue southwest.
16. Fourteenth and D streets southwest, at the Bureau of Engraving and Printing.
17. Fourteenth and Water streets, at Potomac Park.
18. Fourteenth street and North Hains Point Drive.
19. On curve to the Highway bridge, north side of river.
20. South end of the Highway bridge, in Virginia.

It is possible that some of these are not as conveniently located as they should be for our North Carolina friend, and it may be that the black and gilt lettering is not as easy to see as the standard black and white signs in the States, but it is hoped that next time he passes through he will not have to run around in circles in order to find his way through our beautiful city.

W. I. SWANTON.

Breakdown of the Senate.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: There was a time when Americans were fond of claiming that the United States Senate was the greatest legislative body in the world. Americans were proud of the Senate, proud of its achievements in legislation, proud of its great debates. But how is it now? In those days its membership was made up of statesmen, who thought and acted for the good of the whole country. Now it is a fault-finding, carping body of mere politicians.

It is true it never had a cloture rule, but there was no need for such a rule. Every member thought he was there to legislate wisely and well for the country, and not for the purpose of showing how he could block legislation and thwart the will of the majority. In those days he was elected in the manner prescribed by the original framers of the Constitution, one remove from popular emotion. Then the expenditure of large sums to secure an election was an unknown thing, regarded as an impossible thing. How is it now?

Albert Gallatin, the great statesman and great minister of finance, held the doctrine that a constitution once adopted ought never be changed or altered in any particular. The condition of the country today is a demonstration that Mr. Gallatin was right. In making amendments we have gone from the good to the horribly bad. In the Senate the drop has been from lofty-minded statesmen to a membership seeking personal gain. There are some members of the present Senate who still believe in and act for the good of the people, but there are others who apparently have but one mission—making trouble.

It was a sad day for the country when the method of choosing senators was changed.

To the Ignorant, All Roads Lead to Strange Lands; To the Traveler, All Roads Lead Home.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

"THE Pilgrims came to America to find religious liberty." An old maid with sad eyes taught me that when I was a small boy eager for knowledge and willing to believe anything.

The Pilgrims, I remember, achieved their purpose. In England they had been treated shamefully because they didn't agree with the orthodox faiths of the powerful, so they risked hardship and death in a land of savages, believing a clear conscience and liberty of more value than mere physical comforts.

In America they found blessed freedom, and intolerance became a memory. Here each man was free to think as he pleased and none could molest him or make him afraid.

I believed it. And the denominational fight that raged in my community at the time did not seem inconsistent with the smug optimism of the school books. "Church rows" were commonplace; they seemed a normal detail of the religious life.

In later years I was shocked by the discovery that our Fathers regarded religious liberty as the peculiar privilege of their own kind.

They ran away from a majority that persecuted them for being unorthodox, but when they became the majority in a new land and had power to punish all who disagreed with them, they proceeded to function as majority opinion always has functioned.

Baptists appeared and were persecuted by law and by mobs; Quakers were whipped through the streets and driven from town; all who refused to accept the beliefs of the powerful were "heretics," and for their sins they were tortured in stocks, branded, imprisoned, hanged. A few were burned through the tongue with hot irons.

One State that now boasts of its tolerance staged a formal war between denominations.

Thus "religious tolerance" functioned in the new land of freedom, and thus, in spirit, it always has functioned. Those who think themselves tolerant are merely indifferent.

Only those big enough to feel compassion for all mankind can forgive those who do not agree with them.

A little religion is a dangerous thing. The man who never travels is the one who thinks his own people the world's best. Only the man with a wide mental horizon can understand that all faiths are essentially one—a groping for the sublime and the truth that makes men free.

Intolerance is the provincialism of ignorance and will endure while ignorance endures.

A foreign tongue is "outlandish gibberish" to the rustic, but no language is a "heathen tongue" to the learned man who can speak all of them.

TALKING WITH MARS.

The problem of "talking" with Mars is not, we take it, a pressing one. Yet it has attracted the attention of a number of ambitious and imaginative spirits, comments the Baltimore Sun. In England, for instance, several attempts have been made to set up interplanetary communication and, while nothing so far has resulted except a possible waste of power and a loss of sleep, something some time may. Probably it was with that hopeful thought in mind that the Manchester Guardian recently offered a prize for the best twenty-word message to Mars submitted by one of its readers.

The newspaper received many replies, so that it would seem a larger number of persons than might have been guessed are concerned with this long-distance conversation. But more amusing than the volume of messages were the contents. It appears that many Britons took this as an opportunity to say just what they felt was wrong with the earth and the corner of it they occupied. They cast their messages in the form of pleas, petitions and requests for information. At the same time many took it for granted that Mars must be very like home. One sought "a list of hotels and tariffs and give the state of the roads, the price of gasoline and the places of interest." Throughout most of the messages there runs this pleasant mingling of frank, prosaic curiosity and wistful desires for some super-superland which can grant the most fantastic of wishes.

The curiosity was represented by the query, "Do you eat?;" the eagerness for a paradise by a Lancashire cotton worker's "Can you absorb 1,200,000 unemployed? Thousands would make splendid canal diggers." But the first prize winner was just this: "Peace on earth; good will to Mars," though it might have seemed more becoming to wish peace to the red planet. While perhaps the most expressive of all was, "If amongst your sages there be one capable of setting this earth right, let him do it, in God's name."

PRESS COMMENT.

And Is.

Arkansas Gazette: If all the motor cars in the United States were placed end to end it would be Sunday afternoon.

Something Like.

Minneapolis Journal: An escaped lunatic down East posed as an alienist, and got away with it for some time. This is something like jazz posing as music.

Atlanta Constitution: "Pussyfoot" Johnson is on his way to dry up India, and has designs on the Phillippines and Japan. Why don't he try a sure thing like Sahara?

All Men Are Equal.

New Orleans Times-Picayune: Automobiles driven respectively by a pugilist and another fellow came together in traffic, and the other fellow's jaw was broken. No, the cars were only slightly scratched.

Tit For Tat.

Detroit Free Press: What we can not understand is why the Modernists have never tried to get any State legislature to pass a bill forbidding the teaching of Fundamentalist ideas about creation.

No Doubt.

Louisville Times: A couple of centuries hence, when the furniture of this period gets into the antique class, we suppose the concerns which then fake it will decorate living room tables with cigarette scars.

Filly Busters.

Philadelphia Inquirer: State legislature this year will gain 148 women members, and it will have to be a good piece of legislation to get by without being talked to death by that number of filly busters.

Better Be a Hen.

Ohio State Journal: Dr. A. V. Domm, of the University of Chicago, has discovered a way to change newly hatched roosters into hens and has actually done it to several and we suppose a philosophical rooster's way of looking at th is that otherwise they'd probably have killed him when he reached frying age and he'd rather be a hen than nothing.

$3 a Day.

Topeka Daily Capital: Members of the Kansas legislature are paid $3 a day and Billy Morgan remarks kindly that "some of them are worth the money." Our local representative, John Abrahams, replying to a critic of one of his bills two years ago, demanded, "Well, what do you expect for $3 a day?" So it is probably at times worth something to legislators to get only $3 a day, for that matter.

Measure of Value.

New Orleans Times Picayune: Every day the world's measure of values seems to be more disturbed. Money used to mean something, but at the present time coin and banknotes have become mere trash as compared with objects of seemingly most trivial interest. The other day a little Greek bronze statuette of Aphrodite was sold at auction at Sotheby's in London. The tiny figurine is heavily eaten by the atmospheric acids of some 25 centuries and shows a somewhat puddin'-faced woman of no especial distinction, and of stiff, if rather realistic, stance. From foot to the tip of her coiffure, that looks remarkably like a close-fitting flapper hat of today, the "goddess" stands exactly seven and one-half inches tall. But this little antiquarian's bauble was knocked down for $20,500—the price of a fine home, or of ten or more high-grade automobiles. What has come over our plutocrats that they "waste" such sums on such rusty bronze nothings?

Protect Locomotion.

Philadelphia Inquirer: Raw silk led all American imports last year, followed in order by coffee, crude rubber, cane sugar and hides and skins. Moves are under way to obtain more protection from some of these commodities in the tariff bill probably to be enacted in 1929. The list will be an interesting one to remember in order to see if the relative position is changed.

The attitude toward coffee and sugar is a survival of the old protest against "taxing the breakfast table." But there are new developments. The silk stocking fad, free hides for shoes and rubber for automobile tires indicate that next to the breakfast table the present generation is most concerned with the mediums of locomotion, both in their decorative and practical aspects.

Wives of Tomorrow

By FRANCES M'DONALD

"Wanted, a Perfect Man."

DEAR Miss McDonald: I am searching for a man who does not drink or smoke and who can say honestly that he goes to church every Sunday without being forced to do so. I have never been out with a man as yet and I am nearing the thirties—still waiting for the right fellow to come along to whom I could say "You are my first and only lover." I believe in marriage for keeps and not in companionate marriage or anything of that kind.

I can say that I have attended my church regularly but not even any of the fellows at church where I have been attending over 15 years seem to want a girl who is not of the up-to-date flapper type.

I am not such a beauty, but dress fairly well and am still wondering why men seem to think all girls are alike. There are quite a few girls of the home-loving type who are still waiting to be sought. But the man must go to church, and neither drink, smoke nor swear.

Are there any such? If so, where?

"TESS."

Well, Tess, I suppose there are and always will be men who do not do the things that most men do I suppose there are just lots of them. But I believe you are going to wait another 30 years before you meet one who is thus perfect beyond his fellow men, and at the same time personable and attractive enough to inspire the tender feelings necessary to incite matrimony.

There are, alas, plenty of men sighing for sweethearts. But when sweethearts sigh for the impossible they usually sigh long and loud.

Men smoke, men drink, men hate to go to church. And also they swear—and can't seem to help it. Some men do all of these things, but to find a man who does none of the things listed is to seek the almost impossible.

Tess, listen, if you find a nice chap who will be good to you, and make a good husband, marry him. A perfect man would be a terrible burden to bear.

Briton After Prize For Planet Message

Dr. Robinson, Friend of Long-Eared Mars Girl, Sure He Will Get $25,000.

London, Jan. 22 (United Press).—Dr. Hugh Mansfield Robinson, who recently failed in his attempts to communicate by radio with the planet of Mars, said tonight he was confident he would win a prize of $25,000 offered by F. G. Bonfils, Denver publisher, for the first successful effort to send a message to another planet.

"Bonfils is doing a great scientific work in testing my eight years of labor," Robinson said. "I am confident I will win the offer." Robinson, who asserts he has been in frequent telepathic communication with "Comaruru," a big-eared woman on Mars, suggests that Bonfils draft a question which he would transmit to Mars by telepathy, after which a disinterested party of judges would listen for a reply.

You're missing something if you don't hear "FORHAN'S SONG SHOP" Thursday night at 8, Sta. WRC.

Have you all of your own teeth?

Unless you take preventive measures now, the day is coming when you may know, to your sorrow, that the true meaning of the phrase "artificial denture" is often the extravagant price of self-neglect—false teeth. Here's the reason and the way to help safeguard health against the coming of this day.

Teeth are only as healthy as the gums. And gums, undernourished and under-exercised, soon surrender to dread diseases that ravage health and often destroy teeth. To prevent this, avail yourself of the best care that modern dentistry offers. Place yourself in the hands of your dentist at least twice a year. And brush your gums when you brush your teeth, every morning and night.

But for this purpose—use Forhan's for the Gums . . . the dentifrice designed to help firm gums and keep them sound, thus protecting them from the attack of disease.

Use Forhan's regularly. You'll be delighted with the way it makes your gums look and feel. In addition, you'll notice that it effectively and safely cleans teeth and helps to protect them from decay. Get a tube of Forhan's—today!

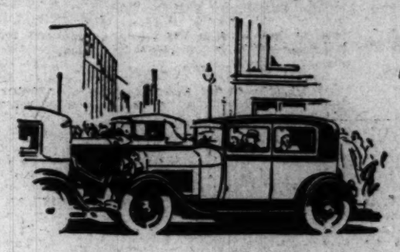
Safety, silence and simplicity are features of the new Ford six-brake system



ONE of the first things you will notice when you drive the new Ford is the quick, effective, silent action of its six-brake system.

This system gives you the highest degree of safety and reliability because the four-wheel service brakes and the separate emergency or parking brakes are all of the mechanical, internal-expanding type, with braking surfaces fully enclosed for protection against mud, water, sand, etc.

The many advantages of this type of braking system have long been recognized. They are brought to you in the new Ford through a series of mechanical improvements embodying much that is new in design and manufacture.

A particularly unique feature is the simple way by which a special drum has been constructed to permit the use of two sets of internal brakes on the rear wheels.

The brake construction on the front wheels also is unusual. Here the brakes are enclosed without the use of a leather boot or sliding joint to protect the linkage between the brake rods and the mechanism on the brake plate.

A further improvement is effected by the self-centering feature of the four-wheel brakes—an exclusive Ford development. Through this construction, the entire surface of the shoe is brought in contact with the drum the instant you press your foot on the brake pedal. This prevents screeching and howling and makes the Ford brakes unusually silent.

Another feature of the Ford brakes is the ease of adjustment.

The four-wheel brakes are adjusted by turning a regulating screw conveniently located on the outside of each brake plate. This screw is so notched that all four brakes can be set alike simply by listening to the "clicks."

The emergency or parking brakes on the new Ford require little attention. However, should they need adjustment at any time, consult your Ford dealer for prompt, courteous, and economical service. He works under close factory supervision and he has been specially trained and equipped to help you get the greatest possible use from your car over the longest period of time at a minimum of trouble and expense.

INQUIRY IS BEGUN IN CAVE-IN DEATH

SECOND MAN IS INJURED

The office of the building inspector began an investigation yesterday to determine the cause for the caving in of the concrete flooring and forms at the new building under construction at Connecticut avenue and Porter street northwest where one man was killed and another severely injured.

Col. John W. Oehmann, building inspector, assigned A. T. Rogers, Thomas Doyle and J. J. McGuire to the investigation immediately following the crash yesterday morning. Later in the day Col. Oehmann, himself, visited the scene in order to report to Col William Ladue, District Engineer Commissioner who had personally ordered an investigation.

A colored man, whose name was given as H. Roberts, 45 years old, bricklayer's helper, was instantly killed when crushed beneath the deluge of wet concrete, steel reinforcement and forms for holding the concrete flooring in place. An inquest will be held this morning.

William A. Young, also colored, 24 years old, 450 M street northwest, was struck on the head by falling debris. He was treated at Emergency Hospital for cuts on his scalp and bruises.

The building is being erected by William Bralove, 1738 Webster street northwest, the police reported, and A. B. Moses is doing the concrete work. The concrete was being poured in place for the second floor and suddenly crashed down on the workmen below, carrying with it the steel reinforcement and forms.

Firemen who hurried to the scene and fellow-workers dug Roberts from beneath the concrete. His body was badly mutilated. For a time it was thought others had been buried.

The collapse of a section of the floor, which was being poured, probably was due to failing of the supports which held the frame into which the concrete was being poured, Oehmann said. It was reported that one of the laborers wheeling a barrow of bricks had struck one of the props supporting the framework and wet concrete, but this was not substantiated.

What the Commissioners will do about the matter remains to be seen. They said yesterday that they had not sufficient information about the accident to discuss it intelligently and must await detailed explanations.

There apparently was no lack of inspectors involved in the latest fatal building accident, Col. Oehmann declaring that his inspector had been at the job Monday and was preparing to make another inspection today when the collapse occurred.

It was indicated that officials regarded the accident as just another of those things which are to be expected and which they will not be able to forestall in the future, despite the constantly growing number of building and construction accidents which cost the lives of workmen.

Dean of Cathedral In New York Quits

Differences With Bishop Manning One Reason for Resignation.

New York, Jan. 22 (A.P.).—The resignation of the Very Rev. Howard C. Robbins, dean of the Cathedral of St. John the Divine, to take effect March 31, was accepted today at a meeting of the trustees of the cathedral. The meeting was held in the Bishop's house because of the illness of Bishop William T. Manning. The resignation was tendered by Dean Robbins December 28, but action on it was postponed first because of the reluctance of the trustees to accept it and later because of Bishop Manning's illness.

The dean said one of his reasons for resigning was because of a difference of opinion between himself and the bishop as to matters of administration. The dean is at present in California visiting with a sister, who is ill. Although his resignation does not take effect until March 31 he was granted a leave of absence until that time.

The trustees issued a statement announcing their "regretful acceptance" of the dean's resignation and expressed the hope that he would continue his relationship with the cathedral "as one of its stated special preachers." No mention was made of a possible successor to Dean Robbins.

What the Elementary Schools of Washington Are Doing Educationally

III. ARITHMETIC.

Aims and Purposes.

In the elementary schools number arises in the daily activities of the classroom and is expanded to enable the pupils to meet their practical needs.

The elementary classes include two groups, the primary or kindergarten, first, second and third grades, and the intermediate, or fourth, fifth and sixth grades. The pupils in the primary grades gain through their many experiences a broad acquaintance with numbers, skill in working with the most used basic facts and simple operations, ability to read and write needed numbers and common expressions of United States money, understanding of simple fractional parts, familiarity with the common units of length, weight, and content, and power to solve the simple problems that arise in their daily lives. In the intermediate grades broader application is made of this work in the solving of more difficult problems and examples. Here common and decimal fractions are studied. Special emphasis is placed upon the solving of such problems as the pupil meets in the life about him. Through all the work it is the aim to reach accepted standards of skill, speed and accuracy.

Methods of Instruction.

Most of the teaching of arithmetic in the primary schools is done informally, or incidentally, in connection with games and plays, in the handling of classroom materials and in the children's actual experiences of buying and selling. Formal instruction is given on a few units of work in the second grade and is used in ever-increasing amounts in succeeding grades through the sixth. The definite units thus taught are selected to meet the growing needs of the pupils. In many schools diagnostic tests are given. On the basis of the test results, the classes are separated into groups and instruction is given to meet the indicated needs of each group. Frequently individual and class graphs are kept which show each child his own progress and the progress of his group. Each semester, in grades above the second, achievement tests are given by the research department. Study of the results show how each pupil and each school measures up to accepted standards of the grade.

Time.

In the weekly program, the time allowed for the teaching of arithmetic varies from 150 minutes a week in the second grade to 185 minutes a week in the sixth grade. Each pupil, however, spends on the study of arithmetic as much of this time as he needs to meet the standards of his group.

Results.

In schools where tests have been made by the research department and where recommendations for the use of practice material and for improved methods of instruction have been followed, marked improvement in arithmetical power is shown.

POLICEMAN OUSTED ON NEGLECT CHARGE

J. W. H. Smith, Thrice Fined, Accused Also of Making False Statement.

ONCE AIDED COLLECTOR

Policeman J. W. H. Smith, of the Fourth Precinct, who achieved some notoriety last September when he was charged with accompanying a bill collector to a citizens home and threatening to arrest a woman if she did not pay a bill, yesterday was discharged from the police force by the District Commissioners.

Smith had been found guilty by the trial board of neglect of duty and making a false statement to his superior officer, and was recommended for dismissal. This sentence was confirmed yesterday. Actually Smith was charged with deserting his post of duty in the First Precinct, on December 12, where he had been temporarily assigned, and going in an automobile of another policeman, who was off duty, to a "hot dog" stand at the end of highway bridge. Questioned by Capt. Fred Cornwell, of the Fourth Precinct, Smith said he had gone to the stand to get a pistol needed as evidence in Police Court.

Smith pleaded for a fine instead of dismissal when brought before the trial board.

"You realize what it would mean if you told a lie on the stand and some man's life was at stake?" Inspector Louis J. Stoll, trial board member, asked in the course of the trial.

"I did not lie to injure anybody's character or hurt them in any way," Smith explained, adding he wanted to save himself trouble.

Smith, who lives in Riverdale, Md., was appointed to the police force February 16, 1925. He was fined three times and warned twice about various actions, including the episode when he was charged with trying to help a bill collector by threatening to arrest a woman. He was fined $20 twice for failing to patrol his beat, and $25 for gambling and permitting gaming.

ENGINES' OPERATION AUTO SHOW FEATURE

Brake, Transmission and Oil Systems Will Be Given Vivid Demonstrations.

ARTISTS DIRECT DISPLAYS

The operating methods of the latest motor car engines, braking and transmission systems and lubricating devices will be vividly demonstrated to visitors at the ninth annual automobile show, which will be formally opened at the Washington Auditorium Saturday evening under auspices of the Washington Automotive Trade Association. This feature will be found among the numerous educational exhibits planned for a motor-minded public.

In announcing the adjunct to the show, Rudolph Jose, chairman of the show committee and director of the exposition, asserted yesterday that there will be more such displays on view this year than ever before in the history of the local show.

"In deference to the great public interest in the most recent mechanical developments," Mr. Jose said, "many highly interesting exhibits have been prepared for the show which will demonstrate precisely the manner in which the latest creations derive their superior qualities of power, speed, strength and general efficiency."

With the show doors scheduled to be thrown open at 7:30 o'clock Saturday evening, the Washington Auditorium is rapidly assuming its finished decorated state. Workmen, under the direction of a corps of artists, have been busy for several days providing a colorful background for the cars to be displayed in the show. Soon their work will be completed and the dealers will begin moving their cars into the Auditorium and whipping everything into final shape for the opening.

The show will be open until 10:30 o'clock Saturday evening. It will be closed Sunday, but throughout the ensuing week the doors will be open from 1:30 to 10:30 p. m., daily.

The show committee, headed by Mr. Jose, has as its other members J. E Dugan, Raphael Semmes and Frank P. Stewart.

WORKERS FOR CHEST OPEN DRIVE MONDAY

SPEAKERS SPREAD PLEA

Captains and team workers in the Community Chest campaign will open the drive with a dinner Monday night at 6:30 o'clock in the Mayflower Hotel, Elwood street, director of the chest, announced yesterday.

In order that the District quota of $1,343,348 be successfully raised, it is of great importance that all workers meet and exchange ideas as to how best to approach prospective subscribers.

The dinner will be supplemented with a meeting Thursday at 1:30 o'clock in the Y. M. C. A. Building of Division, No. 21, of the Metropolitan unit of the Community Chest campaign. Arthur C. Smith is chairman, and he has arranged for several of the performers at the Belasco Theater to be present.

Throughout next week Station WOL will devote an hour each night to Community Chest speeches. Then between 7 and 8 o'clock Ralph Garren's Concert Orchestra will give a musical program.

The campaign speakers are already busy stirring up interest among various civic groups. The employes of the Capital Traction Co. heard an address last night by Rufus Lusk. John Poole, chairman of the campaign, also spoke last night before the Cleveland Park Club.

L. W. Degast, secretary of the Metropolitan unit, addressed a meeting last night of Division, No. 10, at McKinley Manual Training School.

Tonight Leo Kolb will touch upon the subject at the banquet to be given in honor of Archbishop Michael J. Curley at the Mayflower Hotel.

Community Chest work will be discussed also at a meeting of the Georgetown Social Service Conference at the Farmers and Mechanics Bank at Wisconsin avenue and M street this afternoon at 4 o'clock.

Coolidge Favors Fete On Birthday of Party

(Associated Press.)

President Coolidge favors a proposal that the seventy-fifth anniversary of the founding of the Republican party be observed with suitable ceremonies.

It has been suggested that such a celebration be held in Kansas City, but Mr. Coolidge understands that several other places, including one in Michigan and one in Wisconsin, claim the distinction of having been the birthplace of the party. While he believes that an agreement may not be reached as to the place, Mr. Coolidge sees no obstacle to agreeing on the year, if not the exact date.

Bladder Trouble?

This extremely painful and often serious affliction need not cause despair. Quite often the cause can be traced to the improper functioning of the kidneys, which have allowed irritating poisons to remain in the urine. Mountain Valley Mineral Water from Hot Springs, Arkansas, is a valuable aid in treating Bladder Inflammation because it tends to soothe the inflamed cells and to neutralize the acids which are the cause of the irritation. Physicians have prescribed it for 30 years. Why suffer longer? Order a case today. Ask anyone who has been to Hot Springs, Arkansas.

70 of 81 Sentenced In Chicago Liquor Cases

Chicago, Jan. 22 (U.P.).—Sentences and fines were imposed in Federal court today on 70 of 81 persons indicted in the Melrose Park liquor cases.

Fines ranging from $50 to $500 were imposed on 43, sentences of one day in custody of the United States marshal were given to 15 and 2 were sentenced to 60 days in the workhouse. Four of eleven who stood trial were acquitted. Several defendants died and others evaded arrest.

2 COAST GUARDS GO ON TRIAL AS KILLERS

U. S. Defends Men Who Shot Unoffending Autoist at Boatswain's Order.

PAIR ON LIQUOR PATROL

Elmira, N. Y., Jan. 22 (United Press). The question of how far a Federal agent trying to enforce the prohibition law has a legal right to go in the use of a gun is involved in the trial of two men which began here today.

The men are Glen Jennings, surfman, and Frank L. Beck, boatswain, in the United States Coast Guard. They killed Jacob A. Hanson, secretary of the Niagara Falls Lodge of Elks, and a man of standing in his home town.

A jury was completed today, after Judge John R. Hazel, of Buffalo, presiding, had impressed upon all connected with the case that it was one of far-reaching importance. Evidence will get under way tomorrow.

Because of the importance of the case to the Government, Richard H. Templeton, United States attorney for the Western District of New York, is conducting the defense of two Coast Guardsmen. He contends that they were acting in the line of duty when they shot Hanson, after he failed to stop for inspection of his car.

Raymond A. Knowles, district attorney for Niagara County, is prosecuting. It is his contention that there was no basis for suspicion that Hanson was violating the prohibition law and no justification for the shooting.

A new standard of quietness

One of the things you'll like best about the General Electric Refrigerator is the quietness with which it operates. At a distance of a few feet you can barely hear it. Sometimes you'll wonder if it is running. The motor is automatically turned on whenever the temperature rises a little and stops when the temperature is reduced. Still you are hardly aware when it starts or when it stops.

Designed by the Research Laboratories of General Electric, after fifteen years of most careful development, this distinctively electric refrigerator had to be remarkably quiet to merit the General Electric name. It had to be economical and worry-proof.

The mechanism, all contained in an hermetically sealed steel casing, is dirt-proof, so automatic you do not even oil it and placed up on top so that every inch of cabinet space is left free for food storage.

It keeps food always at precisely the right temperature. It freezes an ample supply of ice cubes. Its porcelain finished surface inside is easy to clean. And it is up on legs so that cleaning underneath is easy.

There's a right size for every home. Phone for an illustrated book, then come to our display rooms and examine any model as critically as you wish.

Any General Electric Refrigerator may be placed in your home upon a small down payment.

Bids Mark Bridge Play Over Radio

Experts' Game Explained. Work's Handling of Hand Intriguing Illustration of "Elimination" During the Contest.

Several very interesting points in Bridge bidding and play were brought out in yesterday's Radio Bridge Game, broadcast from Station WRC. Mrs. Virginia Tubbs, of Chicago, and Mr. F. E. Bruelheide, of Minneapolis, were partners of Mr. Work and Mr. Whitehead. These were the hands:

Mr. Work, South, Dealer: Spades A, Q, 10, 9, 5; Hearts K, 4; Diamonds A, 10, 7, 6, 2; Clubs 3. Mr. Whitehead, West: Spades K, J, 3; Hearts A, J, 7, 6; Diamonds J, 4; Clubs K, 10, 7, 5. Mrs. Tubbs, North: Spades 7, 6, 4; Hearts Q, 5; Diamonds K, Q, 9, 5, 3; Clubs A, 9, 4. Mr. Bruelheide, East: Spades 8, 2; Hearts 10, 9, 8, 3, 2; Diamonds 8; Clubs Q, J, 8, 6, 2.

Holding a good two-suiter, Mr. Work, South, opened the auction by calling one Spade, the higher-valued of his two suits. Mr. Whitehead, West, had two possible declarations: One No Trump, or Double. He preferred the informatory double, as the surest way to discover the bid which best suited his partner. If the latter responded with Hearts, Mr. Whitehead could assist the bid. A Diamond bid from his partner would make Mr. Whitehead safe in No Trumps. If Clubs were the answer, Mr. Whitehead would rest content.

After Mr. Whitehead's double of South's Spade, Mrs. Tubbs, North, passed. In response to the double Mr. Bruelheide, East, said two Hearts, although his Club suit was stronger. As an informatory double always should be construed as an effort to arrive at a game-going bid, the preferable answer always is a Major suit or No Trump. When one Major is doubled the inference is clear that the doubler is anxious for the other Major. Therefore if partner holds at least four cards of the other Major he should name that suit rather than a Minor, even though his Minor be both longer and stronger.

Mr. Work, South, said three Diamonds, seizing his first opportunity to show the two-suited character of his hand. Mr. Whitehead, West, went to three Hearts. Although he realized that his partner might have a very weak hand, he was sure that he held at least four Hearts. Mr. Whitehead's own strength in Hearts, his doubleton in Diamonds, and his Spade holding amply justified the assist.

Mrs. Tubbs, North, bid four Diamonds. Although she held normal support for the Spades, her Diamonds were so much longer and stronger that she felt game at Diamonds was much more probable than game at Spades. It was possible that her partner, following the correct procedure of bidding the higher-valued suit of a two-suiter first, had started by bidding a four-card Major, and then had bid a five-card Minor. Since South surely had as many Diamonds as Spades * * * possibly one more Diamond than Spade * * * and as North was so much longer and stronger in Diamonds, the latter suit clearly was the one for North to assist.

After Mrs. Tubbs' Diamond assist, all passed. Mr. Work, South, became the Declarer, with his contract four Diamonds; and Mr. Whitehead, West, had the original lead, for which he correctly chose his Ace of Hearts. From Mrs. Tubb's hand, which was then spread as Dummy, Mr. Work, Declarer, played the 8 of Hearts. Mr. Bruelheide, East, played the discouraging 2. This discouraging card plainly informed his partner, Mr. Whitehead, that Mr. Bruelheide did not hold the King.

Mr. Work, Declarer, before taking a card from his own hand, determined upon his plan of play. Having decided that the Queen of Hearts in Dummy would be more useful as an entry than the King of Hearts in his own hand, he played the latter to the trick.

Mr. Whitehead, West, having noted his partner's play of the 2 to the first trick, interpreted it merely as an indication that his partner did not hold the King, rather than as an invitation to shift suits. Since Declarer evidently could make Dummy's Queen of Hearts at his convenience, and since Mr. Whitehead, by a shift to Spades or Clubs, might readily lose a trick in the suit led, Mr. Whitehead continued with Hearts, leading the 6. Dummy played the Queen of Hearts; Mr. Bruelheide the 3; Declarer the 4.

Declarer's two hands were then exhausted of Hearts; he also planned to eliminate Clubs, after which, by an end play, he could force the lead of a Spade from an adversary, thus limiting his loss in Spades to one trick. This one Spade trick added to the Ace of Hearts already taken by adversaries, would still give Declarer game.

Therefore Declarer started the Club elimination by leading Dummy's Ace of Clubs; Mr. Bruelheide played the 2; Declarer his lone 3; Mr. Whitehead the 9. Dummy continued with the 4 of Clubs; Mr. Bruelheide played the 6; Declarer trumped with the 10 of Diamonds; Mr Whitehead played the 7 of Clubs. Declarer next led the 2 of Diamonds to put Dummy in for another Club lead and incidentally to reduce the adversaries' trumps. Mr. Whitehead played the 4 of Diamonds; Dummy the King; Mr. Bruelheide the 8. Declarer then led Dummy's last Club, the 9; Mr. Bruelheide played the 8; Declarer trumped with the Ace of Diamonds; Mr. Whitehead played the 10 of Clubs.

Hearts and Clubs were now eliminated from Declarer's two hands. Accordingly he led the 6 of Diamonds to draw the adversaries' last trump and put Dummy in for a Spade lead. Mr. Whitehead played the Jack of Diamonds; Dummy the Queen; Mr. Bruelheide discarded the 5 of Hearts.

Dummy then led the 4 of Spades; Mr. Bruelheide played the 2; Declarer the 9; and Mr Whitehead won with the Jack. At this point the adversaries were beaten. Whatever Mr. Whitehead led, Declarer would win all the rest of the tricks. If Mr. Whitehead led a Heart or a Club, Declarer could discard Dummy's only losing Spade and trump in his own hand. If he led a Spade it would come up to Declarer's Ace-Queen, both of which would then make.

As his only chance, Mr. Whitehead led the 3 of Spades; after which it was easy for Declarer to show that the rest of the tricks were his, giving him five tricks, game in Diamonds--a score of 35 for tricks and 40 for honors.

Mr. Work's play of this hand, which would be the same both at Auction and at Contract Bridge, was an interesting illustration of what is appropriately called "Elimination." There are many deals in which, if the cards of a certain suit or suits are exhausted in Declarer's two hands, and then an adversary is placed in the lead the adversary will have to lead the suit the Declarer wishes led, up to the hand to which the Declarer wishes the lead to come. In hands in which elimination can be worked, the adversaries are helpless and have no way to circumvent the scheme of the Declarer.

In discussing the bidding of this hand at Contract, Mr Work stated it as his opinion that the Contract bidding would follow the Auction declaration, with the possible exception of North's second-round assisting bid of four Diamonds. In Contract, North probably would feel justified in bidding five Diamonds, a game-goer, instead of four over West's three Hearts.

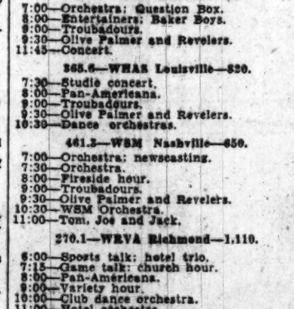
WORK'S BRIDGE

THE QUESTIONS.



WHAT should the bidding of this deal be at Auction and Contract?

What should the play be to the first four tricks?

THE ANSWERS.

At Auction, South would become the Declarer with a contract of one No Trump.

At Contract, South would bid two No Trumps and North (with a count of 8—two more than 6, the minimum for a jump from two to three) would bid three No Trumps.

The play to the first four tricks should be:—

Trick 1. West, Four of Spades; North the Five; East, the Deuce, and South the Queen or Jack.

To the second and third tricks South leads the Ace and King of Clubs; and to the fourth, leads the Six of Spades which Dummy wins with the Ten if West play small, with the Ace if West play the Knig.

South goes up with a Spade honor on the first trick so as to make Dummy's Ten of Spades an entry as well as his Ace; it is essential that North should have two entries. If South should win the first trick with the Six of Spades, and should lead the Eight of Spades in his effort to put Dummy in, West, by playing the King, could force Dummy's Ace, leaving no second Spade entry in the exposed hand because South would have left Queen-Jack, North the Ten. Played in that way Declarer would make four Spades, but only two Clubs. Without two entries Dummy could not run his long suit.

Dummy leads a Club to trick 5 and clears his suit while he still has an entry. Declarer makes three Spades, one Heart, one Diamond and four Clubs—a total of nine tricks and game.

TODAY'S WOMEN

By EARL MINDERMAN.

JANUARY 23.

GRAND DUCHESS CHARLOTTE, who reigns over the duchy of Luxembourg, was born this day, 1896. Charlotte succeeded her sister as the grand duchess in January, 1919. In November of that year, she married Prince Felix of Bourbon-Parma. The heir apparent is their son, Prince Jean. They have three children.

Her country, four-fifths the size of Rhode Island, is surrounded by Germany, Belgium and France. At the outbreak of the World War, Germany entered the duchy in violation of an old treaty and occupied it during the war.

In 1919, the citizens voted overwhelmingly in favor of continuing Charlotte as the grand duchess. The population of her duchy is about 261,000. About 95 per cent of the country is devoted to farming although there are rich iron and steel mines. Legislative power is vested in a chamber of 43 deputies elected by the people. The population is almost entirely Catholic. The industries include weaving, glove-making, paper mills, breweries and distilleries.

The duchess' army is composed of about 150 men, while the gendarmerie (constabulary) is composed of an equal number.

Schutt Joins Troubadours In Air Role

Will Play Piano Solo at 9 P. M.—Verdi's "Aida" at Chicago—Meyerbeer's Coronation March at 11. Nonsense at 9:30 P. M.

The Troubadors have added the well-known pianist, arranger and composer, Arthur Schutt, to their ensemble and will feature this new Troubadour in a piano solo at 9 o'clock tonight. Mr. Schutt is a musician of the modern school and is well known for his "Delirium" and other original compositions. He has played with some of the most prominent orchestras in America and has been featured from time to time on the various radio hours. Mr. Schutt has been particularly successful as an arranger of musical comedy scores and has recently been signed to a long-term contract by a prominent theatrical producer.

Troubadour Schutt will act as accompanist, piano soloist and arranger on all future Troubadour programs. Tonight he will be heard in a characteristic rendering of "St. Louis Blues."

The program for the Palmolive Hour tonight follows:

"One Step to Heaven, ensemble; "Let's Sit and Talk About You," tener and soprano duet; "Out Where the Blue Begins," Specialty Orchestra; "Naughty Marietta," the Revelers; "Vienna Woods," Oliver Palmer, soprano; "In the Village," Symphony Orchestra; "Thank God for a Garden," tenor solo, Paul Oliver; "Foolin' the Fiddle," violin solo; "Brown Bird Singing," soprano and contralto duet; "Anitra's Dance," from "Peer Gynt" suite, ensemble; "Just You and Me," Specialty Orchestra; "Mamma's in the Cold, Cold Ground," the Revelers; "Pom Pom," saxophone duet; "By My Fireside," tenor solo; March from "Carmen," Symphony Orchestra; "Glow Worm," soprano solo; "My Scandinavian Gal," the Revelers; "Shout Hallelujah," Specialty Orchestra, and "Chalita," ensemble.

The spectacular "Coronation March" from Meyerbeer's opera, "Le Prophet," will open the hour of slumber music at 11 o'clock from WRC. Other numbers include the overture to "Czar und Zimmermann," selection from "The Black Huzzar," "Dream Picture," "Serenade," "Awakening of Spring," "Agnus Dei" and "Maria Wiegenlied."

A portion of Verdi's "Aida," presented by the Chicago Civic Opera Company, will be broadcast direct from the stage of the Auditorium Theater, Chicago, at 10 o'clock tonight from stations WJZ, WBAL and WLW.

Clayton, Jackson and Durante, three masters of nonsense, will supply the laughs for the La Palina Smoker from station WMAL, at 9:30 o'clock tonight.

Ludwig Van Beethoven will be honored in the musical episodes at 8 o'clock through WMAL. The festivities in Beethoven's honor will take the form of a reproduction of the grand soiree given for him at the castle of Count Lichnowsky in Vienna, where many of the great master's compositions will be played. The outstanding feature of this broadcast will be the rendition of the "Moonlight Sonata."

Musical selections for a string quartet will be the outstanding feature of the program that the Kolster Radio Hour will broadcast at 10 o'clock tonight. These numbers will consist of "Three Miniatures," by Cyril Scott, and the "Song of the Volga Boatmen." In addition, the orchestra will play Schubert's "Minuet," Weber's "Momento Capriccioso" and Victor Herbert's "Badinage."

The U. S. Army Band will play from Station WJSV for an hour, at 7:30 o'clock tonight. Chick Godfrey, the singing leatherneck; the Hilo Boy Hawaiians, Fran Trappe and his one-man band, and the Harmonious Twins, are other features scheduled for this evening.

The Wardman Park Dance Orchestra will be featured from Station WOL between 10 o'clock and midnight. Earlier features will be broadcast as usual, beginning with the Musical Clock at 7:30 a. m., and followed by the morning household chat and advertisers period, and the dinner music at 6 o'clock.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST.

THE DANGER OF PRAISE.

One time she made a devil's food
When we were early wed.
"My darling, dear, this cake is good,"
While eating it I said.
"I'll vow it is the finest cake
Of all the tasty things you make."

I fancied then man should bestow
A little word of praise
When pleasure has been his to know
'Tis but a debt he pays.
I felt he should by word or look
Give recognition to the cook.

But woman has a curious way,
As I was soon to find.
She fed me devil's food each day
And naught of other kind.
For weeks and weeks no interlude
Relieved the flow of devil's food.

I longed to bite a chocolate cake
Or eat a currant bun.
I wished in secret she would make
A tart Napoleon,
Bread pudding, or I cared not what,
But devil's food was all I got.

At last in desperation I
Let loose like one insane.
I think the neighbors heard me cry:
"What! Devil's food again!"
She said, as though I'd struck a blow,
"My dear, I thought you liked it so!"

And now whatever food she serves
Not by a word or look
Is praise of mine, which she deserves,
Bestowed upon the cook.
I once thought devil's food sublime
'Till forced to eat it all the time.

Dare Interprets the Mode

New York, Jan. 23, 1929.

THE bolero and its "near relatives" have been an important feature of the mode from time to time for a good many years now. Its popularity wanes and waxes, and judiciously used it is always effective.

The originator of the bolero was Monsieur Redfern—who is not French but English by birth—and in a conversation one afternoon about the developments and changes of fashion he told us of its beginnings.

Inspired by Eton Jacket.

The bolero was not, as its name might imply, inspired by the Spanish or Mexican garment by that name. Monsieur Redfern got his idea from the Eton jacket worn by English schoolboys—and this short-waisted coat became the bolero jacquette for milady.

One of the designers featuring the bolero conspicuously at the moment is Mme. Wormser at the Maison Cheruit, who uses many of them on frocks for daytime wear. For the most part they are a bit longer than the usual bolero, dipping a trifle at the back, and are scalloped around the edges.

Quite charming, we assure you!

Aren't January sales too marvelous? And we'll bet you don't know how to make a step-in and vest from a yard and a half of material—no fooling and no cheating, and skimpless as it were.

But we tell you how to make a tailored step-in and vest set from a yard and a half, a dressier set from two yards (for afternoon wear) and an adorable evening set of lace and satin 'n' chiffon.

You see, you send your stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Dare department of The Washington Post and get our illustrated leaflet telling you how to make these sets now, or you can buy remnants 'n' bargains 'n' things, and put 'em all away if you haven't time now.

No one can employ color in quite the manner of Marynowitsky. If you can conceive a teagown of orchid chiffon, with a red velvet drapery in back, and irregular panels on the skirt, two of which on each side are light blue, then you can picture a typical Marynowitsky creation.

I tried to sketch it for you today, and can only regret that it couldn't be painted for you in colors.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. W. A. EVANS

KING GEORGE'S ILLNESS.

WE have been asked why King George got sick so slowly and is recovering by such slight daily gains. The answers given are based on the assumption that the ordinary newspaper reports of his illness are correct. The questions might be transferred into: Why does an ordinary pleurisy develop rather gradually, at least in many cases? Why does a pleurisy yield slowly to treatment?

In the minds of both the interviewer and the interviewed there is contrast between pneumonia and pleurisy as to both onset and convalescence. Pneumonia is prone to start with a chill, high fever, and other evidence of shock. Infection and inflammation of the nearby pleura are apt to start otherwise. In tubercular pleurisy the physician is apt to find the pleural cavity full of fluid, even though there has been no chill, no fever, and no shock.

When an ordinary pleurisy starts with a pain in the side the discomfort is apt to disappear as fluid accumulates in the sac There may be a sudden onset of the disorder somewhat like the onset of pneumonia, but that is not the rule. The patient with pneumonia is a seriously sick man from the start; the one with pleurisy is apt to be free from shock and to have no evidence of being toxic for several days. Perhaps the principal reason for the difference is that the pleura is not richly supplied with lymph channels blood vessels, or nerves. Another reason is that the pneumonia microbe is not the most frequent cause of pleurisy.

And now to the second question. Pneumonia is apt to terminate by crisis. This morning the patient is very sick, skin dry and high fever, rapid breathing, fast pulse, mind clouded. This afternoon, skin cool and covered with sweat, fever low, pulse low, breathing quiet, patient weak, sleeping peacefully The two pictures are exactly like those of diphtheria before and after a big dose of antitoxin.

In pleurisy, convalescence is different. The gains are gradual and interrupted There are periodic setbacks. Weeks are required for complete cure. There is nothing that happens similar to that which happens after the use of antitoxin.

One reason for the slower recovery after pleurisy is that there is no way out There are no bronchial tubes leading to the outside. Such lymph and blood stream absorption as goes on is inadequate. Sometimes the physician drains off the pus with a needle As a rule, an open incision and a drainage tube must be used.

The pleural sac in pleurisy becomes in effect a large abscess wall. After drainage the walls of an ordinary abscess collapse and healing is prompt. In pleurisy the bony chest walls keep the abscess walls apart. Therefore it is often advisable to take out pieces of ribs, sometimes of several, to let the walls collapse and grow together.

These are the principal reasons for the slow convalescence after severe pleurisy.

A Famous Temple of India.

WHEN we speak of an Indian, we usually mean one of the "red men" who were native to the Americas when Columbus came. He gave the natives that mistaken name, thinking he had found an island off the coast of India. We have kept the name through all these years.

Gate to the grounds of the temple at Seringham.

True Indians, however, are natives of India. There are about 300,000,000 of them—more than all the people who live in North and South America.

The people of India have brown skins—sometimes light brown, but more often very dark. Because of their color you might mistake them for negroes, but if you look closely you see that they are very different. Their hair is straight, and their lips are thin and sensitive. Their eyes are commonly dark brown, sometimes seeming almost black.

India has a long history and its people have shown many proofs of their brain power. Our system of numbers—1, 2, 3, 5, 10 and so on—it is believed to have been invented in India. It is a much better system than the numbers used by the Romans.

India is the home of many religions—and contains Buddhists, Brahmans and Mohammedans. One of the gods worshiped by the Brahmans is Vishnu. He has been called the parent of the god Brahma.

In the town of Seringham is a famous temple which was built in honor of Vishnu. The fame of the temple arises chiefly from the seven squares around it. The outermost square is more than a mile on each side. The squares are one within another, and are about 117 yards apart. They remind me of toy balls with covers which can be opened. Inside is another ball, and when you open that you find still another. In the same way, you pass from one square to another as you seek to reach the temple of Vishnu.

At the center of each side of each square is a gate. The gates are located so that they open toward the north, south, east and west.

YOUR BOY AND YOUR GIRL

By ARTHUR DEAN, SC. D.
The Parent Counselor.

DEAR Master X: Your papa and mamma have asked me to name you.

Looking like bottled sunshine I'll call you Little Billie Sunshine. Then by and by when you try to reach the moon with your tiny fingers, I'll call you Attaboy. When you drain the milky bottle and yell for more I'll say, "Here's Bill Gogettem" and daddy's heart will swell with the feeling that some day you'll be a great salesman.

When you have tantrums I will not have to give you a name because your papa may be saying, "Shutup" so much that you will think that's your name. That's a very naughty name to call a little boy. Much better for your father to find out why you have tantrums; maybe it's a pin, or you are hungry, or you want to go to bed, or, heaven forbid, you just want to try out your voice.

In other words, Lord X, Lord of Creation and Chief Joy and Troublemaker, I'd give you a different name in your different moods and different ages until that time when you settled down to look like somebody or act like somebody and hold to that "somebodiness" for at least five days; then I'd give you a name symbolizing your temporary disposition.

This means an awful lot of names and perhaps you will be full of names all your life because you may never settle down. Who knows?

If you have a nice father it might be well to call you "Junior" because you would have his example in front of you, just like the bantam hen had the ostrich egg hung over her nest.

Really, Master X, your coming into the family makes a tremendous amount of work for me. Now I have to write "Advice to Papa" articles—how he must teach you not to grab things off the table, how he must hold you when he gives you those little joy rides in the night when mother peacefully sleeps; how he should select educative and simple toys.

I must tell mother about breaking the enuresis habit and about food fussing. Oh, please, Master X, don't food fuss because it is terribly silly and a perfect waste of time. If you knew your mother as well as I do, you'd know that she's going to know just what you ought to eat and that she is going to make you eat it. So there!

Master X, congratulations! You have a wonderful pair of parents. You can depend absolutely on your father's word. Stick pretty close to him. If he tells you he is your best friend I am sure you will grow up to find out that he is.

And your ma is wonderful. But, then, you will hear that from everybody. Now don't forget that you must be very careful of what you do in life so she will always be able to continue to have her present youthful beauty, her enthusiasms in life and her joyous chuckle.

Surely, Master X, by your actions you don't want to make your mamma into an old lady, do you? And when you rub your hands over that soft face of hers be careful, little boy, because—oh, well, just because you don't want to get red on your pretty little white dress. Your new friend.

ARTHUR DEAN.

OUR CONVERSATION CORNER.
A Vocational Detour.

Would you suggest going to college without any definite goal and just take a general course?

HIGH SCHOOL GRAD.

Answer—If you do not know what you are going to do it is better to keep on Educational Broadway and not go up any side streets. But the time will come when the vocational traffic cop will signal for you to make a right or left turn and then you must decide. Well to know beforehand or else you may get on a one-way street.

Youth's Human Touch.

My name is too long to write on the newspaper clipping for my request for rules in table manners, so mamma tells me to write a letter.

I eat potato chips with my fingers and creamed potatoes with a fork.

I have four pets, a pure white kitty, whose name is "Snow," and a jet black kitty called "Coal." You would love my big collie because he is so nice and loves petting. But my pony is my best pet. ELEVEN-YEARS-OLD.

Answer—You do not know, Gwendolyn, how much I like to get letters from little girls like you.

I am glad you eat potato chips with your fingers and creamed potatoes with your fork.

So glad you have "Snow" and "Coal," but most of all I am glad you have a mother who encourages you to write to me and ask for my rules for "Table Manners." Already you have derived thrice times more value from these rules than if your mother had written for them and told you to read them.

What Today Means to You

JANUARY 23

"ACQUARIUS."

IF January 23 is your birthday, the most propitious hours for you today are from 8:45 a. m. to 9:45 a. m., from noon to 1 p. m., from 6:45 p. m. to 7:45 p. m., and from 10 p. m. to 11 p. m. The danger periods are from 10:45 a. m. to 11:45 a. m. and from 5 p. m. to 6 p. m.

Pessimism will prevail today. It would be wise to avoid coming to hasty decisions or making pessimistic prophecies as regards the future. Bear in mind that, "So far from going to meet trouble half way, it's better to wait till he calls. Then he mayn't!"

The child born today will be rather easy going, and though gifted with great intelligence, will not have the mental energy to exercise it. It will be affectionate and obedient, though in later years, it will acquire a wanderlust.

You are inclined to be difficult and obstinate at times. This very readily erases any chance of your attaining any success in business or any other profession where discipline must be maintained, as your obstinacy borders on insubordination at times. This trait absolutely overshadows the real ability and far seeing mind you possess, and they are both lost in a mire of seeming ignorance and stupidity brought about by your stubbornness. It is hard to drive you to do anything but strangely enough, those who know you well and whom you count your friends, can easily rule you.

You have not many friends and often wonder and debate in your mind the ingredients that go to making true and lasting friendships. You should bear in mind that the main qualifications for making friends are, "To be a good listener, sincerity in all things, and to be ready to give as well as to take; for true friendships are always evenly balanced." By those who are conversant with all your characteristics, you are generally well liked and respected.

Your marital relations will be extremely smooth and happy. Your mate will probably take the reins of leadership, but this will be conducive to your happiness.

Josiah Quincy, lawyer and patriot.

PRICE MOVEMENTS BROADLY IRREGULAR

CALL MONEY 6 PER CENT

Special to The Washington Post.

New York, Jan. 22.—Trading activity increased in today's extremely irregular stock market, featured by rather broad price changes, both upward and downward. In many cases the highest prices and the lowest prices of the day were made in the final hour. During the session 33 issues established new peak prices for the year or more and one a new low.

United States Steel common led the early advance, touching a new high at 190¼, but eased off to close at 187⅝, a net gain of 4⅜. Johns-Manville was in the front in the late trading, with a rise to a new top at 225, which also was the closing quotation, up 21 points net. Du Pont old stock, in a rather small turnover, went into new high ground at 600 and closed at 585¼, up 43¼ points net. The new, admitted to trading this morning, soared from 155¼ to 173, but backed down subsequently to 166¼.

Traders on the conservative side were encouraged by easier money, gold imports, and favorable news on industrial companies. Call money renewed at 6 per cent, but funds were plentiful on the outside at 5½ per cent, the supply greatly exceeding the demand. Undoubtedly currency contraction and reduction of industrial loans have gone forward at a great pace. Gold also is coming in but the effect of that is offset by earmarkings for foreign banks. Member banks in this district, it is believed, have cut down their discounts considerably since last week, but they evidently are not using up all the inflow for that purpose.

Time Money Is Unchanged.

Time money was unchanged and the high level of time funds as compared with call money seems to alarm some observers.

The coppers staged a strong forward movement, but in some cases the early gains were cut down in the late trading. American Smelting touched a new high price for the year at 104, and closed at 103¾, up 7⅝ net. The heaviest turnover occurred in Anaconda, which advanced sharply to a new high price level at 128⅞, then receded to 124⅞, the closing figure, a fractional loss on the day. Chile jumped to new high price territory at 92⅛, and closed at 92, a net gain of 2¾. Nevada gained 2⅛.

At a special meeting of the Anaconda board the expected offer to Chile minority holders for exchange of their stock was announced. The exchange basis of 73 shares of Anaconda for 100 shares of Chile was not far from some of the guesses made in Wall street, which were, of course, based on a comparison of the selling prices of the two stocks. The ratio announced was virtually the same as that of the current selling prices. Both sold off on the usual liquidation on the ground that the "news was out."

Further Offers Are Expected.

The fact that Anaconda directors also announced a plan to increase the capital stock in an amount greater than needed for the Chile exchange was taken to mean that further consolidation offers would be made. Anaconda holds a large interest in Andes, Greene Cananea, Inspiration and other companies. At the same time the dividend rate on Chile was raised from $3 to $3.50. Three months ago Chile raised the dividend from $2.50 to $3. From a dividend standpoint a Chile stockholder will gain through the exchange.

American Smelters easily crossed the 100 mark. On the old basis that means that the stock crossed 300 as predicted. It failed by a few points to reach that goal last year.

Independent and active movements occured in numerous issues in various sections of the list apart from those already mentioned. General Motors old and new were strong gaining 4⅛ and 1⅞ net in fairly large turnovers. Chrysler was on the upward move in the forenoon but lost part of its gains in the final closing hour with a net appreciation of 1⅛. Studebaker touched a new top at 95¾ and closed at 94⅛, up 2¾ net.

Public Service of New Jersey, said to be on its way to 100, scored a new high at 91¾ and closed at 91½, a net advance of 4¾.

Express Company Issues Gain.

The express company stocks gained from 2 to 14 points in moderate turnovers. Good gains were made also by American and Foreign Power, up 4⅛; Adatibi, 2⅝; Columbia Gas, 1⅞; Consolidated Gas, 2½; Peoples Gas in new high price ground for all time at 240, 17 points above yesterday's last price; United Paper Board, 4¾; Union Carbide, 7⅛; Stewart Warner, 4; Simmons, 2; Owens Bottle at a new top, 8⅜; Motor Products, also at a new high, 5¾; Federal Light and Traction 3¼; Mathieson Alkali, at a new peak, 10¼; Electric Auto Lite, 5½; Goodyear, 3¼; I. R. T., 3¾; Commercial Investment Trust, 6⅝; Columbia Graphaphone, 3⅛; and Federal Mining and Smelting, at a new high, 11.

Among the heaviest losers on the day were Case Threshing, 11¾; International Silver, 18¾; Loew, 3½; Weber & Heilbronner, 3¾; Warner Pictures, 5⅞; U. S. Hoffman, 2¾; National Bellas Hess, 3⅛; National Surety, 3; Pillsbury Flour preferred, 7¼; Royal Baking Powder, 2½; St. Joseph Lead, Liquid Carbonic and Houston Oil, 2¾ each; Cuyamel Fruit, Columbia Carbon, By-Products Coke, American International, American Radiator, 2 each; American Machine Foundry, 4; American Sugar and National Enamel, 1⅝ each.

Otis Elevator went down 10 points net when it was learned that reports of a stock split-up were exaggerated so far as the immediate future is concerned.

There was a slightly firmer tone in principal foreign exchanges, but business was light and interest centered upon sterling, in view of announcement of the first shipment of gold from London since last October. The rate opened slightly below $4.85 and then firmed up to that level.

Continental rates were only fractionally changed, but most of these were upward. Far East currencies were quiet and steady, as were the chief South American exchanges. Canadian dollars remained weak.

FEW BONDS RESIST DOWNWARD COURSE

New Highs Scored While General List Sells Off; Some Rails Strong.

FOREIGN GROUP MIXED

New York, Jan. 22 (A.P.).—Several issues, including Anaconda Copper, Public Service of New Jersey and some of the rails, climbed into new high ground in today's bond market, ignoring the downward trend in the general list. Most of the gains were in sympathy with similar rises on the stock market. Sales, totaling $10,746,000, were slightly heavier than in yesterday's trading.

Public Service of New Jersey 4½s followed the stock on the big board upward, establishing a new high at 202 and winding up the day at 201 for a net gain of 8 points. Utilities Power & Light 5½s, with a jump of 2½ points, New York State Railways convertible 4½s, up nearly 2 points, and Nassau Electric Railway convertible 4s moved to new peaks. The trend of most of the other utilities was downward.

Anaconda Copper 7s, after touching 206, closed at 203 for a net gain on the day of nearly 3 points. Chile Copper 5s advanced fractionally. Both advanced followed Anaconda Copper's announcement for exchange of minority Chile stock into Anaconda shares. U. S. Steel sinking fund 5s on further rumors of new capitalization plans also traveled into new high ground. Lehigh Valley Coal 5s slumped nearly 6 points, and Kayser & Co. 5½s touched a new low at 130½. Weakness was also displayed by Dodge Bros. convertible 6s and General Motors acceptance 6s.

In the stronger rail group, new highs were established by Chesapeake Corporation 5s, Hudson & Manhattan refunding 5s and Des Moines & Fort Dodge 4s and Minneapolis & St. Louis refunding 4s. Among the issues to sell off were Oregon Short Line 4s, which fell to a new low, Katy adjustment 5s and Erie general lien 4s.

The oils showed improvement on announcement of a new $100,000,000 oil investment trust. Colon 6s jumping to a new top.

The foreign list displayed a mixed tone, with Italian industrials in demand at higher prices.

Curb Review

New York, Jan. 22 (A.P.).—Continued heavy buying, with the utilities again the center of interest and mining, metal and specialty shares attracting increased attention, lifted scores of issues to new high-price levels on the Curb Market today. There was some irregularity, especially among oil and automotive stocks, but gains running as high as 24 points net tended to offset the declines.

The demand for utilities carried many of the issues to new high ground on wide gains. American Light & Traction, which registered a net advance of more than 17 points; Electric Bond & Share, up about 15 points net; American Superpower B, up nearly 10; Associated Gas & Electric A, National Public Service B, United Gas, Improvement Italian Superpower and a half dozen others established new 1929 tops.

Improving prices for metals, especially copper, brought buying support to mining and metal shares. The demand was augmented by reports of pending capitalization changes by larger copper corporations. Consolidated Copper Mines, Copper Range, Falcon Lead, Kennecott Copper new, Mond Nickel, New Jersey Zinc, with 28 points, to 324¾, as compared with the year's low of around 279, Noranda and others were carried to new high levels.

American Cyanamid B and rights both advanced to new peaks, up about 6 and 4 points, respectively, on expectation of expansion of production and earnings and acquisition of the Calco Chemical Co. American Solvents & Chemicals moved to a new high above 37 on buying influenced by announcement that earnings undoubtedly would be increased this year and that the company had acquired stocks of raw material at bargain prices. Other industrials to reach new high territory included Crocker Wheeler Electric, Agfa Ansco, Hercules Powder, Southwestern Dairy, Buzza Clark, Goldberg Stores and St. Regis Paper.

Oils generally yielded to selling influenced by announcement of reduced gasoline prices. Standard of Indiana and Humble improved fractionally, but Vacuum, Gulf and others declined a point or more. Pipe lines made wide gains, Eureka touching a new high at 69 and Illinois soaring more than 10 points to a new peak at 311½.

Automotive issues were quiet, although Firestone Tire advanced more than 14 points. Ford of England yielded fractionally and Ford of Canada clung to yesterday's levels. Among the few weak spots in the general list were Douglas Aircraft, Marconi International, United Shoe Machinery, Realty Associates, Neisner Brothers, Swift International and Wheeling Steel.

Yanks Install Numbers on Uniforms

Lead-Off Man to Get "No. 1"; Other Clubs Not Heard From.

By WILLIAM J. DUNN
(United Press Staff Correspondent).

NEW YORK, Jan. 22 (U.P.).—The old familiar refrain that "You can't tell the players without a score card" will sound through American League ball parks with fresh emphasis this coming season whenever the New York Yankees are to appear.

For the Yankees headquarters today announced an innovation in baseball which can only be ranked with the "ten-man nine" proposed by President John Haydler, of the National League. The world's champions will take the field April 16 with the backs of their uniforms numbered with figures 14 inches high, just as football jerseys are numbered.

The lead-off man, presumably Earl Combs will be "No. 1," and so on down the batting order, but each player on the roster will have a number which he will wear throughout the season—providing he stays with the Yankees. This will probably work out so that Babe Ruth's big "No 3" will come to be as famous as the "77" once worn by Red Grange.

May Insult Intelligence Of Dyed-in-Wool Fan.

It is a little early to learn whether other major league clubs will adopt the Yankee plan of numbering the players.

Baseball fans, so ardently familiar with the persons and personalities of ball players, may resent the innovation on the ground that it is an insult to their intelligence. But many a man who is taking his best girl to the game will appreciate it. Unless the lady friend suffers from astigmatism, it will not be necessary to explain that Babe Ruth is not the man wearing the mask.

Umpires unfamiliar with the faces of the players will be able to observe a batsman's numerals and so prevent chicanery in the matter of substitute batters and batting out of turn. Pinch hitters also can be identified optically as well as orally.

How the players will take to the idea remains to be discovered, but probably the only squawk will come from the man who is assigned No. "13."

White Sox Will Discuss New Idea at Meeting.

Chicago, Jan. 22 (United Press).—Harry M. Grabiner, secretary of the Chicago White Sox, said tonight that his club had given no consideration to uniforms for the coming season and that he did not know whether the Sox players would wear large numbers on their backs. "We'll talk that over in a meeting later," he said.

Connie Mack Sees Better Chance for A's This Year

Mack is going direct to Mount Plymouth, Fla., where he will play golf for three weeks before moving on to Fort Myers to watch Thomas Edison grow rubber trees and wait for the members of the Athletics to arrive for training.

The pitchers and catchers, 20 in all, will report on February 21.

"Baseball fans are in for a big surprise this season," said Mack. "Most of the clubs have been strengthened and that is an advantage in our favor.

"Naturally, if the other teams manage to take more games from the Yankees, the New Yorkers won't have the same big advantage as in the past, and that is why I think the Athletics have a better chance than last year."

Sharkey Frank, He Admits, Denying Rampant Remarks; Is Proud He Is a Fighter

Following is the second of a two-story series by George Kirksey on the Sharkey-Christner fight, Friday, on which hinges the success of the Sharkey-Stribling fight at Miami. If Christner beats Sharkey a substitute must be found for the Bostonian at Miami—probably Christner. The first of the series was an interview with Christner; this is an enterview with Sharkey.

JACK SHARKEY

NEW YORK, Jan. 22.—There is a different Jack Sharkey from the one widely disliked in the boxing world as "the loquacious Lithuanian," "the garrulous gob," and "the talkative tar."

Talking out of turn has ever been one of the shortcomings of the Boston heavyweight, but the world would have liked the good-natured fellow who sat in a big, easy chair at a quiet family hotel on upper Broadway today and told the United Press correspondent about himself.

"I'm not two-faced," Sharkey explained. "I only say what I think and it gets me in trouble. I'm not going around passing remarks about fighters or anyone else but it's not in me to register deceit. I hate that 'loquacious Lith,' and 'garrulous gob' stuff. I don't say half the things they pin on me and play up in the newspapers."

Proud He Is Fighter, Admitting He Owes All to Game.

Gene Tunney never had any more aversion to the riff-raff of the boxing world than Jack Sharkey, but unlike Tunney, is proud of the fact that he is a fighter.

"I'm proud of the profession that gave me a chance to make big money," he said. "I quit school at 12 and was digging ditches at 16. When I came out of the Navy I was broke. Fighting gave me a chance I wouldn't have had otherwise."

Sharkey is married and has three children, two girls, 3 and 4, and a boy, Jack, jr., 5 months. He worships his wife and kids and is never away from them for any length of time.

"I've just built an $80,000 home at Newton, Mass., just outside of Boston," he said, "and I've got to make good in my coming fights. I've got too much at stake and I'm going to see that everything comes out as I've planned."

Sharkey Only 26, With 39 Bouts Since Start in 1924.

During the conversation, Sharkey was interrupted several times by elderly couples who stopped to chat with him on their way to dinner.

It is surprising to learn that Sharkey is only 26 and has had only 39 fights since he began fighting in 1924.

"I'm not through," he said. "Why, I'm only beginning. Mentally and physically I'm perfect right now. My condition is better than it has been for two years. I was at top physical form the night I fought Jim Maloney in May, 1927. I weighed 192 that night. Yesterday I weighed 191, my best fighting weight."

Hopkins Bows To G. U. Five, 58 to 20

Baltimore Club, Minus Star Center, Loses One-Sided Game.

By GARRETT WATERS.

ACCORDING to the scorekeeper accompanying the Johns Hopkins Quintet, last night, that team scored a 30 to 20 victory over University of Maryland last week. According to this reporter this same Johns Hopkins team played and acted like scorekeepers last night against the Georgetown University Five, which won in an easy 58 to 20 game in the American University gymnasium.

The Johns Hopkins scorekeeper, in defense, argued, the reason that his team played so raggedly was because of the absence of Gene Debuskey, star center, around whom the team is seemingly built. If this Debuskey was ever needed he was needed last night for without him the Marylanders looked looked no less than rank.

Georgetown, on the other hand, looked and played like professionals, so spectacular was their manner of making points. From the opening tap-off there was little doubt as to which team was the superior.

Game Takes Form of Hilltop Rout From the Start of Play.

The game took the form of a rout right at the outset when Georgetown ran up sixteen points before the Marylander's could garner a marker. Dutton, Mesmer, Meehan and McCarthy hit the rims time after time again in this opening orgy with Jung getting the Marylanders in the scoring column seven minutes after play had begun with a basket from under the net. The first half ended with Georgetown ahead by the one-sided count of 32 to 8.

Long before the first half ended, Coach Elmer Ripley inserted an army of second stringers to give them a workout and he did the same thing again later in the game after putting his regulars into the fray after the intermission.

Dutton and Mesmer led in the scoring of points for Georgetown in the final tabulation. Both registered the same number of field goals, four, with Dutton making good just one more free shot than Mesmer, three to the latter's two. Meehan and McCarthy also figured prominently with 8 and 10 points, respectively.

Passerew Leads Baltimore Scorers; G. U. Gets Good Work Out.

Although hardly anything good could be said about the Marylanders' exhibition, Passerew and Horst played best: Passerew, with two baskets and three foul tosses for 7 points and Horst with five free throws for 5 points.

The game was only a workout for Georgetown. Footwork, passes, cuts, dribbles and "pot shots" were all practiced in the course of the proceedings. Probably Georgetown's next game will be more interesting.

Yale Five Bows, 35-34, To Dartmouth in League

Hanover, N. H., Jan. 22 (A.P.).—Dartmouth took an intercollegiate league basket ball game from Yale tonight, 35 to 34. In the closing five minutes of play the Elis scored 11 points. Cook, Yale left guard, had a chance to tie the score when, with his team trailing 35 to 33, he drew two foul shots. He caged one but failed on the other. Cook led in total points scored, chalking up 16.

Ormond Beach, Fla., Jan. 22 (A.P.). "Jock" McLean, son of the Washington publisher, E. B. McLean, won an exhibition tennis match on the Ormond Beach Hotel Courts from Gordon Apgar, Daytona Beach, Fla., boys' champion, 6—0, 6—4.

FIGHTING FOR BALL IN TECH-EASTERN GAME

Goldblatt Star Of Thrilling Triumph

Tech Captain's Goal in Last 2 Minutes Wins Furious Game.

Score Is Tied 6 Times; Victory Virtually Decides Title.

By WALTER HAIGHT.

The resulting two points sent Tech ahead for the first time in 11 minutes and a foul shot by MacCartee clinched the game 33-31. It was Tech's fifth straight victory of the high school basket ball series and was played before some 5,000 howling fans in the new Tech High Gymnasium. The triumph gives Tech a commanding lead for the championship which followers of the series believe will carry it through to the title. In the first game of the usual double-header, Western went into a tie with Eastern for second place by beating Central, 26-12.

Few High School Games Closer; Rivals Deadlocked Six Times.

Seldom has there been a closer contest than that played yesterday between Eastern and Tech. During the 40 minutes of play the score was tied six times and on eight occasions the lead changed hands. Eastern, fighting for a tie in the standings, held the lead for the most part and was ahead at the three intermissions—6-3, first quarter; 17-16, at the half, and 26-23 at the end of the third period.

Eastern attempted to freeze the ball with 3 minutes to go and 2 points ahead and suffered the same fate as did Business, which tried the same tactics last week. Tech discarded its zone defense, sent three men down the floor and finally gained possession of the ball. It was following the attempted "freeze" that Goldblatt made his brilliant basket.

With a minute to play following Goldblatt's shot, Tech held the ball up the floor for a few seconds and then started a fast passing drive down the court which resulted in MacCartee being fouled. He made good the shot just before the game ended.

Excitement Too Much For Gun; Sanborn Plays Sideline Game.

The hair-raising finish must have been too much for the timekeeper's gun, the property of Elmer Hardell, Tech football and track coach. The weapon failed to fire at the completion of time, but the timekeeper waddled out on the floor and halted play before any damage was done.

Probably the most excited human being within four blocks of the Tech gym during the hectic last period was Coach Sanborn. If the principals had added another foot to the playing floor at the recent meeting Sanborn's line of march would have been up and down the court.

Seldom has a single player dominated a game or a series as Jacob Goldblatt is dominating this one. The Tech captain was pitted against Teddy Cappelli, Eastern's captain and scoring ace. Although Goldblatt trailed his opponent in scoring for most of the game, he came with a rush in the last half. In all, Goldblatt scored 16 of his

Tech Has Won 5 Games By Margin of 14 Points

Tech High, the sensation of the scholastic basket ball series with five victories and no defeats and the championship within its grasp, has compiled a unique record as it marches to the title.

In five games, Tech has a margin of only 14 points over its opponents, twice winning by one point, once winning by two points, once by four points and once by six points. Capt. Jakie Goldblatt on two occasions scored the winning point for Tech with field goals as the game waned.

Almost the Naked Truth

By JAMES S. COLLINS

NEW YORK, Jan. 22.—Reference was made in this column recently to the conspicuous infertility of championship fight promotion eggs in the numerous settings of Mr. Joseph P. Mulvihill, of Danbury, Conn., it being stated that not one ever was hatched. The statement, unfortunately, was erroneous. One was hatched. Pete Herman and Joe Lynch once fought for the world's featherweight championship in Waterbury, Conn., under the auspices of Mr. Mulvihill, so he declares.

In the course of some 1,200 indignant words demanding an apology, which hereby is extended, Mr. Mulvihill asks, "Who promoted the Dempsey and Fulton fight and who was it that was responsible for making Jack Dempsey the heavyweight champion of the world?" Mr Mulvihill answers the first question himself with a plea of guilty, but adds, "the fight was to be staged in Connecticut, but through some misunderstanding, there was no law permitting boxing in the State of Connecticut at that time, and the governor ordered it stopped * * * and I sold my interests to Mr. Jack Curry and Mr. Morris Rose and the fight was finally pulled off in Harrison, N. J." Mr Mulvihill fails too answer his second question, evidently assuming that everyone else also knows that the man responsible for making Jack Dempsey champion was Jack Dempsey.

After eulogizing P T. Barnum and James A. Bailey as other famed sons of the Danbury parish, Mr. Mulvihill, who has sometimes been referred to, but never in this column, as "the mad hatter of Danbury," sums up his defense of his career as a promoter as follows:

Mr. Mulvihill a Descendant of Dan Mulvihill, of Mulvihill Clan.

"Another thing, Mr. Collins. I don't know what part of Ireland you come from, or your people, but just to let you know exactly who I am, I am a direct descendant of Daniel O. Mulvihill, of the Mulvihill Clan, who were kings and rulers of Ireland, and all my ancestors have been fighting for their rights for the past 600 years, and the same blood and fighting spirit was always with them and is with me and my immediate family. And I don't see any reason, at this late day, why I should allow anybody by the name of Collins to get away with anything on the Mulvihill Clan."

Well, anyway, Mr. Mulvihill promoted the Lynch-Herman fight "for the world's featherweight championship," and nobody wants to belittle that distinction, even though neither Lynch nor Herman ever held the featherweight title. If any one doubts that that fight was for the featherweight crown, Mr. Mulvihill probably can produce one of his posters advertising the fight and prove that it was.

Fishing For Nurmi's Services Becomes a Growing Sport.

So many amateur track meet committees are angling for Paavo Nurmi's appearance that the Finn's flying feet are threatened with entanglement in net of rivalries that hobbled Dr. Otto Peltzer and Charley Hoff when those foreign stars visited these shores. The Second Masonic District Association athletic committee, which had hoped that Nurmi would compete in a meet in Brooklyn Saturday for the purpose of raising funds for camps for poor children, protests Nurmi's decision to run instead in a Boston meet for the benefit of the wife of the late Bill Prout, who was one of the outstanding characters in amateur sport.

The Masonic committee charges that undue influence was exerted to wean away Nurmi from an intention to compete in Brooklyn, but admits that he signed no entry blank. Sooner or later the A. A. U. will advise tracks committees that the signed entry blank of an athlete is the only commitment it will recognize, and thus avoid all the bother that surrounds the engagements of star attractions. Under present conditions a foreign star can hardly be polite to committees importuning him without getting himself into trouble, especially when he is "yessing" somebody speaking a strange tongue.

"He's as Bad as Stribling," Says Christner of Sharkey.

Jack Sharkey and K O. Christner, who fight in the Garden Friday night, are training in the same gymnasium, but not at the same hours, and Jack was not a member of a party including Christner, which dropped into a Broadway picture emporium today to drop a nickel in the slot and see a film of the seventh and final round of the Dempsey-Sharkey fight in 1927.

"What a mug!" exclaimed Mr. Christner, as he turned from the machine. "He drops his guard, turns to the referee to holler and lets Dempsey plaster one on his unprotected jaw that would have shattered a fire hydrant. And they told me this Sharkey was foxy! If he ever gives me a chance like that he won't be able to shoot off his mouth for a week after he comes to. I think I've got Sharkey's number now. He's as bad as Stribling."

(New York World News Service.)

Stribling, Confident, Fails To Name Knockout Round

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 22 (A.P.).—W. L. "Young" Stribling, who will swap blows with Jack Sharkey at Miami Beach February 27, arrived here today to put finishing touches on preparations for a bout Friday night with Ralph Smith, California heavyweight.

The boxer announced that "Pa" Stribling would not be present for the fight Friday night.

"Pa has gone to New York," he said. "He's going to scout this Sharkey man. Sharkey fights in New York the same night I fight here."

Stribling was bubbling over with confidence that he would knock Sharkey out. Asked what round it probably would happen, he said:

"Oh, now, have a heart, just as fast as I can. That's all I can tell you. I don't agree with those fellows who tell you before they get into a ring just what they're going to do in that ring or just how they're going to do it."

Stribling expressed a desire to meet Gene Tunney and Jack Dempsey.

He did not fly here in his airplane from Memphis, where he fought last night, as had been announced, but came by train.

District Golfer Leads In Pinehurst Tourney

Pinehurst, N. C., Jan. 22.—E. H. Batson, Congressional Club golfer, led the players in the fifth day of the Pinehurst Country Club's seven-course sweep here today. His score was 84—16—68.

In the 90-hole totals, Batson is in fourth place with 379. In a special event held by the tin whistles for the best twelve of eighteen selected holes Batson led the class B scoring with 39.

Rex Beach Scores Again In Artists, Writers Golf

Palm Beach, Fla., Jan. 22.—Rex Beach, noted novelist, was an easy winner today in the first match round of the second annual championship tournament of the Artists and Writers Golf Association here. The medalist triumphed over Hal Marchbanks, 6 up and 5 to play. The results of the other matches follow:

Grantland Rice, defending champion, defeated Duncan Stewart, 4 and 3; Arthur Somers Roche was eliminated by Sam H. Harris 3 and 2; Fontaine Fox lost by 3 and 1 to Takuma Kajiwara; Clarence Budington Kelland won from F. Hume, 7 and 6; Rube Goldberg defeated Shepard Barclay, 4 and 2; Clare Briggs lost to W. C. Bealle, 5 and 4, and H. T. Webster finished one down to John Golden.

Fight Promoters Ordered To Stage Bout Jointly

San Francisco, Jan. 22 (A.P.).—A squabble between two promoters seeking the same boxing plum was settled yesterday when Boxing Commissioner Charles F. Traung ordered Promoters Ancil Hoffman and Frank Schuler to promote jointly a nontitle bout between Mickey Walker, middleweight champion, and Jack Willis, of San Francisco. It will be staged on February 22 in the afternoon at the San Francisco Baseball Park, ten rounds with Willis coming in at 147 pounds. The pair met last year with Walker taking the decision after Willis had given him a hard battle.

Both Hoffman, of the Monarch Athletic Club, and Schuler, of the Observatory Club, were negotiating for the match, but were stumped because the former had Willis signed while Schuler had Walker' agreement.

ALBION VS. DUQUESNE.

Albion, Mich., Jan. 22.—Albion College Tuesday signed with Duquesne University of Pittsburgh to play the Catholic school on the gridiron next fall, on October 12, it was announced today. The game will be played at Pittsburgh and the Methodist squad will make one of the longest trips in the school's history to fill the date.

NURMI SNARL RESULTS IN APOLOGY

Masonic Meet Officials Declare Charges Were Unauthorized.

NEW YORK, Jan. 22 (A.P.).—The athletic committee of the second Masonic district, through its chairman, George Keiser, today repudiated the action taken by its secretary, Jack Harris, in writing an open letter of protest concerning Paavo Nurmi to the Amateur Athletic Union.

The letter charged Nurmi had been "influenced by a man or men with power in official track circles" to shift his entry from the Masonic games here next Saturday night to the Boston K. of C. meet the same date.

In a note of explanation and apology addressed to Daniel J. Ferris, secretary-treasurer of the A. A. U., to whom Harris' letter also was sent, Mr. Keiser apologized for Harris' act and said the latter's resignation as secretary of the committee had been requested and received.

Dumbfounded to Learn of Protest to A. A. U.

Mr. Feerris was in New Haven today and it could not be learned from him whether a meeting which had been called for tomorrow to look into Harris' charges would now be held.

Mr. Keiser's letter follows:

"On Monday morning after reading the newspapers I was very much dumbfounded on turning to the sporting page, to note the article which supposedly originated from a member of our athletic committee of the second Masonic district and, as you will remember, I called you on the telephone Monday morning, January 21, and advised that this article was unauthorized.

U. S. to Be Represented In International Soccer

New York, Jan. 22 (A.P.).—At a meeting today of the national and international games and foreign relations committee of the United States Football Association it was decided to send a soccer team to represent the United States in the world's cup competition of the Federation Internationale de Football Association. The games will be staged in Europe in 1930, covering a period from May 15 to June 15.

It also was decided the U. S. F. A. will be represented by a delegation at the next congress of the International Federation at Madrid, May 17 and 18, when arrangements for the world tournament will be made.

Two Even After Playing 800 Rounds of Golf

Liverpool, Jan. 22 (A.P.).—The lord mayor of Liverpool and his close friend T. M. Fowke, of the Woolton Golf Club, have about come to the conclusion that they are evenly matched at golf, as they stand all square after 800 rounds.

The lord mayor and Fowke started playing matches soon after the close of the World War and have kept records for ten years. When they completed 800 rounds each had won 400 Neither has ever been more than a few rounds up at any time. Both men play from handicap of fourteen. They are continuing the competition.

Lid on Prize Fighting Is Applied at Norfolk

Norfolk, Va., Jan. 22 (A.P.).—Public Safety Director C. B. Borland today announced that there will be no more prize fights here, under any auspices, until the existing State law is repealed. He said that during the last two years this law has been violated by local clubs which donated a percentage of the receipts to charity.

U. S. Netman Is Beaten In Canadian Tourney

Montreal, Quebec, Jan. 22 (A.P.).—Jack Proctor, of Toronto, former Canadian doubles champion, advanced to the second round of the Canadian indoor tennis tourney today by defeating Allan Herna, Montreal, 6—1, 6—0.

In the first doubles match of the day, Willard Crocker and Marcil Banville, both of Montreal, defeated J. Nichol, of Boston, and B. Doherty, of Toronto, 6—4, 6—4.

Mandell Easy Winner, Despite a Broken Rib

Indianapolis, Ind., Jan. 22 (A.P.).—Sammy Mandell, world lightweight champion, punched Jack Gillespie, Detroit, all over the ring for ten rounds here tonight. It was Mandell's first bout since he fractured his collarbone last September while boxing Jimmy Goodrich, former champion, at Flint, Mich.

Mandell fought with a broken rib on the left side. He said he sustained the injury while training last Friday. Gillespie was willing, but was completely outclassed.

Stallings Recuperating On Georgia Plantation

Atlanta, Jan. 22 (A.P.).—George Stallings, manage of the Montreal Baseball Club of the International League, who has been under treatment for several months for a critical illness that followed an attack of heart trouble, has returned to his plantation at Haddock, Ga., to recuperate.

It was announced today that he was discharged Sunday from the hospital here, where he was confined for four months and left immediately for his middle Georgia estate.

Lassman Leaves Hospital; Goes South for a Rest

New York, Jan. 22 (A.P.).—Al Lassman, New York University football captain, who was severely injured in the game with Carnegie Tech November 24, was discharged from the hospital today and sailed this afternoon for Miami Beach, Fla. He expects to remain in the South for several weeks. He was accompanied by his college roommate, Alfred Higgins.

The Violets' captain has not completely recovered from the injury which nearly caused his death but on his discharge from the hospital it was reported that his condition is improving steadily. He is able to control the muscles of the left side of his body, which were partly paralyzed but he still lacks a sense of feeling on that side.

TWO SPILLS MAR FORMFUL MIAMI RACE PROGRAM

Long, Sanders Thrown But Unhurt

Jams Affect Bobby Basil, Altimeter and Special.

Festival Comes With Rush in Sixth to Nose Out Flagship.

MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 22 (A.P.).—The fifth day's program at the Hialeah track today was marked by formful racing, with favorites winning in the majority of the events. Two accidents occurred during the afternoon, in which three horses and riders participated. All escaped without serious injury. The worst of the two came in the fifth event, when Altimeter appeared to be pinched off going down the back stretch and fell, throwing Jockey W. Long from the saddle. Bobby Basil, just behind, could not swerve and tumbled over Altimeter, throwing Jockey Cavens heavily. Both the jockeys recovered quickly.

In the second race Special got too close and became tangled with another horse's heels and fell, but Jockey Sanders escaped serious injury.

The first race, a dash of 6 furlongs for 3-year-olds and upward, was taken easily by Jim Crow, which finished one and a half lengths ahead of Mack's Baby. The latter was four lengths in front of McIntosh. Seven horses started.

Sunsard Scores In Gallop Over Marty B. In Third.

The second, another 6-furlong dash for 3-year-olds and up, was hard fought, but Stuart's Draft lasted to defeat Isabella by a head. Isabella was two lengths in front of Red Spider. The third race, still another 6-furlong dash for 3-year-olds and up, was little more than an exercise gallop for Sunsard, who won by five lengths from Marty B. Gold Dust landed in the third place a head behind Marty B.

The fourth, a gallop of a mile and 70 yards for 3-year-olds, was won easily by the favorite, Sun Altos, which went under the wire seven lengths in front of Mikado. The latter beat Thunder Girl one and a half lengths for the place.

The fifth, called the Welcome Hoover Purse, a 6-furlong sprint for 3-year-olds and up, was annexed by the favorite, Agapanthus, which led throughout to win by two lengths from William P. The latter was six lengths ahead of Minervus.

The sixth, last on the card, a gallop of a mile and 70 yards for 3-year-olds and up, furnished a close finish. Festival, after a slow start, improved his position and wore Flagship down to win by a nose. Flagship took the place by eight lengths from Lucent.

Overweight— INFANTA (2), MICHAEL B (2½), MACK'S BABY (2½).

JIM CROW displayed his usual burst of early speed and raced McIntosh into submission the first mile and drew away entering stretch to win in hand. MACK'S BABY gradually improved her position on the inside and easily disposed of M'INTOSH through stretch. Latter was used up forcing the early pace, but weakened badly through stretch. INFANTA raced evenly the entire trip.

SECOND RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,000. For 3-year-olds and upward; claiming. Start good. Won driving. Place easily. Went to post at 3:06. Off at 3:07. Winner, F. H. Carpenter's ch. m. Overweight—ISABELLA (4½).

STUART'S DRAFT, taken in hand in early stages, moved up stoutly behind leaders on the stretch turn and, assuming the lead, continued gamely and outlasted ISABELLE when final test came. ISABELLA, under slight restraint until midway around the turn, responded stoutly when called on and made a bold effort, but could not keep pace with the winner. RED SPIDER gained steadily all the way and appeared the winner at furlong pole but then weakened in the last sixteenth. PRINCELY slipped through on the inside all the way and saved much ground. LEO stopped badly after going three furlongs. ERIN GO BRAGH, racing prominently rounding the turn, was crowded back and almost fell. SPECIAL collided with ERIN GO BRAGH and unseated his rider.

THIRD RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,000. For 3-year-olds and upward; claiming. Start good. Won easily. Place driving. Went to post at 3:34. Off at 3:35. Winner, W. Mulholland's b. g. Overweights—LIFE TIME (5), MARTY B (3½), GOLD DUST (2½).

SUNSARD outclassed his field and opened up a long lead with little effort in the first quarter mile and won as his rider pleased and pulled up slightly lame. MARTY B worked his way up forwardly entering stretch and disposed of LEATHERWOOD, but then weakened and just lasted for the place. GOLD DUST gained fast next to the rail in final quarter and would have been second in another stride. NELL and MEADOW LARK had no mishaps. LEATHERWOOD quit after going a half mile.

FOURTH RACE—One mile and seventy yards. Purse, $1,000. For 3-year-olds and upward; claiming. Start good. Won easily. Place driving. Went to post at 4:02. Off at 4:02. Winner, Crescent Stable's b. g. Overweights—MARTY B (4), GOLD DUST (3). LIFE TIME (5).

SUN ALTOS assumed an easy lead and rated in front the first half-mile, gradually improved his position thereafter and won well in hand. MIKADO, hard urged throughout, raced evenly and disposed of the others under pressure in final quarter mile. THUNDER BIRD finished stoutly through stretch and outstayed ALLEVIATOR. The latter met with some interference. FLORENDA quit.

FIFTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,000. The Welcome Hoover. For 3-year-olds and upward; claiming. Start good. Won easily. Place same. Went to post at 4:35. Off at 4:36. Winner, W. E. Martin's ch. c. Overweights—INTENSE (4½), ALTIMETER (1).

AGAPANTHUS hustled into the lead at the furlong on the inside, was rated in front until well straightened out in the stretch when he drew away and won with something to spare. WILLIAM P. away well on the outside, raced forwardly the entire trip, but could not overhaul the winner. MINERVUS, under intermittent punishment, wore EVERLAST-ING down in the closing strides. The latter tired at if short. INTENSE was never a serious factor. ALTIMETER, racing in third place the first three-sixteenths, appeared to be crowded by WILLIAM P. He stumbled and fell and BOBBY BASIL fell over him.

SIXTH RACE—One mile and seventy yards. Purse, $1,000. For 3-year-olds and upward; claiming. Start good. Won driving. Place same. Went to post at 5:06. Off at 5:11. Winner, John Heelan's ch. h. FESTIVAL gradually improved his position from a slow beginning and wore FLAGSHIP down in the final 20 yards. Latter held his field safe for speed and opened up a big gap first half mile, but then began tiring in final quarter mile and faltered when placed under punishment. LUCENT, well up throughout, was outpaced in final quarter mile but SEA HAWK was safe. Elston handled SEA HAWK listlessly. SUNDAY CLOTHES and HALF PINT were practically eliminated at the start and were not persevered with.

RING CAREER APPEALS TO SHARKEY

Gives Game Credit for All It Has Done for Him, He Says.

Sharkey came fac[illegible] o face today with K. O. Christner, the Akron, Ohio, unknown, whom he meets in Madison Square Garden Friday. They met in the office of Tom McArdle, Garden matchmaker. Christner had come to see McArdle about the seat sale, worrying over whether he would draw.

"I'm glad to meet you, Jack," Sharkey said Christner said to him.

"'Oh, that's all right; we'll meet two or three other times,' I said back to him, but he didn't catch it. Then he began looking me over. I was watching him out of the corner of my eye, but I couldn't tell whether he was admiring me or laughing up his sleeve at me."

To Take No Chances With Christner Expects Stribling to Be Easy.

Sharkey estimates Christner as a "rough, tough fellow," but doesn't think he'll have any trouble winning the decision.

"I'm going in there to fight Christner just like I did Harry Wills," he said. "I'm not taking any chances on him. It's just another fight, and he can't be any tougher than Wills, Godfrey, Dempsey, Heeney or Risko. I'm not going to try to knock him out. If I should happen to get in a punch and knock him down I might try to finish him."

As for Stribling, Sharkey calls him a "wrestling, mauling, bulldozing fighter," and anticipates no more trouble with him than he had in any of his fights last year against Risko, Heeney or Delaney.

Sharkey considers the Dempsey fight the greatest effort thus far of his career and he has visions of another f

DEVITT, WEAKENED, IN PREP LEAGUE DEBUT TODAY

Vincent, Star Center, Out Of Line-up

League Play Popular, Taxing Capacity of Boys' Club Gym.

DEVITT PREP SCHOOL makes its debut in the Prep School Basket Ball League today with the prospect of allowing Gonzaga, the present leader, to increase its advantage in the circuit. Gonzaga, by virtue of its 26-to-14 defeat of St. John's in the opening game of the league last Wednesday, is the favorite to continue on to the title and The Washington Post cup, emblematic of the championship. The game will start at 3:15 p. m.

Devitt will take the floor considerably weakened by the absence of Ruppert Vincent, high-scoring center, who has been barred from league play because of the age limit. Vincent has been the outstanding performer of the Devitt team in every game this season.

League Games Draw Crowds To Boys Club Court.

The Prep School Basket Ball League is expected to be the forerunner of organized prep school circuits in every form of sports on the same order that the public high schools of the series compete. Last Wednesday's Gonzaga-St. John's game taxed the capacity of the Boys Club Gymnasium where today's game also will be played and indications are that another overflowing crowd will be present despite the enlarged seating arrangements.

Devitt has not enjoyed as successful a season thus far as has the Purple, but under the tutelage of John Dailey, former George Washington University coach, the team has shown improved form Gallota and Gleeson, a pair of shifty forwards, will get the call at these positions today, with Sommers starting at the center post. Gallagher and Depro are the outstanding performers at guard, with Bernard and Tangora likely to see action at any moment.

Gonzaga Quintet Bolstered By Kane's Reinstatement.

Since his engagement as the substitute for Coach Ken Simondnger, who is ill, John De Leo, former Georgetown University athlete, has whipped the Gonzaga Team into a formidable combination which has become a serious contender for all-scholastic honors. The team is bolstered by the reinstatement of Barney Kane, brilliant forward. The starting Gonzaga line-up doubtless will be composed of Kane and McVean, forwards; Al Farrell, center, and Jake Farrell and Bussink, guards.

More Track Material Is Needed at Marquette

Milwaukee, Jan. 22.—Coach Conrad M. Jennings, of the Marquette University track squad, has sent out a call for more track material on the Hilltop, following an unsatisfactory response to his first post-holiday announcement.

The Marquette team will be strong in most departments, but needs bolstering in parts. The first meet is with Bradley Tech here, February 16. Mike Trepa, of Milwaukee, a sprinter, is captain.

On February 14 Potomac will play Old Dominion at Alexandria.

South Atlantic Tourney Has Aided in Growth of Basket Ball Sport Here

THE greatest step forward in the promotion of basket ball among the hundreds of teams in Washington and nearby Virginia and Maryland has been the conduct of the South Atlantic tournament sponsored by The Washington Post for the past two years, according to tournament officials, who point out a grist of encouraging effects as the result of the games.

The tournament, which will be staged under the auspices of The Post again this year, starting on March 11, has served to remedy the haphazard conditions under which teams of the section were forced to compete and to provide for the awarding of titles with undisputable authority in contrast to the numerous unsatisfactory claims of championship seekers in the past.

The teams who survive the Washington tournament in the five weight classes and engage Baltimore champions in the finals for the South Atlantic titles will be entitled to official recognition as the District title holders. They will have won their championships under the fairest and most satisfactory conditions, under strict supervision of eligibility and officiating by members of the approved board.

Weight Division Permits Teams To Play in Own Class.

Teams will not be forced to go out of their class in their quest for the titles, as tournament officials have grouped the entries in five weight divisions, eliminating the possibility of unfair weght advantages by any team. All members of the teams are forced to weigh in under the specified weight limit of the class in which their team is entered.

The South Atlantic tournament has provided most basket ball players in the District with their first taste of tournament play under model conditions. Previous to the sponsorship of the tournament by The Washington Post, no more than a half dozen Washington teams cared to travel to Baltimore to compete in the tournament. Last season, with The Post bringing the games to Washington for the second consecutive year, 71 teams from the District and nearby Virginia and Maryland figured in the games.

There was no more popular event here last winter than the South Atlantic tournament at the Arcadia. The spacious hall was taxed to capacity on several occasions and the games developed a huge regular following which was treated to a host of scintillating battles that kept interest at fever heat. Favorites fell with regularity and with the caliber of entrants, no team dominated any class.

Entry and A. A. U. Applications Available Friday.

Those teams which win the Washington tournament will have proved their right to the titles beyond doubt. The tournament for the past two years has drawn the pick of the school, independent, club and service teams of the section and the survivors were forced to display superior basket ball to win.

The sports department of The Washington Post has been stormed by prospective entries since the announcement last Sunday that The Post again would sponser the tournament in cooperation with South Atlantic A. A. U. officials. Members of The Washington Post staff will be ready to assist managers or club representatives in drawing up team entries and A. A. U. registration blanks beginning next Friday when the blank will be available.

The question of eligibility is simple. All bona fide teams in the District and suburbs are qualified to compete but members of each team must be registered with the A. A. U. Professional athletes are specifically barred.

The fees of the tournament are purely nominal. The team entry in the 100, 115 and 130 pound classes is $2.50. Teams in the 145-pound and unlimited boys and girls classes must pay $3.50 to post entries, according to the rules stipulated by the A. A. U. A fee of 25 cents must accompany all applications for registration with the A. A. U.

PROPER PRECAUTIONS PREVENT THE SPREAD OF COLDS AND INFLUENZA

The faith of health officials in the intelligence of the public has been justified. Rather than taking drastic measures, these officials, in most centers hit by the present epidemic, have been content to issue warnings. The readiness with which the advice has been followed speaks well for the common sense of all of us.

Colds and influenza are prevented by living a sane and normal life. Regular sleep, regular meals with wholesome food, plenty of water—inside and out, exercise in the open—these are among the best ways to keep up the body's resistance to disease of all kinds. Health experts strongly recommend the avoidance of crowded places.

Many thousands are becoming educated to the regular and frequent use of Vapex. This concentrate, obtainable from your druggist in the little square dollar bottle and the package with the green triangle, is the most modern way to prevent and to stop a cold. Each bottle contains 50 treatments. Merely put a drop on your handkerchief, breathe the healing vapor. It is refreshing and will keep your head clear. The strength of one application lasts for an entire day.

Rupture Kills 35,000 Annually—
—estimated on the basis of available official death records—one every 15 minutes is laid away—the burial certificate being marked "Rupture". Why? Because the unfortunate ones had neglected themselves or had been merely taking care of the swelling—a symptom of the affliction—and paying no attention to the cause.

What are you doing? Are you neglecting or perhaps even maltreating yourself by wearing a truss, appliance, or whatever name you choose to call it? At best, the truss is only a makeshift—a false prop against a collapsing wall—and should not be expected to act as more than a mere mechanical support. Its binding pressure retards blood circulation, thus robbing the weakened muscles of nourishment—the very thing they need most.

Learn how to close the hernial opening as nature intended so the rupture CAN'T come down. Fill out coupon below and mail TODAY.

CITY BANKERS PLAN EDUCATIONAL WORK

STOCK TRADING IS BRISK

By ROBERT C. ALBRIGHT.

Framing a six months' educational program for the Washington Chapter, American Institute of Banking, the educational committee of the chapter, meeting at the Raleigh Hotel last night with officers and instructors of the organization, announced plans for the opening of second semester activities next week.

The bankers, comprising members of the board of governors, board of consuls, faculty and educational committee, heard an address by Harold Stonier, national educational director of the institute. He discussed national policies as affecting chapter problems.

James A. Soper, president of the chapter, spoke briefly. A. E. Henze, chairman of the educational committee, outlined the schedule drafted by his group for the half year ahead. He reported that enrollments for institute courses reached 395 at the close of the first semester, an increase of 7 per cent over last year's figures. Cooperative action was urged to the end that registrations for the new term might show a corresponding gain.

The schedule announced by Chairman Henze calls for the opening of second semester classes Monday evening at chapter headquarters in the Becker Building. Three classes will be organized—the course in negotiable instruments, under Raymond B. Dickey; class in standard banking, under F. J. Donohue, and the class in business forecasting, under Walter H. Dunlap.

Three additional classes will meet for the first time the following night. These groups and their instructors are: Banking fundamentals, Eliot H. Thomson; commercial law, Bolitha J. Laws; types and analysis of financial statements, William Gordon Buchanan. Arthur Deering will again conduct his class in business English and letter writing on Wednesday nights.

Trends Generally Are Upward.

Trading was brisk in a representative number of securities on the Washington Stock Exchange yesterday. Total stock turnover approximated 300 shares, but only $3,100 in bonds changed hands. Trends generally were upward.

Resuming its advance, Capital Traction moved fractionally to 107½, and American Security & Trust Co. arose another point, to 466. Other stocks netting gains were Potomac Electric 6 per cent preferred, 112¼; Washington Railway & Electric preferred, 99¾; Federal American Co. common, 55½; Mergenthaler Linotype, 104½, and Terminal Refrigerating & Warehousing Corporation, 52½.

Anacostia & Potomac Railway 5s led the bond division, $2,000 changing hands at 96, while $1,000 Chevy Chase Club 5½s traded at 102½, and $100 Washington Gas 6s, series B, at 105.

Bankers Meet Tonight.

President Robert V. Fleming of the District of Columbia Bankers Association, will call to order the midwinter meeting of the local banking group at 8 o'clock tonight at the Willard Hotel. Announcement that H. Parker Willis, professor of banking at Columbia University, and editor of the Journal of Commerce, will address the meeting on "The Money Situation, Present and Future," is expected to occasion an unusually large turnout. There will be important committee reports, and the meeting will be followed by a buffet supper.

Brewing Co. Stockholders Meet.

Announcement was made yesterday that stockholders of the Christian Heurich Brewing Co., at their annual meeting in Alexandria, elected John A. Schaefer to the board of directors. Other directors were reelected as follows: Christian Heurich, sr., Charles Jacobsen, R. H. Ganwisch, Christian Heurich, jr., George W. Ray and W. F. Diamer. This board will meet next month to elect officers.

Move to Prevent Failures.

As a step in a nation-wide campaign of cooperation with banks, especially in rural districts, for the prevention of conditions leading to bank failures, the American Bankers Association is distributing through its clearing house section to its membership of 21,000 banking institutions, a detailed plan for setting up and operating regional clearing house associations. It is expected to prove helpful in stimulating bank leadership in each county and district to take immediate steps to form such associations, enabling bankers to avail themselves of the services and safeguards afforded by clearing house organizations.

Banks to Have a Rest, Writes Mills.

An important chapter in the history of the public debt of the United States, more particularly in the history of its wartime loans, has been brought to a close with the conclusion of Treasury refunding operations, cutting in half the number of Liberty Loan issues outstanding, writes Ogden L. Mills, Undersecretary of the Treasury, in the current issue of The American Bankers' Journal.

Late in 1928 the Treasury completed the program which resulted in the retirement and refunding of some $5,000,000,000 of the second and third Liberty bonds. Only two issues of Liberty Bonds, the first and the fourth, remain.

"Now the banks are to have a rest," writes Mr. Mills. "It will be four years before the Treasury can again undertake any major operations in connection with Liberty Bonds. The first Liberty loan, of which there are bonds to the extent of some $1,900,000,000 outstanding, is not callable until 1932. The fourth Liberty loan, with $6,300,000,000 outstanding, is not callable until 1933."

Revenue Freight Loading.

Loading of revenue freight for the week ended January 12 totaled 914,187 cars, an increase of 115,464 cars over the preceding week, according to the statement issued here yesterday by the car service division of the American Railway Association. The total also represented an increase of 6,886 cars over the corresponding week in 1928, but a decrease of 28,544 cars under the corresponding week in 1927. Increases over the week prior were reported in the total loading of all commodities.

Thomas Brahany Returns.

Thomas Brahany, partner of Crane, Parris & Co., was back in Washington's financial district yesterday after a three week's cruise of the Caribbean. He was accompanied by J. F. M. Bowie and Clarence Dodge. The trio visited Kingston, Jamaica; Havana, Cuba; the Canal Zone, and Nassau, Bahama Islands.

Bankers to Meet in Bluefield.

Bluefield, W. Va., Jan. 22 (Special).—The executive committee of the West Virginia Bankers' Association has selected Bluefield as the place, and June 20 and 21 as the time for holding its next annual convention. This year's convention will be sponsored by group five of the State body, which takes in a block of southern counties.

Huge Government Swindle Revealed

One Man Held, Two Others Are Indicted in France; $3,000,000 Involved.

Paris, Jan. 22 (U.P.).—An alleged swindle approaching the proportions of the recent Gazette du Franc frauds was revealed here tonight with the arrest of one man and the indictment of two others. A sum of probably $3,000,000 is involved, officials said.

The principal offenders, as charged in the indictments, are the Franco-Moroccan Navigation Co and the Farming Sugar Co.

The Farming Sugar Co. had a contract to market sugar received in Germany in lieu of reparations payments to France, for the government. Investigation revealed that Germany had delivered 40,000 tons of sugar, but the French government had received no money, officials said, although the sugar had been sold. The company filed bankruptcy proceedings last October.

Investigation of the affairs of the navigation company, which was under the same management, showed it failed to pay an obligation of several million francs for 30,000 tons of sugar on January 24. Michel Neutaki, organizer of the company, is living in London.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

Chicago, Jan. 22 (A.P.).—Fifteen-below zero temperatures tonight threatening big damage to the domestic winter crop sent wheat values whirling upward today, outdoing all season records completely. Buying of wheat future deliveries took on large proportions and was stimulated also as a result of continued talk of bullish aspects of farm relief legislation looked for at Washington.

Prices for wheat closed buoyant, 2¾ to 2¾c a bushel net higher. Corn finished at ¼c to ½c net decline, oats ½c to ¾c advance, and provisions varying from 2c setback to 20c gain.

At first the wheat market here showed a downward trend on account of Liverpool quotations failing to reflect yesterday's advances in price on this side of the Atlantic. Overweakness, resulting from reports that rains had given the Argentine corn belt timely relief from drought, tended likewise temporarily to press wheat values down. It was soon noticed, however, that buying for European and Canadian sources was under way here. About this juncture also messages began pouring in telling of widespread sleet and of sheets of ice covering wheat fields in the West.

Apprehension of severe winter killing of wheat, duplicating, perhaps, experiences of a year ago at this time, soon began to hoist the market, and to bring about much increased buying both from previous sellers and from new speculative traders, nonprofessionals participating to a greater extent than for some time past. A decrease of 6,298,000 bushels in world stocks of wheat was a later bullish influence. Under such conditions, and with domestic millers reported buying, the day's top prices were reached just before the close, with the finish at virtually the apex, more than 3½c up from the early low level of the day and about 14c above quotations that were current after January 1.

Corn prices rallied with wheat, but averaged lower for the day owing to heavy profit taking sales as well as to reports of rains in Argentina. Late private advices said that contrary to early reports, the rains were light and that dry, hot weather continued in many sections of Argentina. There was considerable selling of corn at times against purchases of wheat. Meanwhile Eastern shipping demand for corn today was the best in many weeks. Oats were active and higher, sympathizing with wheat. July oats touching a new top price for the season.

Provisions rose as a result of advances in hog values and in grain. Besides, heavy exports of lard were reported.

DUAL TRIUMPH WON BY GABRILOWITSCH

Ossip Gabrilowitsch, conductor of the Detroit Symphony Orchestra, in the dual capacity of guest conductor of the Philadelphia Symphony Orchestra and solo pianist, scored a decided triumph at the concert of the Philadelphia master musicians at the New Auditorium yesterday. The concert was given under the local management of T. Arthur Smith.

Once again the orchestra, under this most energetic and capable leader, played as only it can play, first of all, the beautiful Russian Easter Overture by Rimsky-Korsakow with its haunting melodies and gorgeous tone coloring, followed by the noble symphonic narrative, "The Haunted Castle," written by Josef Hofmann, composer and pianist.

The final number before the intermission, the Roumanian Rhapsody No. 1 by Georges Enesco, with its merry, rollicking measures and quaint themes and movements, also won enthusiastic applause from the representative audience.

The most elaborate number was the Brahms concerto in B flat for piano and orchestra with Mr. Gabrilowitsch as solo pianist and Dr. Artur Rodzinski conducting the orchestra. In the four movements of the concerto Mr. Gabrilowitsch displayed an amazing degree of virtuosity, a singing quality of tone and such absolute accord with the orchestra that his performance will be counted one of the high moments of this year's musical season in Washington. His clear and facile fingering, variety of tone color, sense of proportion and dynamic values and evident joy in playing the work were delightful, while Dr. Rodzinski as conductor won laurels for himself. A third figure entered into the success of the composition when a cellist played with enchanting beauty the long, sweet song of the cello in the andante movement which for sheer beauty of tone and melody outranked all the other movements of the concerto.

The final movement, allegretto grazioso, was filled with rhythmic sorcery and its playing was exquisitely done. Both Mr. Gabrilowitsch and the orchestra members had to respond to several curtain calls before the audience could be induced to disperse.

Chicago, Jan. 22 (A.P.).—Peace reigned again today in the Chicago dairy industry and the turbulent seas of milk gushing from upturned cans have calmed, pending arbitration of the price dispute between dairymen and their metropolitan distributors.

The decision to terminate the strike of the milk producers and arbitrate the question was reached today at a conference between leaders of the dairymen, the dealers, and public officials and was followed by the announcement that Dr. Clyde L. King, of the University of Pennsylvania, would be asked to serve as mediator.

Treasury Surplus Hope of Coolidge

President Wants to Leave Office With Balance for Fiscal Year.

(Associated Press.)

It is the hope of President Coolidge that when he retires March 4 the Treasury will be in condition to show a surplus at the close of the fiscal year. Although he has received no recent reports from the Budget Bureau or the Treasury, he is confident that a safe margin will be maintained.

It was reported to the President yesterday from sources outside the Government that a deficit of $375,000,000 was in prospect, but the Chief Executive is of the opinion that in estimating this figure the prospective tax payments due on March 15 and June 15 had not been considered.

The margin is regarded by Mr. Coolidge as very slight, however, and he believes that great care must be exercised in making appropriations if a deficit is to be avoided.

Trio in Keyes Case Acquitted by Judge

Los Angeles, Calif., Jan. 22 (A.P.).—Dismissal of the conspiracy and bribery charges against three of the five co-defendants of former District Attorney Asa Keyes was granted late today in Superior Court, where all six are being tried before Superior Judge Edward Butler. The trio were Charles Reimer, one-time special investigator under Keyes; Dave Getzoff, son of Ben Getzoff, in whose Spring street tailor shop the alleged conspiring and bribing occurred, and Jack Rosenberg, brother of Ed Rosenberg, one of the remaining defendants.

After argument by defense attorneys and brief resistance by the prosecution, Judge Butler said he did not consider the evidence against the three men sufficient to convict. The State rested its case this morning.

Philadelphia, Jan. 22 (A.P.).—The Rev. Dr. William Scarlett, dean of Christ Church Cathedral, St. Louis, Mo., was today elected bishop coadjutor of the Protestant Episcopal Diocese of Pennsylvania. Dr. Scarlett was elected on the first ballot by a large majority of both the clergy and laity.

This was the fourth election of a bishop coadjutor in the Pennsylvania diocese within the last year, the successful candidates in the other three elections having refused to accept the honor.

In nominating Dr. Scarlett the Rev. Dr. L. N. Caley, Philadelphia said he expected Dr. Scarlett would accept the office if elected by a large majority.

Pensions Sought For Doctors' Kin

House Moves to Aid Widows of Goldberger and Von Ezdorf, Scientists.

While the Senate was approving a measure yesterday granting a pension of $8,000 annually to Mrs. Thomas R. Marshall, widow of the former Vice President, the House pension committee was considering bills to pension the widows of Dr. Rudolph von Ezdorf and Dr. Joseph Goldberger, both of whom were martyrs to science.

Dr. Goldberger died last week. He was noted for his experiments in the cure of pellagra in the United States Public Health Service. Dr. von Ezdorf died in 1916 as result of experiments in malaria. Representative Charles L. Abernethy, of North Carolina, is sponsoring the measure to recognize the distinguished services of Dr. von Ezdorf. A final hearing of the bill will be held before the pension committee within a few days.

Representative Harold Knutson, of Minnesota, chairman of the pension committee, is handling the bill to recognize the notable services of Dr. Goldberger. The bill providing for a pension of $125 a month for the widow during the rest of her life, was ordered favorably reported yesterday. Mrs. von Ezdorf is a native of North Carolina and Mrs. Goldberger a native of Louisiana.

Republicans Void Bill To Make Smith Lawyer

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 22 (A.P.).—Any hopes held by friends of former Gov. Alfred E. Smith that he could be allowed to practice law by legislative action were dashed today when the assembly judiciary committee killed a bill designed to permit the State board of law examiners to dispense with the examination of a person who has served four years as Governor of New York State, and to so certify to the appellate division.

The bill met the opposition of the nine Republican members of the committee, while the four Democratic members favored it.

The executive committee of the Rhode Island Avenue Citizens Association at a meeting last night indorsed the Cramton bill, now before Congress, which provides for an appropriation of $16,000,000 to acquire a park site.

The committee's indorsement carried with it an amendment that the money also be used to develop the park site after it is acquired.

LARGER EXTENSION FOR PAN-AMERICAN UNION ADVOCATED

Fine Arts Commission in Recommendation for an Increased Area.

TEMPORARY BUILDING MUST BE TORN DOWN

New Plan to Conform With Layout of Government Property on Mall.

A larger building for the projected Pan-American Union extension in the area bounded by Eighteenth and Nineteenth streets and Virginia avenue was recommended yesterday by the Commission of Fine Arts after consideration of tentative plans for this structure.

Members of the commission said they were strongly of the opinion that the building as proposed would not be of sufficient size for future needs of the Pan-American Union and they will recommend the structure and its site be extended from Virginia avenue to B street.

They believe a larger building would be in more proper relation to those planned along B street from the Capitol to the Potomac River, and that the extension of the site will afford better opportunities for parking and landscape gardening in its surroundings.

Must Raze Building.

The extension is to provide office space for the Union's needs, and will necessitate the razing of a temporary war-time building at Eighteenth street and Virginia avenue, now housing Regular Army troops. They will be moved temporarily into the Pettus Building at Nineteenth and C streets, now occupied by forces of the Personnel Classification Board.

These troops eventually will be housed in a permanent building containing garages, barracks and stables, contemplated by the War Department and Office of Public Buildings and Public Parks of the National Capital, at Twenty-sixth and C streets. Tentative plans for this group were indorsed by the commission and the War Department was instructed to prepare detailed sketches and submit them at some future meeting. Members of the Public Buildings Commission are now seeking available space to place the forces of the Personnel Classification Board.

Many Structures in Area.

Members of the commission explained that the area in which the Pan-American extension will be a unit will contain one of the most imposing collections of public and semipublic buildings in the city. The area, bounded by New York avenue, Seventeenth and B streets, is called by them "The Triangle of the Amenities," and contains the Pan-American Union, Continental Hall, the American Red Cross Building, the Corcoran Gallery of Art and the National Academy of Sciences. It also embraces Constitution Hall of the Daughters of the American Revolution and the Red Cross addition, known as the Memorial to the Women of the World War, which are now in process of construction.

The commission took no action on the question of revising the design of the Distinguished Flying Cross, Federal aviation medal, sumbitted to it by the War Department, following congressional and military suggestions that the cross on the medal be raised in higher relief from the background of sun rays. The commission has thus far taken no action on this change, holding it not a material one with regard to the general design.

Approve Hospital Extension.

Plans for extending the Army medical center at Walter Reed Hospital, involving the building of an additional laboratory and wards, were approved by the commission as to building design. They include a tentative design for a chapel to be erected there also. New work of art recently acquired for the Freer Gallery were approved after inspection by the Commissioners, who suggested a larger lamp-post in connection with lighting plans for the Anacostia Bridge.

Further studies regarding the landscape treatment of the new McKinley High School at Second and T streets northeast, were advised. Commission members inspected the site of the projected Titanic memorial on the Potomac River bank at the foot of New Hampshire avenue and progress of construction work on Meridian Hill Park at Sixteenth and W streets. Design of a layout of the grounds of the new Business High School at Iowa avenue and Upshur streets also were approved.

Erection of the superstructure of the Internal Revenue Building in the area between Tenth, Twelfth, B and C streets will begin within eight weeks.

The building will be of structural steel, masonry walls and limestone exterior. It will be monumental in design, with large columns on the south and west fronts and a circular cut in its northwest corner to conform to a great circular plaza within the triangular layout of Federal buildings north of the Mall, of which it is a unit. The structure will be seven stories in height and have a basement.

To the right of the latter is a plan for a park and garden place. The building plan above the stadium and to the right of the new Business High School building, represents the existing Macfarland Junior High School.

JUDGE DENOUNCES NEWSPAPER RACKS

Are Temptation to Youth, She Says, Sentencing Boys Admitting Thefts.

ASKS REMOVAL OF BOXES

Newspaper "honor system" racks were denounced by Judge Kathryn Sellers in the District Juvenile Court yesterday while pronouncing sentence on two colored boys, who admitted stealing money from racks. The court declared the racks lured children to steal and was similar to "leaving money in the street for them to pick up."

The boxes, Judge Sellers cited, were placed on street corners for the convenience of purchasers, "but the great many thefts from them during the past year clearly indicate that they offer a temptation to our youth, which more than offsets their desirability. I see no reason why the papers could not be placed in stores for sale."

Judge Sellers declared she was informed that agents have considerable difficulty with men and women taking papers and money from the racks and declared "such persons should be dealt with severely, but I am inclined to believe that many men and women, happening not to have correct change, take a paper with every honest intention of paying for it the following morning."

The boxes, Judge Sellers declared, were placed on the street corners by a special permit of the District Commissioners. She declared herself in favor of exerting every means available for their removal. The children-defendants were ordered turned over to the Board of Children's Guardians.

Bill Will Pass, Montana Senator Tells Ad Club, at This Session.

Passage of the cruiser bill by the Senate will be accomplished at this session, Senator David I. Walsh, of Montana, told the Advertising Club of Washington at its weekly luncheon yesterday at the National Press Club. The speaker made his prophecy during the course of an address on important measures now pending in Congress.

Following Senator Walsh, an address was made by Alvin P. Howard, vice president of the New Orleans Times-Picayune, in which he called attention to the value of advertising in stabilizing stocks during market flurries. Stocks of companies which are large and consistent advertisers, he said, have remained at high points reached during the recent siege of buying.

"ESCAPE" REVEALED AT DRY LAW TRIAL

Man Disappeared During Raid, Policeman Testifies in Rockelli Case.

ACCUSED FREED BY JURY

During trial of liquor charges against Harry Rockelli 38, of 1007 Four-and-a-half street southwest, in Police Court yesterday, Sergt. Oscar J. Letterman, commander of the Police Vice Squad, admitted from the witness stand, "Yes, there is something funny about this case."

Startling testimony was then developed by Harry J. Whelan, defense attorney. Frank McCormick, widely known in local sporting circles, was discovered at 212 Ninth street northwest, when members of the squad raided the place on October 19, Letterman said McCormick was restrained by a temporary injunction of the District Supreme Court from selling or possessing liquor in the premises, several weeks before the raid.

Letterman testified McCormick was standing near the bar in the place, hatless and coatless. After the raiders had made their entrance, he said, McCormick spoke to him:

"Sergeant, I'm a good fellow, won't you give us a chance. You know what this means to me if we are charged. It means a year and a day in jail," the squad commander said McCormick declared.

"Frank, you are here, caught and you'll have to take your medicine," Letterman declared he responded.

Shortly after the conversation, Letterman and another member of the squad left the front room, where McCormick and Rockelli were, according to testimony and when they returned McCormick had disappeared. The police reported in an affidavit that McCormick "escaped."

However, Rockelli was arrested and charged with second offense of possession of liquor Several pints of alleged liquor were found on the premises. Members of the vice squad testified that Rockelli was tending bar at the Ninth street address.

Rockelli declared he went into the place to purchase a drink and that he had no connection with the business of the establishment. The jury in the case accepted Rockelli's version and returned a verdict of not guilty after a brief deliberation.

Sergt. Letterman declared he had filed an affidavit with the district attorney's office concerning McCormick's presence in the Ninth street establishment in the event contempt of court proceedings are pursued against McCormick.

NEW AVIATION CLUB INDORSES AIRPORT AT GRAVELLY POINT

Organized by Merger, Group Elects Col. C. De F. Chandler Its President.

BINGHAM ASKS RATING FOR FLYING SCHOOLS

Senator Would Extend Commerce Act to All in the United States.

Meeting for the first time at the Carlton Hotel yesterday, the newly formed Aero Club of Washington Chapter of the National Aeronautic Association threw its weight solidly behind three aviation projects which now hold the attention of the Capital. The three measures indorsed at yesterday's meeting are a municipal airport at Gravelly Point, adherence by Congress to the five-year building program of the Army Air Corps, and provisions for adequate training of reserve Air Corps officers.

The two latter resolutions adopted by the club had reference to the action of the House recently in following the recommendation of the Bureau of the Budget by omitting $7,000,000 from the Air Corps appropriation.

110 Planes Eliminated.

This deficiency, it was contended would eliminate 110 airplanes and much technical equipment from the building program and would provide gas and oil for only one hour of flying time each month for each reserve pilot.

Senator Hiram Bingham, of Connecticut, president of the N. A. A., addressed the organization prior to its action on the three matters. In his talk, Senator Bingham mentioned the need for an amendment to the Department of Commerce act providing for examination and rating of all flying schools in the United States.

New Officers Are Elected.

Officers of the new club, which was formed by the merger of the old Aero Club of Washington and District Chapter of the National Aeronautic Association, were elected after the merger had been ratified.

Schory, treasurer; Earl N. Findley, recording secretary; and Allen Smythe, secretary. Trustees elected are Charles J. Bell, Dr. A. F. Zahm, Porter Adams and Dr. G. W. Lewis.

Henry Berliner was the retiring president of the District Chapter, and Maj. Gen. James Allen, retired, retiring president of the Washington Aero Club.

Two Women, Man Held as Kidnapers

Truck Driver Testifies He Was Forced to Drive Trio to Penns Grove, N. J.

Charged with abducting Raymond L. Schwenk, 29 years old, truck driver, of 1447 East Capitol street, two women and a man were held for action of the grand jury by Judge Gus A. Schuldt yesterday in Police Court. The defendants were Elmer Altizer, 31; his wife, Sadie Altizer, 21, and Helen Wosnik, 20.

Schwenk testified he was driving a truck at Ninth street and Pennsylvania avenue northwest a week ago when he was hailed by one of the women, and voluntarily consented to take the three to Hyattsville, Md. At Hyattsville, he said, he was confronted by a revolver and forced to accompany the defendants to Penns Grove, N. J., where he caused their arrest after they descended from his truck.

E. Russell Kelly, defense attorney, attempted to gain acquittal of his clients on the ground that Schwenk had voluntarily driven them out of the District, and whatever ocurred in Maryland was outside the jurisdiction of the court.

TESTIMONY ON GUN SCHEDULED IN TRIAL

Maj. Calvin Goddard to Take Stand as Witness Against Former Policeman.

Maj. Calvin Goddard, authority on firearms, qualified as an expert witness for the prosecution at the trial of Edward M. Taylor, 28 years old, former policeman, on an attempt to murder charge, late yesterday before Chief Justice Walter I. McCoy and a jury in criminal division of the District Supreme Court. Proceedings were then adjourned until today.

The firearms expert, who is the prosecution's star witness, will be recalled to the witness stand today. It is expected that he will testify that a bullet removed from the body of William S. McBreen, gasoline filling station employe, was fired from a revolver used by Taylor during his connection with the police force.

Taylor, the prosecution charges, shot and gravely wounded McBreen in a gasoline filling station at 2637 Benning road northeast on August 30, 1927.

Mistaken Identity Claimed.

The prosecution contends that McBreen was mistaken by Taylor for Henry Finke, another employe of the station, whom he threatened to "get." Finkle, it is alleged, removed some money from an envelope left at the station by two negro rum runners for Taylor.

McBreen was the first witness called by William H. Collins, the prosecutor. He testified that he was shot from behind while seated in the station and was unable to identify Taylor, when questioned by Joseph Solomon, defense attorney.

Lieut. Edward J. Kelly and Detectives Joseph Waldron, Thomas P. Sweeney and John J. Fowler testified the bullet removed from McBreen's body was turned over to Maj. Goddard for examination and tests. Fowler also testified that Taylor admitted after being returned here from New York City, where he was arrested, that he used the same revolver during his entire career in the Police Department. The The revolver was introduced in evidence by Collins.

Photos Exhibited to Jury.

Detective Sergt. Fred Sandberg, photographic and fingerprint expert of the Police Department, identified several photographs he had taken at the gasoline station at the time of the shooting. The pictures showed the office in which McBreen was shot, and were exhibited to the jury.

In qualifying as an expert witness, Maj. Goddard explained the working of a revolver and what resulted when a bullet is discharged from a revolver. He declared that in his entire experience as an examiner of weapons no two barrels of guns were found to be identical. He explained that the lead of a bullet in passing through a revolver retains certain markings from the weapon's barrel.

Microscopic examinations of the bullet marking and the weapon guns would reveal beyond a doubt just which revolver fired a bullet, he said.

City's Heads Award Contracts for Schools

Contract for the construction of a combination gymnasium and assembly hall as an addition to the Raymond Public School was awarded by the District Commissioners yesterday to the C. A. Hofferberth Construction Co. The addition will cost $167,250.

The same company was awarded a contract for construction of a similar addition to the Takoma School. This addition is to cost $48,498.

Inquiry Reopened In McBride Death

Senator Pine Seeks Inside Story in Murder of Man Six Years Ago.

For the tenth time, at least, the investigation into the mysterious murder more than six years ago of Barney A. McBride, wealthy Oklahoma oil man, has been reopened.

Following the receipt of information from a woman that a man, well known to him, knew the "inside story" of the McBride slaying, Senator Pine (Republican), Oklahoma, yesterday sought to have the man, whose name was not made public, brought to Washington for a conference with him.

The investigation into the murder of McBride, whose body was found with many knife wounds in it under a culvert along the highway near Meadows, Md., has been reopened so many times local police who directed the investigation regard the latest information as "just another tip," which, like countless others received, is expected to prove worthless.

NEW MERGER REPORT IS EXPECTED TODAY

Blaine Valuation Plan, Ready, Will Be Filed; Defeat Seems Probable.

IS BASED ON INVESTMENT

The merger subcommittee of the Senate District committee will meet this morning, and the chances are that it will report out the new resolution authorizing a unification of the local street railway companies.

Action by the subcommittee has been postponed until now in order that Senator Blaine (Republican), Wisconsin, might draft an amendment for a new method of valuating public utilities here.

Blaine's amendment is now ready, and he will present it at the meeting this morning. It is almost certain to cause a controversy, and probably will be voted down.

While Blaine has not yet made his amendment public, it is understood that it provides that the street car companies shall be valuated on a "prudent investment" basis, rather than on a "reproduction" basis.

Some members of the subcommittee take the position that to add Blaine's amendment would be to wreck the merger negotiations. They feel that they already have wrung a good bargain from the traction companies, and that the resolution should be put through as it is.

The celebrated O'Fallon case, in which is involved the prudent investment theory, is still hanging fire before the United States Supreme Court, these senators point out, and it would be unwise to incorporate such a valuation theory in the resolution under the circumstances. Later, they suggest, the amendment might be acted on as separate legislation.

New Type Seaplane Passes Tests Here

Largest Craft of Its Kind in United States Has Room for 30 Passengers.

Successful tests of the new experimental type of flying boat, the XPY-1, largest seaplane in this country, were made yesterday at Anacostia Naval Air Station in the presence of Assistant Secretary of the Navy for Aeronautics Warner and members of the Navy Test Board.

Lieut. W. G. Tomlinson flew the plane and Capt. H. C. Richardson, Bureau of Aeronautics, who developed the hull and float lines of the craft. Assistant Secretary Warner and Chief Aviation Machinist Mate Kidder were passengers.

The plane is directly convertible into a commercial type and has a compartment 60 feet long which will hold 32 passengers. It was constructed by the Consolidated Aircraft Corporation, Buffalo, N. Y., on the winning design of the flying boat competition held by the Navy early in 1928.

Police Informer Fined On Intoxication Charge

Convicted of intoxication, Norman S. Gillespie, colored, 45 years old, a police informer, was sentenced to pay a $10 fine or serve ten days in jail yesterday by Judge John P. McMahon in Police Court. Policeman T. Carver, of the Third Precinct, testified he arrested the informer after finding him in a condition of extreme intoxication.

Patrolman William R. Laflin, of the Eighth Precinct, appeared as a "character" witness for the informer, but Judge McMahon declared that since it was the negro's business to put other people behind the bars, he should be careful himself.

PRICES FOR SEATS TO SEE INAUGURAL PARADE ANNOUNCED

Covered Chair in Front of the White House Will Cost $7.50, Report Shows.

HOUSE VOTES POWER TO COMMITTEE HEADS

The House yesterday adopted the Capper-Zihlman resolution authorizing the inaugural committee to make the necessary physical arrangements for the parade March 4. Members of the inaugural committee will meet at 4:30 o'clock this afternoon at the Willard Hotel. The various committee chairmen will report on the progress made for the inaugural arrangements and a full attendance of the committee membership is expected.

As the Senate already had adopted the Capper-Zihlman resolution, it now goes to the White House for the President's signature. The measure authorizes the committee to use public grounds for grandstands, to place wires for illumination and to use Army and Navy tents and paraphernalia.

Parade May Pass Capitol.

While the resolution was being considered yesterday, Representative Garrett (Democrat), of Tennessee, expressed the hope that the inaugural parade would start at a point which would permit it to pass by the grand stand at the Capitol. On two or three occasions, he said this was not done.

Announcement was made yesterday that $7.50 will be charged for covered seats to view the parade in the stands to be erected opposite the presidential reviewing stand at the White House. Less favored seats will be sold for $5 and $3. A total of 65,000 seats will be erected along Pennsylvania avenue for the occasion. Other seats, however, will be erected along the line of march if the demand warrants. The amusement tax will not apply to the sale o fthe seats. The funds raised through the seat sale will be used to defray the expense in making the public arrangements for the event.

A large number of reservations for seats to view the parade already have been made, according to the committee on tickets and invitations.

Cash prizes will be offered in the charity ball poster competition, which is designed to produce the best posters to advertise the ball. The posters are to be submitted on or before Wednesday, February 13, to Roland Robbins, ground floor of the Transportation Building. The designer's name and address is to be in a sealed envelope on the back of each poster. No poster will be judged with the designer's name on its front.

Prizes Offered for Posters.

The first prize will be $10 in gold, the second, $5 in gold, and the third and fourth, $2.50 in gold each. In addition to the prizes the 30 designers whose posters are considered worthy will receive $2 each to cover the expense of their materials. The size of the posters are to be approximately 20 by 28 inches and on stiff cardboard.

The committee on awards, whose decision will be final, is composed of Miss Lelia Mechlin, Mrs. William Penn Creason, Miss Ada Rainey, Duncan Phillips and Clifford K. Berryman.
